8259. Plaintiff Beverly Cook is an individual residing in Ohio. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8260. Plaintiff Daniel Cooper is an individual residing in Ohio. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8261. Plaintiff Bruce Cordy is an individual residing in Ohio. Cordy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8262. Plaintiff Jared Cox is an individual residing in Ohio. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8263. Plaintiff Robert Criswell is an individual residing in Ohio. Criswell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Criswell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Criswell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8264. Plaintiff Michael Crockett is an individual residing in Ohio. Crockett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crockett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crockett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8265. Plaintiff Steven Cross is an individual residing in Ohio. Cross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8266. Plaintiff Joshua Culbertson is an individual residing in Ohio. Culbertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Culbertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Culbertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8267. Plaintiff Daniel Cunningham is an individual residing in Ohio. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8268. Plaintiff Michael Cunningham is an individual residing in Ohio. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8269. Plaintiff Joshua Cusick is an individual residing in Ohio. Cusick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cusick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cusick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8270. Plaintiff Walter Czarnecki is an individual residing in Ohio. Czarnecki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Czarnecki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Czarnecki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8271. Plaintiff Craig Daniels is an individual residing in Florida. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8272. Plaintiff Deandre Daniels is an individual residing in Michigan. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8273. Plaintiff Sayvon Daniels is an individual residing in Ohio. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8274. Plaintiff David Dario is an individual residing in Ohio. Dario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8275. Plaintiff Adam Davis is an individual residing in Ohio. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8276. Plaintiff Katrina Davis is an individual residing in Ohio. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8277. Plaintiff Mitchell Deaton is an individual residing in Ohio. Deaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8278. Plaintiff Kevin Demarco is an individual residing in Ohio. Demarco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demarco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demarco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8279. Plaintiff Cy Jeter is an individual residing in Ohio. Desrosier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Desrosier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Desrosier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8280. Plaintiff Victoria Dews is an individual residing in Ohio. Dews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8281. Plaintiff Brandon Lewis is an individual residing in Ohio. Diehl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diehl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diehl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8282. Plaintiff Joshua Dobbins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dobbins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dobbins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dobbins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8283. Plaintiff Timberly Dolan is an individual residing in Ohio. Dolan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dolan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dolan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8284. Plaintiff Paul Dotson is an individual residing in Ohio. Dotson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dotson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dotson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8285. Plaintiff Dion Drakeford is an individual residing in Ohio. Drakeford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drakeford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drakeford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8286. Plaintiff Chana Drayton is an individual residing in Ohio. Drayton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drayton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drayton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8287. Plaintiff John Dunning is an individual residing in Ohio. Dunning worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunning has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunning has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8288. Plaintiff Brandon Durio is an individual residing in Ohio. Durio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Durio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Durio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8289. Plaintiff Taurean Earle is an individual residing in Ohio. Earle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8290. Plaintiff Judy Eiland-Stapleton is an individual residing in Ohio. Eiland-Stapleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eiland-Stapleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eiland-Stapleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8291. Plaintiff Bethrand Ekeanyanwu is an individual residing in Ohio. Ekeanyanwu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ekeanyanwu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ekeanyanwu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8292. Plaintiff Ahmed El Hamss is an individual residing in Ohio. El Hamss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. El Hamss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because El Hamss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8293. Plaintiff Rachel Ellison is an individual residing in Ohio. Ellison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8294. Plaintiff Leslie Elston is an individual residing in Ohio. Elston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8295. Plaintiff David Emerson is an individual residing in Ohio. Emerson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emerson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emerson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8296. Plaintiff Raymond Engram is an individual residing in Ohio. Engram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Engram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Engram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8297. Plaintiff Peter Fancher is an individual residing in Ohio. Fancher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fancher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fancher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8298. Plaintiff Dakota Fannin is an individual residing in Ohio. Fannin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fannin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fannin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8299. Plaintiff Tariq Fares is an individual residing in Illinois. Fares worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fares has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fares has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8300. Plaintiff Eric Farmer is an individual residing in New York. Farmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8301. Plaintiff Fayyad Faroonea is an individual residing in Ohio. Faroonea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faroonea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faroonea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8302. Plaintiff Andre Favors is an individual residing in Ohio. Favors worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Favors has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Favors has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8303. Plaintiff Chris Fay is an individual residing in Ohio. Fay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8304. Plaintiff Chad Ferguson is an individual residing in Ohio. Ferguson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferguson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferguson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8305. Plaintiff Matthew Fielding is an individual residing in Ohio. Fielding worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fielding has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fielding has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8306. Plaintiff Kevin Finfrock is an individual residing in Ohio. Finfrock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Finfrock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Finfrock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8307. Plaintiff Michael Fletcher is an individual residing in Ohio. Fletcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2003 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fletcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fletcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8308. Plaintiff Xavier Ford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8309. Plaintiff Kenneth Fortunato is an individual residing in Ohio. Fortunato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fortunato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fortunato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8310. Plaintiff Rickie Foster is an individual residing in Ohio. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8311. Plaintiff Thomas Freppon is an individual residing in Ohio. Freppon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freppon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freppon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8312. Plaintiff Justin Fryer is an individual residing in Ohio. Fryer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fryer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fryer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8313. Plaintiff Dustin Fultz is an individual residing in Ohio. Fultz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fultz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fultz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8314. Plaintiff Pietro Gandra is an individual residing in Ohio. Gandra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gandra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gandra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8315. Plaintiff Gregory Garland is an individual residing in Ohio. Garland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8316. Plaintiff Mary Garlick is an individual residing in Ohio. Garlick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garlick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garlick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8317. Plaintiff Nataiya Garner is an individual residing in Ohio. Garner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8318. Plaintiff Tim Gaston is an individual residing in Ohio. Gaston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8319. Plaintiff Kyle Gibbs is an individual residing in Ohio. Gibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8320. Plaintiff Baretta Gilliam is an individual residing in Ohio. Gilliam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilliam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilliam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8321. Plaintiff Samantha Gillison is an individual residing in Ohio. Gillison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8322. Plaintiff Jennifer Glaub is an individual residing in West Virginia. Glaub worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glaub has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glaub has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8323. Plaintiff Kyle Glomb is an individual residing in Ohio. Glomb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glomb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glomb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8324. Plaintiff Darnell Glover is an individual residing in Ohio. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8325. Plaintiff Cedric Goode is an individual residing in Ohio. Goode worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goode has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goode has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8326. Plaintiff Tyler Gordon is an individual residing in Ohio. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8327. Plaintiff Michael Green Jr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Green Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8328. Plaintiff Paul Greene is an individual residing in Ohio. Greene worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greene has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greene has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8329. Plaintiff Jason Griffin is an individual residing in Ohio. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8330. Plaintiff Raymond Griffin is an individual residing in Ohio. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8331. Plaintiff Uless Grimes is an individual residing in Ohio. Grimes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8332. Plaintiff Jordon Hafner is an individual residing in Ohio. Hafner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hafner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hafner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8333. Plaintiff Seth Hahlen is an individual residing in Arizona. Hahlen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hahlen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hahlen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8334. Plaintiff Alonzo Hairston is an individual residing in Ohio. Hairston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hairston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hairston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8335. Plaintiff Anthony Hall-Jones is an individual residing in Ohio. Hall-Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall-Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall-Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8336. Plaintiff Zackery Hamerick is an individual residing in Ohio. Hamerick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamerick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamerick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8337. Plaintiff Michael Hamons is an individual residing in Ohio. Hamons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8338. Plaintiff Aaron Hanes is an individual residing in Ohio. Hanes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8339. Plaintiff Michael Harper is an individual residing in Ohio. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8340. Plaintiff Brittney Harrison is an individual residing in Missouri. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8341. Plaintiff Nathan Hartley is an individual residing in Ohio. Hartley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hartley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hartley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8342. Plaintiff Batrudin Hassan is an individual residing in Ohio. Hassan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8343. Plaintiff Thomas Hasty is an individual residing in Ohio. Hasty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1999 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hasty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hasty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8344. Plaintiff Shahidah Hawkins is an individual residing in Ohio. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8345. Plaintiff Steven Hayden Jr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Hayden Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayden Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayden Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8346. Plaintiff Andre Haygood is an individual residing in Ohio. Haygood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haygood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haygood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8347. Plaintiff Lisa Hazelwood is an individual residing in Ohio. Hazelwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hazelwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hazelwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8348. Plaintiff Matthew Hedges is an individual residing in Florida. Hedges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hedges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hedges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8349. Plaintiff Rick Hendricks is an individual residing in Ohio. Hendricks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hendricks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hendricks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8350. Plaintiff Frank Henry is an individual residing in Ohio. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8351. Plaintiff Leroy Hicks is an individual residing in Ohio. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8352. Plaintiff Chris Hill is an individual residing in Ohio. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8353. Plaintiff Richard Hinerman is an individual residing in Ohio. Hinerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hinerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hinerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8354. Plaintiff Ayramis Hobbs is an individual residing in Ohio. Hobbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hobbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hobbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8355. Plaintiff Andrew Hoffman is an individual residing in Ohio. Hoffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8356. Plaintiff Cedric Holloway is an individual residing in Ohio. Holloway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holloway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holloway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8357. Plaintiff Michael Hollowniczky is an individual residing in Ohio. Hollowniczky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1991 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollowniczky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollowniczky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8358. Plaintiff Malissa Hopkins is an individual residing in Ohio. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8359. Plaintiff Jarrod Horton is an individual residing in Ohio. Horton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8360. Plaintiff Chad Hougland is an individual residing in Ohio. Hougland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hougland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hougland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8361. Plaintiff Shawn Houpt is an individual residing in Ohio. Houpt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houpt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houpt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8362. Plaintiff Cornell Howard is an individual residing in Ohio. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8363. Plaintiff Nathan Howard is an individual residing in Ohio. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8364. Plaintiff Matthew Howes is an individual residing in Ohio. Howes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8365. Plaintiff Deanna Howes is an individual residing in Ohio. Howes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8366. Plaintiff Thomas Hughes is an individual residing in Ohio. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8367. Plaintiff Brandon Hutchinson is an individual residing in Ohio. Hutchinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hutchinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hutchinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8368. Plaintiff Gregory Huth is an individual residing in Ohio. Huth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8369. Plaintiff Louise Ingram is an individual residing in Ohio. Ingram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ingram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ingram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8370. Plaintiff Tyler Ish is an individual residing in Ohio. Ish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8371. Plaintiff Troy Janashak is an individual residing in North Carolina. Janashak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Janashak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Janashak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8372. Plaintiff Jeffery Jarvis is an individual residing in Ohio. Jarvis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jarvis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jarvis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8373. Plaintiff Brendan Jefferson is an individual residing in Ohio. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8374. Plaintiff Joshua Jenkins is an individual residing in Ohio. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8375. Plaintiff Scott Jennings is an individual residing in Ohio. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8376. Plaintiff Jeremiah Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8377. Plaintiff Lee Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8378. Plaintiff Daryl Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8379. Plaintiff Christopher Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8380. Plaintiff Adrian Johnson is an individual residing in Georgia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8381. Plaintiff Kyle Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8382. Plaintiff Terrence Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8383. Plaintiff Shawn Johnson is an individual residing in Ohio. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8384. Plaintiff Brandon Jones is an individual residing in Ohio. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8385. Plaintiff Deonandre Jones is an individual residing in Ohio. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8386. Plaintiff Travonte Junius is an individual residing in Ohio. Junius worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Junius has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Junius has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8387. Plaintiff Patrick Jurasin is an individual residing in Ohio. Jurasin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jurasin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jurasin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8388. Plaintiff Keith Kage is an individual residing in Ohio. Kage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8389. Plaintiff Michael Keating is an individual residing in Ohio. Keating worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keating has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keating has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8390. Plaintiff Chaz Keeling is an individual residing in Ohio. Keeling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keeling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keeling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8391. Plaintiff Jamal Keller is an individual residing in Ohio. Keller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8392. Plaintiff Everett Kerns is an individual residing in Ohio. Kerns worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kerns has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kerns has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8393. Plaintiff Joe Kersey is an individual residing in Ohio. Kersey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kersey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kersey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8394. Plaintiff Jovon Kimbrough is an individual residing in Ohio. Kimbrough worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kimbrough has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kimbrough has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8395. Plaintiff Kennic Kirk is an individual residing in Ohio. Kirk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8396. Plaintiff Jason Kistler is an individual residing in Ohio. Kistler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kistler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kistler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8397. Plaintiff Anarose Knight is an individual residing in California. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8398. Plaintiff Steven Knight is an individual residing in Ohio. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8399. Plaintiff Joseph Knipp is an individual residing in Ohio. Knipp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knipp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knipp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8400. Plaintiff Carl Koger is an individual residing in Ohio. Koger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8401. Plaintiff Roberta Krise is an individual residing in Ohio. Krise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8402. Plaintiff Michael Kronick is an individual residing in Ohio. Kronick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kronick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kronick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8403. Plaintiff Kurtis Krueger is an individual residing in Ohio. Krueger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krueger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krueger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8404. Plaintiff Matson Lance is an individual residing in Ohio. Lance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8405. Plaintiff James Lane is an individual residing in Ohio. Lane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8406. Plaintiff Jonathan Law is an individual residing in Ohio. Law worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Law has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Law has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8407. Plaintiff Timothy Lawson is an individual residing in Florida. Lawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8408. Plaintiff Justin Lay is an individual residing in Ohio. Lay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8409. Plaintiff Teresa Layne is an individual residing in Ohio. Layne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Layne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Layne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8410. Plaintiff Eric Lee is an individual residing in Ohio. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8411. Plaintiff Mizell Lee is an individual residing in Ohio. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8412. Plaintiff Shallah Lentz is an individual residing in Ohio. Lentz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lentz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lentz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8413. Plaintiff Richard Leonti is an individual residing in Ohio. Leonti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leonti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leonti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8414. Plaintiff Richard Lepore is an individual residing in Ohio. Lepore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lepore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lepore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8415. Plaintiff Kaleb Lewis is an individual residing in Indiana. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8416. Plaintiff Barry Lieghley is an individual residing in Ohio. Lieghley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lieghley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lieghley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8417. Plaintiff Steven Linton is an individual residing in Ohio. Linton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Linton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Linton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8418. Plaintiff Brian Long is an individual residing in West Virginia. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8419. Plaintiff Denis Lopez is an individual residing in Ohio. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8420. Plaintiff Darrell Lore is an individual residing in Ohio. Lore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8421. Plaintiff Jason Luff is an individual residing in Ohio. Luff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8422. Plaintiff Timothy Luginbuhl is an individual residing in Ohio. Luginbuhl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luginbuhl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luginbuhl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8423. Plaintiff Vincent George is an individual residing in Ohio. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8424. Plaintiff Kennedy Madison is an individual residing in Ohio. Madison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Madison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Madison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8425. Plaintiff Matt Madunicky is an individual residing in Ohio. Madunicky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Madunicky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Madunicky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8426. Plaintiff Daniel Mahoney is an individual residing in Kentucky. Mahoney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mahoney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mahoney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8427. Plaintiff Jeremy Malaney is an individual residing in Ohio. Malaney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malaney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malaney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8428. Plaintiff Christopher Martin is an individual residing in Ohio. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8429. Plaintiff Nicholas Martini is an individual residing in Ohio. Martini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8430. Plaintiff Karen Masluk is an individual residing in Ohio. Masluk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Masluk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Masluk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8431. Plaintiff Thomas Massari is an individual residing in Ohio. Massari worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Massari has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Massari has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8432. Plaintiff Clinton Masters is an individual residing in Ohio. Masters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Masters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Masters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8433. Plaintiff Davin Mcalpine is an individual residing in Ohio. Mcalpine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcalpine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcalpine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8434. Plaintiff Nathaniel Mccalley is an individual residing in Ohio. Mccalley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccalley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccalley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8435. Plaintiff Phil Mccarty is an individual residing in Ohio. Mccarty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8436. Plaintiff James Mcconkey is an individual residing in Ohio. Mcconkey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcconkey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcconkey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8437. Plaintiff Katlynn McGaffick is an individual residing in Ohio. McGaffick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGaffick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGaffick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8438. Plaintiff Johnnie McKinney is an individual residing in Ohio. McKinney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McKinney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McKinney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8439. Plaintiff Dennis Mcmillen is an individual residing in Ohio. Mcmillen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcmillen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcmillen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8440. Plaintiff Michael Messiah is an individual residing in Ohio. Messiah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Messiah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Messiah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8441. Plaintiff Jerry Miley is an individual residing in Ohio. Miley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8442. Plaintiff Augustus Miller is an individual residing in Ohio. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8443. Plaintiff Holley Miller is an individual residing in Ohio. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8444. Plaintiff Derrick Miller is an individual residing in Ohio. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8445. Plaintiff Kayla Miller is an individual residing in Ohio. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8446. Plaintiff Maxine Milner is an individual residing in Ohio. Milner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8447. Plaintiff Dana Mitchell is an individual residing in Ohio. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8448. Plaintiff Tyler Mitchell is an individual residing in Ohio. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8449. Plaintiff Lisa Moore is an individual residing in Ohio. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8450. Plaintiff Robert Moore is an individual residing in Ohio. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8451. Plaintiff Colin Moran is an individual residing in Ohio. Moran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8452. Plaintiff Carmella Morgan is an individual residing in Ohio. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8453. Plaintiff Loren Morgan is an individual residing in Ohio. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8454. Plaintiff Dustin Morris is an individual residing in Ohio. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8455. Plaintiff Douglas Mugler is an individual residing in Ohio. Mugler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mugler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mugler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8456. Plaintiff Troy Mulhall is an individual residing in Ohio. Mulhall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mulhall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mulhall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8457. Plaintiff Gaylord Murray is an individual residing in Ohio. Murray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8458. Plaintiff Edward Murray is an individual residing in Ohio. Murray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8459. Plaintiff Nikolas Natali is an individual residing in Indiana. Natali worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Natali has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Natali has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8460. Plaintiff Barbie Neff is an individual residing in Ohio. Neff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8461. Plaintiff Jaxon Newsome is an individual residing in Ohio. Newsome worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newsome has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newsome has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8462. Plaintiff Jason Nickle is an individual residing in Ohio. Nickle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nickle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nickle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8463. Plaintiff Daniel Niezgoda is an individual residing in Ohio. Niezgoda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Niezgoda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Niezgoda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8464. Plaintiff Dan Oblinger is an individual residing in Ohio. Oblinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oblinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oblinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8465. Plaintiff Michael Offord is an individual residing in Ohio. Offord worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Offord has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Offord has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8466. Plaintiff Marianne Ohara is an individual residing in Ohio. Ohara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ohara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ohara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8467. Plaintiff Christin Oneil is an individual residing in Ohio. Oneil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oneil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oneil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8468. Plaintiff Jason Owen is an individual residing in Ohio. Owen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8469. Plaintiff Daniel Owens is an individual residing in Ohio. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8470. Plaintiff Dashan Pace is an individual residing in Ohio. Pace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8471. Plaintiff Michael Pacholec is an individual residing in Ohio. Pacholec worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pacholec has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pacholec has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8472. Plaintiff Timothy Parker is an individual residing in Washington. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8473. Plaintiff Justin Parker is an individual residing in Ohio. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8474. Plaintiff Marcia Parsons is an individual residing in Ohio. Parsons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parsons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parsons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8475. Plaintiff Antonio Peeples is an individual residing in Ohio. Peeples worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peeples has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peeples has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8476. Plaintiff Ruben Perez is an individual residing in Michigan. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8477. Plaintiff Leslie Perry-Fyffe is an individual residing in Ohio. Perry-Fyffe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry-Fyffe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry-Fyffe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8478. Plaintiff Amber Peterson is an individual residing in Ohio. Peterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8479. Plaintiff Travis Phillips is an individual residing in Ohio. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8480. Plaintiff Jeffrey Phillips is an individual residing in Ohio. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8481. Plaintiff Joel Piciacchio is an individual residing in Ohio. Piciacchio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piciacchio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piciacchio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8482. Plaintiff Robert Pinkerman, Sr. is an individual residing in Kentucky. Pinkerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2000 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Pinkerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinkerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8483. Plaintiff Kevin Poindexter is an individual residing in Ohio. Poindexter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poindexter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poindexter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8484. Plaintiff Sabrina Porter is an individual residing in Ohio. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8485. Plaintiff Darain Porter-Race II is an individual residing in Ohio. Porter-Race worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter-Race has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter-Race has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8486. Plaintiff Joel Preisler is an individual residing in Ohio. Preisler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Preisler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Preisler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8487. Plaintiff James Daniels is an individual residing in West Virginia. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8488. Plaintiff Navarro Rafael Evans is an individual residing in Ohio. Rafael Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rafael Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rafael Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8489. Plaintiff Sarah Ramon is an individual residing in Ohio. Ramon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8490. Plaintiff Justine Ramsey is an individual residing in Ohio. Ramsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8491. Plaintiff David Repko II is an individual residing in Ohio. Repko II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Repko II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Repko II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8492. Plaintiff Clay Rhinehart, Sr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Rhinehart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhinehart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhinehart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8493. Plaintiff David Rhoades is an individual residing in Ohio. Rhoades worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhoades has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhoades has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8494. Plaintiff Darin Rinicella is an individual residing in Ohio. Rinicella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rinicella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rinicella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8495. Plaintiff Annelise Riser is an individual residing in Ohio. Riser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8496. Plaintiff Sarah Robinson is an individual residing in Ohio. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8497. Plaintiff Travus Rolland is an individual residing in Ohio. Rolland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rolland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rolland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8498. Plaintiff Joshua Roller is an individual residing in Ohio. Roller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8499. Plaintiff Roman Roman C Givens is an individual residing in Ohio. Roman C Givens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roman C Givens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roman C Givens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8500. Plaintiff Lawrence Rose is an individual residing in Ohio. Rose worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rose has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rose has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8501. Plaintiff Chris Sackrider is an individual residing in Ohio. Sackrider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sackrider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sackrider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8502. Plaintiff Donald Sager is an individual residing in Ohio. Sager worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2000 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sager has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sager has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8503. Plaintiff James Sagstetter is an individual residing in Ohio. Sagstetter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sagstetter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sagstetter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8504. Plaintiff Gary Sandler is an individual residing in Ohio. Sandler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sandler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sandler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8505. Plaintiff Justin Schaeffer is an individual residing in Ohio. Schaeffer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schaeffer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schaeffer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8506. Plaintiff Darlene Schenck is an individual residing in Tennessee. Schenck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schenck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schenck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8507. Plaintiff Robert Schieber is an individual residing in Ohio. Schieber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schieber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schieber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8508. Plaintiff Jessica Schindler is an individual residing in Ohio. Schindler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schindler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schindler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8509. Plaintiff Peter Schutz is an individual residing in Ohio. Schutz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schutz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schutz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8510. Plaintiff Chereen Scott is an individual residing in Ohio. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8511. Plaintiff Brandon Scott is an individual residing in Ohio. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8512. Plaintiff Michael Scott is an individual residing in Ohio. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8513. Plaintiff Pamlette Scott is an individual residing in Ohio. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8514. Plaintiff Rose Shalosky is an individual residing in Ohio. Shalosky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shalosky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shalosky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8515. Plaintiff Jared Shank is an individual residing in Ohio. Shank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8516. Plaintiff Walid Shehadeh is an individual residing in Ohio. Shehadeh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shehadeh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shehadeh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8517. Plaintiff Elisa Shufelt is an individual residing in Michigan. Shufelt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shufelt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shufelt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8518. Plaintiff Troy Singer is an individual residing in Ohio. Singer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Singer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Singer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8519. Plaintiff Vito Sinisgalli is an individual residing in Ohio. Sinisgalli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sinisgalli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sinisgalli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8520. Plaintiff Brad Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8521. Plaintiff Ryan Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8522. Plaintiff Kenneth Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8523. Plaintiff Karen Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8524. Plaintiff Stephen Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8525. Plaintiff Adam Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8526. Plaintiff Ja0Cob Smith is an individual residing in Ohio. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8527. Plaintiff Marley Smock is an individual residing in Ohio. Smock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8528. Plaintiff Scott Snyder is an individual residing in Ohio. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8529. Plaintiff Tonia Sorrell is an individual residing in Ohio. Sorrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sorrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sorrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8530. Plaintiff Terrence Spencer is an individual residing in Ohio. Spencer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8531. Plaintiff Ryan Spencer is an individual residing in Ohio. Spencer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8532. Plaintiff Richard Spicer is an individual residing in Ohio. Spicer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spicer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spicer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8533. Plaintiff Anthony Spirito is an individual residing in Ohio. Spirito worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spirito has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spirito has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8534. Plaintiff Joseph Spitzer is an individual residing in South Carolina. Spitzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spitzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spitzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8535. Plaintiff Jason Springer is an individual residing in Ohio. Springer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Springer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Springer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8536. Plaintiff Daniel Staimpel is an individual residing in Ohio. Staimpel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staimpel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staimpel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8537. Plaintiff Daniel Stamm is an individual residing in Ohio. Stamm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stamm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stamm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8538. Plaintiff Justin Starkey is an individual residing in Ohio. Starkey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Starkey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Starkey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8539. Plaintiff Timothy Stephens is an individual residing in Ohio. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8540. Plaintiff Brian Sterling is an individual residing in Ohio. Sterling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sterling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sterling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8541. Plaintiff James Stevens is an individual residing in Ohio. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8542. Plaintiff Krystal Stevens is an individual residing in Ohio. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8543. Plaintiff Thomas Stupi is an individual residing in Ohio. Stupi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stupi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stupi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8544. Plaintiff Danielle Sutton is an individual residing in Ohio. Sutton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sutton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sutton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8545. Plaintiff Scott Swisshelm is an individual residing in Ohio. Swisshelm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swisshelm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swisshelm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8546. Plaintiff Denes Szabo is an individual residing in Ohio. Szabo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Szabo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Szabo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8547. Plaintiff Cynthia Taylor is an individual residing in Ohio. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio and West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8548. Plaintiff Joseph Theibert is an individual residing in Ohio. Theibert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Theibert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Theibert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8549. Plaintiff Robert Theil is an individual residing in Ohio. Theil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Theil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Theil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8550. Plaintiff Danny Thomas is an individual residing in Ohio. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8551. Plaintiff Joshua Thomas is an individual residing in Ohio. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8552. Plaintiff Melissa Thomas-Recker is an individual residing in Florida. Thomas-Recker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas-Recker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas-Recker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8553. Plaintiff Gregory Thompson is an individual residing in Ohio. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8554. Plaintiff Martin Thompson is an individual residing in Ohio. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8555. Plaintiff Anthony Tippet is an individual residing in Ohio. Tippet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tippet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tippet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8556. Plaintiff Patrick Tournoux is an individual residing in Ohio. Tournoux worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tournoux has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tournoux has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8557. Plaintiff Robert Trent is an individual residing in Ohio. Trent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8558. Plaintiff Richard Turner is an individual residing in Ohio. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8559. Plaintiff Gary Turner is an individual residing in Ohio. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8560. Plaintiff Carl Uher is an individual residing in Ohio. Uher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Uher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Uher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8561. Plaintiff Daria Venable is an individual residing in Ohio. Venable worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Venable has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Venable has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8562. Plaintiff Robert Vokac is an individual residing in Ohio. Vokac worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vokac has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vokac has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8563. Plaintiff Duane Wagner is an individual residing in Ohio. Wagner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1999 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8564. Plaintiff Whit Walker is an individual residing in Ohio. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8565. Plaintiff Mario Wardell is an individual residing in Ohio. Wardell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wardell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wardell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8566. Plaintiff Nathaniel Washington is an individual residing in Ohio. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8567. Plaintiff Theodore Watkins is an individual residing in Ohio. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8568. Plaintiff Janay Webb is an individual residing in Ohio. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8569. Plaintiff Matthew Weissenberger is an individual residing in Ohio. Weissenberger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weissenberger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weissenberger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8570. Plaintiff Thomas Wenzlick is an individual residing in Ohio. Wenzlick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wenzlick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wenzlick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8571. Plaintiff Jesse Wesolowski is an individual residing in Ohio. Wesolowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wesolowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wesolowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8572. Plaintiff Jeremy Wheeler is an individual residing in Ohio. Wheeler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheeler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheeler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8573. Plaintiff Jeromy White is an individual residing in Ohio. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8574. Plaintiff Sarenda Whitted is an individual residing in Ohio. Whitted worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitted has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitted has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8575. Plaintiff Patrick Wilburn is an individual residing in Ohio. Wilburn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilburn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilburn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8576. Plaintiff Demetrius Williams is an individual residing in Ohio. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8577. Plaintiff Martez Williams is an individual residing in Ohio. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8578. Plaintiff Chester Wilson is an individual residing in Florida. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8579. Plaintiff Dale Wilson is an individual residing in Ohio. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8580. Plaintiff Nicholas Wojcik is an individual residing in Ohio. Wojcik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wojcik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wojcik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8581. Plaintiff Lander Woods is an individual residing in Ohio. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8582. Plaintiff Rebecca Workman is an individual residing in Ohio. Workman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Workman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Workman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8583. Plaintiff Jonathan Worthington is an individual residing in Ohio. Worthington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worthington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worthington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8584. Plaintiff Jordan Wright is an individual residing in Ohio. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8585. Plaintiff Thomas Yoho is an individual residing in Ohio. Yoho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yoho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yoho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8586. Plaintiff Anthony Young is an individual residing in Ohio. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8587. Plaintiff Aleesha Adkins is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Adkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8588. Plaintiff Brian Alford is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Alford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8589. Plaintiff Erik Allen is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8590. Plaintiff Candice Almeida is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Almeida worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almeida has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almeida has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8591. Plaintiff Dustin Ayers is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Ayers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8592. Plaintiff Jaret Baker is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8593. Plaintiff Marcelo Baldeon is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Baldeon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baldeon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baldeon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8594. Plaintiff Dimarco Barnes is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8595. Plaintiff Jwan Barnhardt is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Barnhardt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnhardt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnhardt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8596. Plaintiff Gary Beckett is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Beckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8597. Plaintiff Stephen Billingslea is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Billingslea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billingslea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billingslea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8598. Plaintiff Michael Blair is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Blair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8599. Plaintiff Phillip Bruce is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Bruce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bruce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bruce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8600. Plaintiff Courtney Buchanan is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Buchanan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buchanan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buchanan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8601. Plaintiff John Burns II is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Burns II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burns II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burns II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8602. Plaintiff Dani Butcher is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Butcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8603. Plaintiff Lucas Cable is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Cable worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cable has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cable has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8604. Plaintiff Basil Campbell is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8605. Plaintiff Benjamin Canby is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Canby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8606. Plaintiff Richard Carr is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Carr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8607. Plaintiff Tanara Cherry is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Cherry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cherry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cherry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8608. Plaintiff William Chevront is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Chevront worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chevront has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chevront has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8609. Plaintiff Rane Christensen Peterson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Christensen Peterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christensen Peterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christensen Peterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8610. Plaintiff Clifton Cochran is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Cochran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 1999 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cochran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cochran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8611. Plaintiff Donald Coffman is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8612. Plaintiff Donald Coffman is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8613. Plaintiff Jonathan Cooper is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8614. Plaintiff Clayton Coppin is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Coppin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coppin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coppin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8615. Plaintiff Trevor Cox is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8616. Plaintiff Javaris Davis is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8617. Plaintiff Dana Deloney is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Deloney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deloney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deloney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8618. Plaintiff Camron Denson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Denson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Denson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Denson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8619. Plaintiff Steven Dodd is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Dodd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dodd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dodd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8620. Plaintiff Lloyd Dowler is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Dowler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dowler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dowler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8621. Plaintiff Chauncey Dumas is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Dumas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dumas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dumas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8622. Plaintiff Jowanna Echols is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Echols worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Echols has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Echols has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8623. Plaintiff Samantha Ford is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8624. Plaintiff Brianna Galipeau is an individual residing in California. Galipeau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Galipeau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Galipeau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8625. Plaintiff Garcia-Sigala Gamaliel is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Gamaliel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gamaliel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gamaliel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8626. Plaintiff Jimmy Garcia is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8627. Plaintiff Wendell Glisson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Glisson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glisson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glisson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8628. Plaintiff Scott Godwin is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Godwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8629. Plaintiff Hollis Griffin is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8630. Plaintiff Henry Guzman is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8631. Plaintiff Travis Haney is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Haney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8632. Plaintiff Stephon Hawthorne is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Hawthorne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawthorne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawthorne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8633. Plaintiff Stephen Henry is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8634. Plaintiff Michelle Hibbetts is an individual residing in Arizona. Hibbetts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hibbetts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hibbetts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8635. Plaintiff Gabriel Hight is an individual residing in Missouri. Hight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8636. Plaintiff Jessica Hilton is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Hilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8637. Plaintiff Christina Holt is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Holt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8638. Plaintiff Kevin Hopper is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Hopper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8639. Plaintiff Michael Jackson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8640. Plaintiff Kenneth Jackson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8641. Plaintiff Kendell Janes is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Janes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2007 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Janes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Janes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8642. Plaintiff Tyler Jezik is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jezik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jezik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jezik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8643. Plaintiff Wayne Jones is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8644. Plaintiff Jerry Kahn is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Kahn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kahn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kahn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8645. Plaintiff John Keel is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Keel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8646. Plaintiff Sabrina Lee is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8647. Plaintiff John Levonitis is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Levonitis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levonitis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levonitis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8648. Plaintiff Deantwon Lewis is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8649. Plaintiff David Lewis is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8650. Plaintiff Billy Maddox is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Maddox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maddox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maddox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8651. Plaintiff Matthew Martin is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8652. Plaintiff Taylor McBride is an individual residing in Oklahoma. McBride worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBride has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBride has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8653. Plaintiff Diamonte McClellan is an individual residing in Oklahoma. McClellan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McClellan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McClellan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8654. Plaintiff Joshua McGill is an individual residing in Colorado. McGill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8655. Plaintiff Kendall Mckernan is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Mckernan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Mckernan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckernan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8656. Plaintiff Richard Mendoza is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Mendoza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendoza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendoza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8657. Plaintiff Robert Molina is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Molina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Molina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Molina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8658. Plaintiff Michael Morgan is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8659. Plaintiff Charles Novey is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Novey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Novey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Novey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8660. Plaintiff Nery Ortiz is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Ortiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8661. Plaintiff Joe Owens is an individual residing in Arkansas. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2001 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8662. Plaintiff Devun Parker is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8663. Plaintiff Derrick Regan is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Regan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Regan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Regan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8664. Plaintiff Michael Rubalcava is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Rubalcava worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rubalcava has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rubalcava has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8665. Plaintiff Evan Rubright is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Rubright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rubright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rubright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8666. Plaintiff Juanita Seals is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Seals worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seals has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seals has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8667. Plaintiff James Shaw is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Shaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8668. Plaintiff Brandon Shelton is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Shelton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8669. Plaintiff Jimmy Shipley is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Shipley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shipley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shipley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8670. Plaintiff Russell Shipley is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Shipley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shipley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shipley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8671. Plaintiff Julia Silva is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Silva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Silva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Silva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8672. Plaintiff Joshua Smith is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8673. Plaintiff Seth Smith is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8674. Plaintiff Jimmy Sparks is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Sparks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8675. Plaintiff Cassie Spence is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Spence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8676. Plaintiff Roger Stokes is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8677. Plaintiff Delbert Swisher is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Swisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8678. Plaintiff Jeffrey Treagesser is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Treagesser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Treagesser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Treagesser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8679. Plaintiff Jacob Washington is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8680. Plaintiff Tricia Watts-Koch is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Watts-Koch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts-Koch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts-Koch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8681. Plaintiff Tricia Webb is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8682. Plaintiff Steven West is an individual residing in Oklahoma. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8683. Plaintiff Paul White is an individual residing in Oklahoma. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8684. Plaintiff Harold Willard is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Willard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8685. Plaintiff Justin Williams is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8686. Plaintiff Billy Wilson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8687. Plaintiff Roy Wilson Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Wilson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8688. Plaintiff Carissa Wyble is an individual residing in Texas. Wyble worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oklahoma from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wyble has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wyble has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8689. Plaintiff Jake Adams is an individual residing in Georgia. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8690. Plaintiff Cameron Alex is an individual residing in Oregon. Alex worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alex has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alex has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8691. Plaintiff Clyde Anderson is an individual residing in Oregon. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8692. Plaintiff Jon Anderson is an individual residing in Oregon. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8693. Plaintiff Aj Andrews is an individual residing in Washington. Andrews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andrews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andrews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8694. Plaintiff Jason Arnold is an individual residing in Washington. Arnold worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arnold has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arnold has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8695. Plaintiff Jon Baker is an individual residing in Washington. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8696. Plaintiff Jorge Barocio is an individual residing in Oregon. Barocio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barocio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barocio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8697. Plaintiff Dale Bell is an individual residing in Oregon. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8698. Plaintiff Trevor Bennett is an individual residing in California. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8699. Plaintiff Crystal Bingenheimer is an individual residing in Oregon. Bingenheimer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bingenheimer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bingenheimer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8700. Plaintiff Shane Bisbing is an individual residing in Oregon. Bisbing worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bisbing has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bisbing has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8701. Plaintiff Joie Bodda is an individual residing in Idaho. Bodda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bodda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bodda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8702. Plaintiff Michelle Bromagem is an individual residing in Iowa. Bromagem worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bromagem has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bromagem has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8703. Plaintiff Kailen Bronson is an individual residing in Oregon. Bronson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2004 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bronson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bronson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8704. Plaintiff Matthew Bruhns is an individual residing in Oregon. Bruhns worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bruhns has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bruhns has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8705. Plaintiff Nicholas Buren is an individual residing in California. Buren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8706. Plaintiff Samantha Calderon is an individual residing in Oregon. Calderon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calderon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calderon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8707. Plaintiff Scott Carpenter is an individual residing in Oregon. Carpenter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carpenter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carpenter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8708. Plaintiff Andy Chase is an individual residing in Oregon. Chase worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chase has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chase has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8709. Plaintiff Christoffer Christensen is an individual residing in Oregon. Christensen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Christensen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christensen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8710. Plaintiff Gavin Christenson is an individual residing in Oregon. Christenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8711. Plaintiff Brian Christie is an individual residing in Oregon. Christie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8712. Plaintiff Cody Clough is an individual residing in Washington. Clough worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clough has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clough has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8713. Plaintiff Eric Cole is an individual residing in California. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8714. Plaintiff Nenad Curcin is an individual residing in Oregon. Curcin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Curcin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Curcin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8715. Plaintiff Ryan Dalke is an individual residing in Oregon. Dalke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 1999 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dalke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dalke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8716. Plaintiff Lance Deal is an individual residing in Oregon. Deal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8717. Plaintiff Hank Derka is an individual residing in Oregon. Derka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Derka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Derka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8718. Plaintiff Drew Duffy is an individual residing in Vermont. Duffy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duffy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duffy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8719. Plaintiff Donald Dunham is an individual residing in Oregon. Dunham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8720. Plaintiff Carlton Dupree is an individual residing in Oregon. Dupree worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dupree has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dupree has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8721. Plaintiff Earl Edgell is an individual residing in Washington. Edgell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edgell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edgell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8722. Plaintiff Alexander Eggleston is an individual residing in Oregon. Eggleston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eggleston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eggleston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8723. Plaintiff Michael Ehlert is an individual residing in Oregon. Ehlert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ehlert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ehlert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8724. Plaintiff Gary Ehlert is an individual residing in Oregon. Ehlert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ehlert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ehlert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8725. Plaintiff Patricia Elliott is an individual residing in Oregon. Elliott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elliott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elliott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8726. Plaintiff Miguel Escalona is an individual residing in Oregon. Escalona worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Escalona has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Escalona has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8727. Plaintiff Michael Estep is an individual residing in Oregon. Estep worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estep has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estep has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8728. Plaintiff Bob Eyman is an individual residing in Oregon. Eyman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eyman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eyman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8729. Plaintiff Brayden Eyman is an individual residing in Oregon. Eyman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eyman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eyman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8730. Plaintiff Lamar Fairley-Minthorn is an individual residing in Oregon. Fairley-Minthorn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fairley-Minthorn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fairley-Minthorn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8731. Plaintiff Alton Faletoi is an individual residing in Oregon. Faletoi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faletoi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faletoi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8732. Plaintiff William Farnsworth is an individual residing in Oregon. Farnsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Farnsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farnsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8733. Plaintiff Jeremy Figueroa is an individual residing in Oregon. Figueroa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Figueroa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Figueroa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8734. Plaintiff Robert Flores is an individual residing in Oregon. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8735. Plaintiff Ryan Foss is an individual residing in Oregon. Foss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8736. Plaintiff Anissa Foster is an individual residing in Oregon. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8737. Plaintiff Gregory Fraser is an individual residing in Oregon. Fraser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fraser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fraser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8738. Plaintiff Teodulo Garcia is an individual residing in Oregon. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8739. Plaintiff Sergii Golovnov is an individual residing in Washington. Golovnov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Golovnov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Golovnov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8740. Plaintiff Scott Gray is an individual residing in Oregon. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8741. Plaintiff Corey Haggard is an individual residing in Oregon. Haggard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haggard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haggard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8742. Plaintiff Steven Hall is an individual residing in Oregon. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8743. Plaintiff Andrew Hansen is an individual residing in Missouri. Hansen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hansen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hansen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8744. Plaintiff Kim Harrison is an individual residing in Oregon. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8745. Plaintiff Daniel Hawkins is an individual residing in Oregon. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8746. Plaintiff Enrique Hernandez is an individual residing in Oregon. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8747. Plaintiff Nathan Hinkle is an individual residing in Oregon. Hinkle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hinkle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hinkle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8748. Plaintiff Loren Hromek is an individual residing in Oregon. Hromek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hromek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hromek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8749. Plaintiff Thomas Hubenthal is an individual residing in Oregon. Hubenthal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubenthal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubenthal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8750. Plaintiff Stephanie Huff is an individual residing in Oregon. Huff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8751. Plaintiff David Hunt is an individual residing in Oregon. Hunt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8752. Plaintiff Morgan Hutchens is an individual residing in Oregon. Hutchens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hutchens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hutchens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8753. Plaintiff Gilbert Iverson is an individual residing in Washington. Iverson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2003 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Iverson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Iverson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8754. Plaintiff Stacy Jaycox is an individual residing in Oregon. Jaycox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jaycox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jaycox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8755. Plaintiff Kalavina Johnson is an individual residing in Oregon. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8756. Plaintiff Robert Johnson is an individual residing in Oregon. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8757. Plaintiff Chad Keebler is an individual residing in Oregon. Keebler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keebler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keebler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8758. Plaintiff Jill Kent is an individual residing in Oregon. Kent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8759. Plaintiff Tonya Krizman is an individual residing in California. Krizman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krizman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krizman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8760. Plaintiff Joshuah Lassen is an individual residing in Oregon. Lassen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lassen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lassen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8761. Plaintiff Robert Laurie is an individual residing in Oregon. Laurie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laurie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laurie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8762. Plaintiff Gregory Ledet is an individual residing in Idaho. Ledet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ledet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ledet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8763. Plaintiff David Lee is an individual residing in Oregon. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8764. Plaintiff Scott Lewis is an individual residing in Oregon. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8765. Plaintiff Leondre Lincoln is an individual residing in Oregon. Lincoln worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lincoln has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lincoln has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8766. Plaintiff Joshua Lopez is an individual residing in Hawaii. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8767. Plaintiff Andre Magana is an individual residing in Washington. Magana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Magana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Magana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8768. Plaintiff Brent Marr is an individual residing in Oregon. Marr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8769. Plaintiff Danielle Mccalmon is an individual residing in Oregon. Mccalmon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccalmon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccalmon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8770. Plaintiff Kris Mccalmon is an individual residing in Oregon. Mccalmon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccalmon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccalmon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8771. Plaintiff Joshua Mccarty is an individual residing in Washington. Mccarty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8772. Plaintiff Marcelino Mendoza is an individual residing in Oregon. Mendoza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendoza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendoza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8773. Plaintiff Lynn Midkiff is an individual residing in Oregon. Midkiff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Midkiff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Midkiff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8774. Plaintiff Adam Miller is an individual residing in Oregon. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8775. Plaintiff Eric Minney is an individual residing in Oregon. Minney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Minney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Minney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8776. Plaintiff Gabriel Mischke is an individual residing in Washington. Mischke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mischke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mischke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8777. Plaintiff Jerin Ratledge is an individual residing in Oregon. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8778. Plaintiff Bradley Monson is an individual residing in Oregon. Monson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Monson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8779. Plaintiff Elizabeth Montague is an individual residing in Oregon. Montague worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montague has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montague has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8780. Plaintiff Ricci Montgomery is an individual residing in Washington. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8781. Plaintiff Trey Morgan is an individual residing in Oregon. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8782. Plaintiff David Morris is an individual residing in Oregon. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8783. Plaintiff Kelly Morrison is an individual residing in Washington. Morrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8784. Plaintiff Fernando Nolasco Jr. is an individual residing in Oregon. Nolasco Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nolasco Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nolasco Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8785. Plaintiff Kevin North is an individual residing in Oregon. North worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. North has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because North has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8786. Plaintiff Steven Nybroten is an individual residing in Washington. Nybroten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nybroten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nybroten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8787. Plaintiff Nicole Palumbo is an individual residing in Oregon. Palumbo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palumbo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palumbo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8788. Plaintiff Kristi Patterson is an individual residing in Oregon. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8789. Plaintiff J. Peralta is an individual residing in Oregon. Peralta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peralta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peralta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8790. Plaintiff Rhonda Pierson is an individual residing in Oregon. Pierson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 1900 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8791. Plaintiff Alan Roche is an individual residing in Oregon. Roche worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roche has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roche has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8792. Plaintiff Felix Roldan is an individual residing in Oregon. Roldan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roldan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roldan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8793. Plaintiff James Roswell is an individual residing in Oregon. Roswell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roswell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roswell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8794. Plaintiff Brian Salvey is an individual residing in Oregon. Salvey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salvey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salvey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8795. Plaintiff Francisco Sanchez is an individual residing in Oregon. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8796. Plaintiff Santiago Sanchez is an individual residing in Oregon. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8797. Plaintiff Jesus Sapien is an individual residing in Oregon. Sapien worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sapien has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sapien has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8798. Plaintiff Ryan Schmutzer is an individual residing in Arizona. Schmutzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schmutzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schmutzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8799. Plaintiff Roscoe Shorey is an individual residing in Washington. Shorey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shorey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shorey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8800. Plaintiff Chris Simms is an individual residing in Washington. Simms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8801. Plaintiff Paul Smith is an individual residing in Oregon. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8802. Plaintiff Russell Smith is an individual residing in Oregon. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8803. Plaintiff Cody Smith is an individual residing in Oregon. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8804. Plaintiff Ernesto Diaz is an individual residing in Oregon. Srey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Srey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Srey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8805. Plaintiff Wesley Stanley is an individual residing in Oregon. Stanley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stanley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stanley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8806. Plaintiff Mikale Stewart is an individual residing in Texas. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8807. Plaintiff Zachery Stobel is an individual residing in Washington. Stobel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stobel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stobel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8808. Plaintiff Curtis Larson is an individual residing in Oregon. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8809. Plaintiff Randall Strub is an individual residing in Oregon. Strub worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 1996 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strub has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strub has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8810. Plaintiff Richard Surrey is an individual residing in Oregon. Surrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Surrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Surrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8811. Plaintiff Keyvan Tahmaseb is an individual residing in Oregon. Tahmaseb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tahmaseb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tahmaseb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8812. Plaintiff Jason Tavernia is an individual residing in Oregon. Tavernia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavernia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavernia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8813. Plaintiff Matthew Taylor is an individual residing in Washington. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8814. Plaintiff Joseph Terry is an individual residing in Oregon. Terry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Terry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Terry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8815. Plaintiff Andrew Tkach is an individual residing in Washington. Tkach worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tkach has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tkach has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8816. Plaintiff Keith Vega is an individual residing in Oregon. Vega worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vega has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vega has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8817. Plaintiff Brandy Vicari is an individual residing in Oregon. Vicari worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vicari has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vicari has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8818. Plaintiff Jordan Villamor is an individual residing in Oregon. Villamor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villamor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villamor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8819. Plaintiff Erick Warren is an individual residing in Oregon. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8820. Plaintiff Timothy Warren is an individual residing in Oregon. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8821. Plaintiff Edward West is an individual residing in Oregon. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8822. Plaintiff Rene Wiffin is an individual residing in Oregon. Wiffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8823. Plaintiff Bryan Wiley is an individual residing in Oregon. Wiley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8824. Plaintiff Robert Wilson is an individual residing in Oregon. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8825. Plaintiff Darin Woods is an individual residing in Oregon. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8826. Plaintiff Ian Woods is an individual residing in Oregon. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Oregon from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8827. Plaintiff Hani Abdel-Karim is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Abdel-Karim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2002 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abdel-Karim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abdel-Karim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8828. Plaintiff Hussein Abdul-Wahhab is an individual residing in Maryland. Abdul-Wahhab worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abdul-Wahhab has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abdul-Wahhab has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8829. Plaintiff Som Acharya is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Acharya worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Acharya has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Acharya has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8830. Plaintiff Benjamin Acors is an individual residing in West Virginia. Acors worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Acors has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Acors has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8831. Plaintiff Donovan Adamson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Adamson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adamson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adamson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8832. Plaintiff Steven Aloia is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Aloia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aloia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aloia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8833. Plaintiff Shakeera Alston is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Alston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8834. Plaintiff Prince Alston is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Alston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8835. Plaintiff Esteban Alvarez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Alvarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8836. Plaintiff Joshua Anthony is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Anthony worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anthony has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anthony has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8837. Plaintiff Thomas Anton is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Anton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8838. Plaintiff Lisa Arndt is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Arndt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arndt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arndt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8839. Plaintiff Bernie Ashenfelter is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ashenfelter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Ashenfelter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ashenfelter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8840. Plaintiff Joevan Atwood is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Atwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Atwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Atwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8841. Plaintiff Jose Aviles Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Aviles Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aviles Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aviles Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8842. Plaintiff Derrek Ayers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ayers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8843. Plaintiff Christopher Babcock is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Babcock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Babcock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Babcock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8844. Plaintiff Christopher Bailey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8845. Plaintiff Erica Bailey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8846. Plaintiff Asif Baksh is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Baksh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baksh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baksh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8847. Plaintiff Mark Balcerzak is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Balcerzak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Balcerzak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Balcerzak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8848. Plaintiff Travis Ballard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ballard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8849. Plaintiff Tyree Ballard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ballard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8850. Plaintiff David Ballew is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ballew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8851. Plaintiff Eugene Banks is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8852. Plaintiff Robert Barnes is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8853. Plaintiff Ralph Bartlett is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bartlett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bartlett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bartlett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8854. Plaintiff Matthew Beavers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Beavers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beavers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beavers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8855. Plaintiff Evan Beeson is an individual residing in Delaware. Beeson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beeson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beeson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8856. Plaintiff Thomas Berardi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Berardi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berardi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berardi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8857. Plaintiff Richard Bernard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bernard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bernard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bernard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8858. Plaintiff Scotty Bernard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bernard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bernard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bernard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8859. Plaintiff Steven Biggs is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Biggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Biggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Biggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8860. Plaintiff Kevin Booker is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Booker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Booker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Booker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8861. Plaintiff Salahu Bouraima is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bouraima worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bouraima has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bouraima has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8862. Plaintiff Pamela Bouvy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bouvy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bouvy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bouvy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8863. Plaintiff Billie Bowery is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bowery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8864. Plaintiff Stewart Boyes is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Boyes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8865. Plaintiff Beth Brady is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brady worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brady has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brady has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8866. Plaintiff Steven Brandstatter is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brandstatter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brandstatter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brandstatter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8867. Plaintiff Robert Bretz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Bretz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bretz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bretz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8868. Plaintiff Joshua Briancesco is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Briancesco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Briancesco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Briancesco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8869. Plaintiff Theodore Brocious is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brocious worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brocious has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brocious has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8870. Plaintiff Sherine Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8871. Plaintiff Jerrod Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8872. Plaintiff Zackery Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8873. Plaintiff Niya Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8874. Plaintiff Brian Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8875. Plaintiff Chanel Brummell is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brummell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brummell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brummell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8876. Plaintiff Michael Burke is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Burke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2006 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8877. Plaintiff Stephen Burkhardt is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Burkhardt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burkhardt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burkhardt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8878. Plaintiff Keith Burrell is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Burrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8879. Plaintiff Sean Byrne is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Byrne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Byrne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Byrne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8880. Plaintiff Jose Caba Colon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Caba Colon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caba Colon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caba Colon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8881. Plaintiff Daniel Cabrera is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cabrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8882. Plaintiff Lindon Caesar is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Caesar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caesar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caesar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8883. Plaintiff Brandon Cagey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cagey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cagey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cagey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8884. Plaintiff James Callahan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Callahan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Callahan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Callahan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8885. Plaintiff David Campbell is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8886. Plaintiff Robert Cancel is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cancel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cancel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cancel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8887. Plaintiff Phillip Carey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Carey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8888. Plaintiff Dennis Caridi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Caridi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caridi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caridi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8889. Plaintiff Chimar Carlisle-Rodgers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Carlisle-Rodgers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlisle-Rodgers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlisle-Rodgers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8890. Plaintiff Mitch Cassata is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cassata worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cassata has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cassata has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8891. Plaintiff Leonardo Castillo is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8892. Plaintiff Paul Cavaliere is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cavaliere worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cavaliere has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cavaliere has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8893. Plaintiff Craig Ceccacci is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ceccacci worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ceccacci has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ceccacci has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8894. Plaintiff Joshua Chambers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8895. Plaintiff Sirena Chaplin is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Chaplin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chaplin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chaplin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8896. Plaintiff Timothy Cherry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cherry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cherry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cherry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8897. Plaintiff Matthew Chesson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Chesson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chesson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chesson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8898. Plaintiff George Chinchay is an individual residing in New Jersey. Chinchay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chinchay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chinchay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8899. Plaintiff Jim-Var Churchville is an individual residing in Delaware. Churchville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Churchville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Churchville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8900. Plaintiff Keegan Ciccozzi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ciccozzi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ciccozzi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ciccozzi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8901. Plaintiff David Cid is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8902. Plaintiff Bruce Clark is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8903. Plaintiff Tameka Cleveland is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cleveland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cleveland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cleveland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8904. Plaintiff Daniel Clohessey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Clohessey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clohessey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clohessey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8905. Plaintiff Amir Colder is an individual residing in Delaware. Colder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8906. Plaintiff Matthew Cole is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8907. Plaintiff James Collins is an individual residing in South Carolina. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8908. Plaintiff Philip Conrad is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Conrad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conrad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conrad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8909. Plaintiff Marian Conti is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Conti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8910. Plaintiff Nicholas Corcoran is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Corcoran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corcoran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corcoran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8911. Plaintiff Christopher Cordovano is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cordovano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordovano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordovano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8912. Plaintiff Bryon Cosentine is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cosentine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cosentine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cosentine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8913. Plaintiff Jesse Crawford is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8914. Plaintiff Tracy Culbert is an individual residing in Delaware. Culbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Culbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Culbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8915. Plaintiff Eric Cullins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cullins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cullins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cullins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8916. Plaintiff Jamal Cummings is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cummings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cummings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cummings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8917. Plaintiff Kenneth Cunningham is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8918. Plaintiff Dennis Cupp is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Cupp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cupp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cupp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8919. Plaintiff Tyrone Dale is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8920. Plaintiff William Dankwa is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dankwa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dankwa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dankwa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8921. Plaintiff Donald Davies is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Davies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8922. Plaintiff Erick Davila is an individual residing in New Jersey. Davila worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davila has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davila has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8923. Plaintiff Jason Davis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8924. Plaintiff Jared Davis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8925. Plaintiff Terrell Davis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8926. Plaintiff Mark Davis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8927. Plaintiff Kevin Dawson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8928. Plaintiff Michael Day is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Day worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Day has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Day has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8929. Plaintiff Brian Decker is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Decker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Decker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Decker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8930. Plaintiff Scott Delaney is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Delaney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delaney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delaney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8931. Plaintiff Manuel Delvalle is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Delvalle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delvalle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delvalle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8932. Plaintiff Jason Deramo is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Deramo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deramo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deramo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8933. Plaintiff De Devine is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Devine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Devine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Devine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8934. Plaintiff Robert Didomenico is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Didomenico worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Didomenico has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Didomenico has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8935. Plaintiff Matthew Dietz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dietz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dietz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dietz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8936. Plaintiff William Dillon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dillon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dillon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dillon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8937. Plaintiff Sarina Dixon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8938. Plaintiff Gregory Dixon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8939. Plaintiff Douglas Dolan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dolan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dolan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dolan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8940. Plaintiff Mark Dombeck is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dombeck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dombeck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dombeck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8941. Plaintiff Colin Dougherty is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dougherty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dougherty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dougherty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8942. Plaintiff William Driscoll is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Driscoll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Driscoll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Driscoll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8943. Plaintiff Douglas Drwal is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Drwal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drwal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drwal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8944. Plaintiff Brandon Duncan is an individual residing in Georgia. Duncan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duncan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duncan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8945. Plaintiff James Dundas is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Dundas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dundas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dundas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8946. Plaintiff Anderson Duran is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Duran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8947. Plaintiff Jenderson Duran is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Duran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8948. Plaintiff Renee Durante is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Durante worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Durante has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Durante has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8949. Plaintiff Daniel Durso is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Durso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Durso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Durso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8950. Plaintiff Erica Duvall is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Duvall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duvall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duvall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8951. Plaintiff Jaleel Edwards is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8952. Plaintiff Dennis Egan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Egan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Egan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Egan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8953. Plaintiff James Egglinger is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Egglinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Egglinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Egglinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8954. Plaintiff Kenneth Eleam is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Eleam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eleam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eleam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8955. Plaintiff Prince Ellis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8956. Plaintiff Deen Ersin is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ersin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ersin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ersin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8957. Plaintiff Mina Essa is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Essa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Essa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Essa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8958. Plaintiff Paige Evans is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8959. Plaintiff Johanan Fabian Vicioso is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Fabian Vicioso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fabian Vicioso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fabian Vicioso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8960. Plaintiff Marc Falco is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Falco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Falco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Falco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8961. Plaintiff Duwayne Farrar is an individual residing in Virginia. Farrar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farrar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farrar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8962. Plaintiff Brian Feinberg is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Feinberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feinberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feinberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8963. Plaintiff Manuel Feliz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Feliz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feliz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feliz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8964. Plaintiff Michael Feltman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Feltman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feltman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feltman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8965. Plaintiff Irvin Ferebee is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ferebee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferebee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferebee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8966. Plaintiff Dillon Foringer is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Foringer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foringer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foringer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8967. Plaintiff Erik Fortson is an individual residing in Florida. Fortson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fortson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fortson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8968. Plaintiff Robert Fowler is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Fowler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fowler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fowler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8969. Plaintiff Rita Fox is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Fox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8970. Plaintiff Todd Frey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Frey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1990 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8971. Plaintiff James Fuller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Fuller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8972. Plaintiff Brynn Gable is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gable worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gable has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gable has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8973. Plaintiff Stephen Gafford is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gafford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gafford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gafford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8974. Plaintiff Thomas Galonsky is an individual residing in Florida. Galonsky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Galonsky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Galonsky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8975. Plaintiff William Gardner is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gardner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gardner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gardner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8976. Plaintiff Michael Gazica is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gazica worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gazica has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gazica has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8977. Plaintiff Matt Gearhart is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gearhart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gearhart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gearhart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8978. Plaintiff Alina Gerlicz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gerlicz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gerlicz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gerlicz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8979. Plaintiff Matthew Gibbons is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gibbons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8980. Plaintiff Joshua Gibbs is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8981. Plaintiff Frank Goldcamp is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Goldcamp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Goldcamp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goldcamp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8982. Plaintiff Nehemias Gonzalez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8983. Plaintiff Nicholes Gonzalez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8984. Plaintiff Douglas Goodwin is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Goodwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8985. Plaintiff Dashan Gordon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8986. Plaintiff Andrew Gorzynski is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gorzynski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gorzynski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gorzynski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8987. Plaintiff Jairius Grant is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8988. Plaintiff Cuan Grant is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8989. Plaintiff Mike Gressley is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Gressley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gressley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gressley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8990. Plaintiff Effen Wilson Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8991. Plaintiff Brendan Griffin is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8992. Plaintiff Ed Grim is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Grim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8993. Plaintiff Edward Guy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Guy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8994. Plaintiff H Hall is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8995. Plaintiff George Hammer is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hammer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hammer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hammer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8996. Plaintiff John Hanna is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hanna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8997. Plaintiff Kevin Hannahs is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hannahs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hannahs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hannahs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8998. Plaintiff William Hanzely is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hanzely worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanzely has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanzely has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8999. Plaintiff Robert Harris is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9000. Plaintiff Rich Harrison is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9001. Plaintiff Ryan Hartung is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hartung worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hartung has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hartung has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9002. Plaintiff Evan Hasley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hasley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hasley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hasley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9003. Plaintiff Leighton Hawkins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9004. Plaintiff Lisa Heeter is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Heeter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heeter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heeter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9005. Plaintiff Timothy Heil is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Heil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9006. Plaintiff Troy Heitzenrater is an individual residing in Ohio. Heitzenrater worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heitzenrater has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heitzenrater has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9007. Plaintiff Brandon Hemelgarn is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hemelgarn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hemelgarn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hemelgarn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9008. Plaintiff Andrew Henderson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9009. Plaintiff Robert Henry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9010. Plaintiff Michael Henry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2000 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9011. Plaintiff Andre Henry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9012. Plaintiff Michael Henry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9013. Plaintiff Austin High is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. High worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. High has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because High has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9014. Plaintiff Robert Hillegas is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hillegas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1993 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hillegas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hillegas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9015. Plaintiff Richard Hoag is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hoag worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1999 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoag has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoag has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9016. Plaintiff Caitlin Hoban is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hoban worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoban has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoban has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9017. Plaintiff Johnathan Hodges is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hodges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hodges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hodges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9018. Plaintiff Cody Holtz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Holtz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holtz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holtz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9019. Plaintiff Timothy Howley is an individual residing in New Jersey. Howley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9020. Plaintiff Stephen Hricik is an individual residing in Colorado. Hricik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hricik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hricik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9021. Plaintiff Duane Huckstep is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Huckstep worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huckstep has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huckstep has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9022. Plaintiff Christopher Hudy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hudy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9023. Plaintiff Lonnie Hunsicker is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hunsicker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunsicker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunsicker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9024. Plaintiff Christopher Hunter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hunter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9025. Plaintiff Thomas Hurley is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hurley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hurley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hurley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9026. Plaintiff Gregory Hurley is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hurley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hurley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hurley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9027. Plaintiff Dana Huskins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Huskins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huskins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huskins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9028. Plaintiff Edward Hyatt Jr is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hyatt Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hyatt Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hyatt Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9029. Plaintiff Yousef Ifraiwan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ifraiwan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ifraiwan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ifraiwan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9030. Plaintiff Daniel Isajiw is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Isajiw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2003 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isajiw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isajiw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9031. Plaintiff Roman Isayev is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Isayev worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isayev has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isayev has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9032. Plaintiff Robert Jackson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9033. Plaintiff Timothy Jackson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9034. Plaintiff James Jackson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9035. Plaintiff Christopher Jacques is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jacques worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jacques has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jacques has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9036. Plaintiff Ryan Jagel is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jagel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jagel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jagel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9037. Plaintiff Michael James is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9038. Plaintiff Anthony Jaskulski is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jaskulski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jaskulski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jaskulski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9039. Plaintiff Raymond Jelley is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9040. Plaintiff Robin Jenkins is an individual residing in Virginia. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9041. Plaintiff Jermel Jenkins is an individual residing in New Jersey. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9042. Plaintiff Juan Jimenez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jimenez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jimenez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jimenez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9043. Plaintiff Kevin Johns is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Johns worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johns has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johns has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9044. Plaintiff Dana Johnson, Sr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9045. Plaintiff Eric Johnson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9046. Plaintiff Danielle Johnson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9047. Plaintiff Adam Johnston is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Johnston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9048. Plaintiff Donovan Jones is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9049. Plaintiff Robert Jones is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9050. Plaintiff Shaborn Jones-Wingate is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Jones-Wingate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones-Wingate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones-Wingate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9051. Plaintiff Frank Kamine is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kamine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kamine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kamine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9052. Plaintiff Eric Kane is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9053. Plaintiff Kenneth Kanouff is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kanouff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kanouff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kanouff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9054. Plaintiff Eiad Kassis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kassis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kassis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kassis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9055. Plaintiff Thomas Kelly is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9056. Plaintiff Donald Kemmerling is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kemmerling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kemmerling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kemmerling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9057. Plaintiff Richard Kennedy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kennedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9058. Plaintiff Bradley Ketterman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ketterman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ketterman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ketterman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9059. Plaintiff Kumar Kharel is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kharel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kharel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kharel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9060. Plaintiff Justin Kimbrough is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kimbrough worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kimbrough has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kimbrough has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9061. Plaintiff Gordon King is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9062. Plaintiff Donald King is an individual residing in Florida. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9063. Plaintiff John Kircher is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kircher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kircher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kircher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9064. Plaintiff John Kitchin Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kitchin Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kitchin Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kitchin Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9065. Plaintiff Anthony Klemunes is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Klemunes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klemunes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klemunes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9066. Plaintiff Joel Klinedinst is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Klinedinst worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klinedinst has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klinedinst has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9067. Plaintiff Ryan Knowlton is an individual residing in New York. Knowlton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Knowlton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knowlton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9068. Plaintiff William Knuth is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Knuth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knuth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knuth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9069. Plaintiff Barry Koehler is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Koehler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koehler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koehler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9070. Plaintiff Edis Kostic is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Kostic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kostic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kostic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9071. Plaintiff Almalik Laboo is an individual residing in New Jersey. Laboo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laboo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laboo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9072. Plaintiff Michael Lambert is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lambert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9073. Plaintiff Ronald Landon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Landon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Landon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Landon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9074. Plaintiff Joseph Lassick is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lassick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lassick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lassick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9075. Plaintiff Brandon Latham is an individual residing in Tennessee. Latham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Latham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Latham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9076. Plaintiff Nicole Lavery is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lavery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lavery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lavery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9077. Plaintiff Daryl Lawrence is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9078. Plaintiff Lawrence Laws is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Laws worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laws has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laws has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9079. Plaintiff Patricia Laws is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Laws worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laws has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laws has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9080. Plaintiff Timothy Leach is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Leach worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leach has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leach has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9081. Plaintiff Takara Leath is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Leath worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leath has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leath has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9082. Plaintiff Roseanne Lee is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9083. Plaintiff Mary Leicher is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Leicher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leicher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leicher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9084. Plaintiff Ruddy Leonor Severino is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Leonor Severino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leonor Severino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leonor Severino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9085. Plaintiff Anna Levier is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Levier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9086. Plaintiff Mary Lewis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9087. Plaintiff James Liney is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Liney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1997 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Liney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Liney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9088. Plaintiff George Liptak Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Liptak Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Liptak Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Liptak Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9089. Plaintiff Brian Lombardi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lombardi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lombardi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lombardi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9090. Plaintiff Orlando Lopez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9091. Plaintiff Rosana Lopez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9092. Plaintiff Robert Lopez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9093. Plaintiff Andrew Lucas is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lucas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1994 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lucas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lucas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9094. Plaintiff Richard Luce is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Luce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2003 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9095. Plaintiff Daniel Lugo Dejesus is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lugo Dejesus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lugo Dejesus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lugo Dejesus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9096. Plaintiff Elizabeth Lynott is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lynott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9097. Plaintiff Iouri Lyssenko is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lyssenko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyssenko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyssenko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9098. Plaintiff Dennis Machuca is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Machuca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Machuca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Machuca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9099. Plaintiff Tim Mackowski is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mackowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mackowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mackowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9100. Plaintiff Gerardo Maldonado Perez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Maldonado Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maldonado Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maldonado Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9101. Plaintiff David Malickson is an individual residing in New Jersey. Malickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9102. Plaintiff Patrick Malloy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Malloy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malloy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malloy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9103. Plaintiff Stephen Malone is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Malone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9104. Plaintiff Anthony Manganaro is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Manganaro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manganaro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manganaro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9105. Plaintiff David Mankey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mankey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mankey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mankey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9106. Plaintiff Tyler Miller is an individual residing in Virginia. Marbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9107. Plaintiff Danielle Marinakies is an individual residing in Delaware. Marinakies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marinakies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marinakies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9108. Plaintiff Miljan Markovic is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Markovic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Markovic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Markovic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9109. Plaintiff Jason Martin is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9110. Plaintiff Kyle Mayan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mayan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9111. Plaintiff Michael McClain is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. McClain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2001 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McClain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McClain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9112. Plaintiff Dale Mccoy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mccoy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccoy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccoy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9113. Plaintiff Kareem Mcfarlane is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mcfarlane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcfarlane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcfarlane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9114. Plaintiff John Mclean is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mclean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9115. Plaintiff John McNutt is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. McNutt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McNutt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McNutt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9116. Plaintiff Mark Meas is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Meas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9117. Plaintiff Ronald Mehalco is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mehalco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mehalco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mehalco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9118. Plaintiff Jesus Mendez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9119. Plaintiff Nathan Michaels is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Michaels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Michaels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Michaels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9120. Plaintiff Gary Mielnik is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mielnik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mielnik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mielnik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9121. Plaintiff Dale Mikolaczyk is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mikolaczyk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mikolaczyk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mikolaczyk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9122. Plaintiff Duane Miller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9123. Plaintiff Shawn Miller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9124. Plaintiff Mark Miller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2000 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9125. Plaintiff Tyler Miller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9126. Plaintiff Steven Miner is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Miner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9127. Plaintiff Souod Mohammad-Hammad is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mohammad-Hammad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mohammad-Hammad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mohammad-Hammad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9128. Plaintiff Daniel Moletz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Moletz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moletz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moletz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9129. Plaintiff Robert Montgomery is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9130. Plaintiff Patrick Suszynski is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1999 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9131. Plaintiff Dennis Morgan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9132. Plaintiff Richard Moskola is an individual residing in Florida. Moskola worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moskola has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moskola has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9133. Plaintiff Jabril Motes is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Motes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Motes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Motes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9134. Plaintiff Robert Muldowney Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Muldowney Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muldowney Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muldowney Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9135. Plaintiff William Mulhern is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mulhern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mulhern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mulhern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9136. Plaintiff Jerome Mullen is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mullen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mullen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mullen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9137. Plaintiff Robert Nagy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nagy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nagy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nagy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9138. Plaintiff Jahne Nangle is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nangle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nangle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nangle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9139. Plaintiff Julio Navarro is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Navarro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Navarro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Navarro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9140. Plaintiff Katelyn Navarro is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Navarro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Navarro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Navarro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9141. Plaintiff Joseph Nelligan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nelligan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelligan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelligan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9142. Plaintiff Daniel Nelson is an individual residing in Virginia. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9143. Plaintiff Darko Nikolic is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nikolic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nikolic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nikolic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9144. Plaintiff Wyatt Niper is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Niper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Niper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Niper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9145. Plaintiff Joshua Nolan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nolan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nolan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nolan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9146. Plaintiff Tyrese Norris is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Norris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9147. Plaintiff Christopher Novak is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Novak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Novak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Novak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9148. Plaintiff Sue Oberg is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Oberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9149. Plaintiff Randy Orlando is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Orlando worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Orlando has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Orlando has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9150. Plaintiff Barry Orourke is an individual residing in Tennessee. Orourke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Orourke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Orourke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9151. Plaintiff Shawn Oshea is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Oshea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oshea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oshea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9152. Plaintiff Billy Overton is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Overton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Overton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Overton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9153. Plaintiff Robert Owens is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9154. Plaintiff James Owens is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9155. Plaintiff Tony Pace is an individual residing in Ohio. Pace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9156. Plaintiff Karen Pallist is an individual residing in Illinois. Pallist worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pallist has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pallist has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9157. Plaintiff Joe Palombi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Palombi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1990 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palombi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palombi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9158. Plaintiff Melanie Pappasergi is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pappasergi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pappasergi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pappasergi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9159. Plaintiff Gerald Parnell is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Parnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9160. Plaintiff Richard Pasqualle is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pasqualle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pasqualle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pasqualle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9161. Plaintiff Patrick Patrick is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Patrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9162. Plaintiff Christopher Patton is an individual residing in West Virginia. Patton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9163. Plaintiff Daniel Paulton is an individual residing in Florida. Paulton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paulton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paulton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9164. Plaintiff Corey Pentz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pentz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pentz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pentz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9165. Plaintiff Neftaly Perales is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Perales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9166. Plaintiff David Perez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9167. Plaintiff Christopher Pesotine is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pesotine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pesotine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pesotine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9168. Plaintiff Joseph Peterman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Peterman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peterman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peterman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9169. Plaintiff David Peters is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Peters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9170. Plaintiff Jacklinn Peters is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Peters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9171. Plaintiff Thomas Petersen is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Petersen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petersen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petersen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9172. Plaintiff Glenn Pew is an individual residing in Florida. Pew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9173. Plaintiff Kelly Pharr is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pharr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pharr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pharr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9174. Plaintiff Eric Pierce is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pierce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9175. Plaintiff Daevon Pinnix is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pinnix worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinnix has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinnix has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9176. Plaintiff Kevin Pletz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pletz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pletz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pletz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9177. Plaintiff Jared Podroskey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Podroskey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Podroskey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Podroskey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9178. Plaintiff Brian Agosto is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9179. Plaintiff Donovan Purcell is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Purcell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Purcell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Purcell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9180. Plaintiff Patricia Quarato is an individual residing in Virginia. Quarato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quarato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quarato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9181. Plaintiff Philip Quinlan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Quinlan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quinlan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quinlan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9182. Plaintiff Carlos Quinones is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Quinones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quinones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quinones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9183. Plaintiff Chastity Quinones-Veanus is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Quinones-Veanus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quinones-Veanus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quinones-Veanus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9184. Plaintiff Rosemary Ransom is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ransom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ransom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ransom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9185. Plaintiff Brian Rathosky is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rathosky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rathosky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rathosky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9186. Plaintiff Nathan Raudabaugh is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Raudabaugh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Raudabaugh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Raudabaugh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9187. Plaintiff Thomas Rearick is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rearick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rearick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rearick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9188. Plaintiff Zach Reichl is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Reichl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reichl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reichl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9189. Plaintiff Stephen Rice is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rice worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rice has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rice has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9190. Plaintiff Chad Richards is an individual residing in New Jersey. Richards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9191. Plaintiff Quincy Richardson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9192. Plaintiff Ronald Richburg is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Richburg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richburg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richburg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9193. Plaintiff Kevin Richie is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Richie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9194. Plaintiff Alexis Rider is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9195. Plaintiff Randall Riggs is an individual residing in West Virginia. Riggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9196. Plaintiff William Cox is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ritter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9197. Plaintiff Nathan Ritter is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ritter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9198. Plaintiff David Roberson is an individual residing in Delaware. Roberson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9199. Plaintiff George Roberts is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9200. Plaintiff Shawn Robinson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9201. Plaintiff Tyler Robinson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9202. Plaintiff Alvin Rodgers is an individual residing in Ohio. Rodgers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodgers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodgers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9203. Plaintiff Christopher Rodrigues is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rodrigues worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodrigues has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodrigues has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9204. Plaintiff Nicholas Rodrigues is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rodrigues worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Rodrigues has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodrigues has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9205. Plaintiff Michael Rodriguez is an individual residing in Florida. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9206. Plaintiff Luis Rodriguez is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9207. Plaintiff Leon Rohrmann is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rohrmann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rohrmann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rohrmann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9208. Plaintiff Alexander Root is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Root worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Root has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Root has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9209. Plaintiff Ryan Ropraz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ropraz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ropraz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ropraz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9210. Plaintiff Luis Rosado is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rosado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9211. Plaintiff Victoria Rosario is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rosario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9212. Plaintiff Jim Rouda is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rouda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rouda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rouda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9213. Plaintiff Michael Roy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Roy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9214. Plaintiff Utkir Rozikov is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rozikov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rozikov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rozikov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9215. Plaintiff Robert Rozniata is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rozniata worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rozniata has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rozniata has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9216. Plaintiff Justin Rupp is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rupp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rupp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rupp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9217. Plaintiff Reece Ruscella is an individual residing in Florida. Ruscella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruscella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruscella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9218. Plaintiff Dauda Saccoh is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Saccoh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saccoh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saccoh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9219. Plaintiff Richard Sakosky is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sakosky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sakosky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sakosky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9220. Plaintiff Anthony Salvio is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Salvio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salvio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salvio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9221. Plaintiff Nikola Samardzija is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Samardzija worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samardzija has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samardzija has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9222. Plaintiff Virginia Sanderson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sanderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9223. Plaintiff Edward Sanford is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sanford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9224. Plaintiff Raymond Sanford is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sanford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9225. Plaintiff Mohammad Sarwar is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sarwar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sarwar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sarwar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9226. Plaintiff Donald Savic is an individual residing in Nevada. Savic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9227. Plaintiff Anthony Sawh is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sawh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sawh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sawh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9228. Plaintiff Oliver Sayre is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sayre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania and Maryland from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sayre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sayre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9229. Plaintiff Christopher Schibler is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Schibler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schibler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schibler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9230. Plaintiff Drew Schifino is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Schifino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schifino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schifino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9231. Plaintiff Anthony Scipione is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Scipione worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scipione has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scipione has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9232. Plaintiff Craig Scott is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9233. Plaintiff Eddy Shafer is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shafer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shafer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shafer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9234. Plaintiff Pierre Shakif is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shakif worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shakif has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shakif has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9235. Plaintiff Brady Sheffer is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sheffer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheffer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheffer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9236. Plaintiff Ashlee Shirley is an individual residing in New York. Shirley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shirley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shirley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9237. Plaintiff Jeffrey Shotts is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shotts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shotts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shotts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9238. Plaintiff Brian Shreve is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shreve worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1900 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shreve has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shreve has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9239. Plaintiff Brian Shunk is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shunk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shunk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shunk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9240. Plaintiff David Shuster is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shuster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shuster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shuster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9241. Plaintiff Bryce Simmons is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9242. Plaintiff Andrew Simon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Simon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9243. Plaintiff Damon Sisco is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sisco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sisco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sisco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9244. Plaintiff Gary Slaboda is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Slaboda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaboda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaboda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9245. Plaintiff Brian Slaboda is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Slaboda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaboda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaboda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9246. Plaintiff Zachery Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9247. Plaintiff Khalil Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9248. Plaintiff Jessica Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9249. Plaintiff Alexander Smith is an individual residing in Delaware. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9250. Plaintiff Jacob Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9251. Plaintiff Jason Smith Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9252. Plaintiff Shane Snowden is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Snowden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snowden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snowden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9253. Plaintiff Eric Snyder is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9254. Plaintiff Douglas Snyder is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9255. Plaintiff Christopher Sofia is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sofia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sofia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sofia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9256. Plaintiff Rick Soulliard is an individual residing in Georgia. Soulliard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soulliard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soulliard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9257. Plaintiff Alicia Spangler is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Spangler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spangler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spangler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9258. Plaintiff Marvin Sparks Jr is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sparks Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparks Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparks Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9259. Plaintiff Joseph Spivey is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Spivey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spivey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spivey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9260. Plaintiff Joshua Springer is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Springer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Springer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Springer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9261. Plaintiff James Staggers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Staggers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staggers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staggers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9262. Plaintiff David Stampo is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stampo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stampo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stampo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9263. Plaintiff Steven Stead is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9264. Plaintiff Timothy Stevens is an individual residing in Georgia. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9265. Plaintiff Dominic Stinnett is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stinnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stinnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stinnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9266. Plaintiff Alfred Stoddard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stoddard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stoddard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stoddard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9267. Plaintiff Antonio Stone is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9268. Plaintiff Daniel Stone is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9269. Plaintiff Jamil Strickland is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Strickland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strickland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strickland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9270. Plaintiff Timothy Stritzinger is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stritzinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania and New York from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stritzinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stritzinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9271. Plaintiff Tyasia Striver is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Striver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Striver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Striver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9272. Plaintiff Scott Summers is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9273. Plaintiff Nicholas Surfield is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Surfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Surfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Surfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9274. Plaintiff Shawn Suter is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Suter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9275. Plaintiff Malikah Sutton is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Sutton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sutton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sutton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9276. Plaintiff Liam Swanson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Swanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9277. Plaintiff James Takacs is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Takacs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Takacs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Takacs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9278. Plaintiff Daniel Tassone is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tassone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tassone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tassone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9279. Plaintiff Kelvin Tavaréz Gonzalez, Sr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tavaréz Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavaréz Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavaréz Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9280. Plaintiff Ralphie Temarantz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Temarantz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Temarantz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Temarantz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9281. Plaintiff Jeffrey Thomas is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9282. Plaintiff Jeremy McDonald is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9283. Plaintiff Denisha Todd is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Todd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Todd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Todd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9284. Plaintiff Cory Tomsic is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tomsic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomsic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomsic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9285. Plaintiff Thomas Torrance is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Torrance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torrance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torrance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9286. Plaintiff Jeffrey Trainor is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Trainor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trainor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trainor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9287. Plaintiff Joshua Travitz is an individual residing in Maryland. Travitz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Travitz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Travitz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9288. Plaintiff Daniel Trout is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Trout worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trout has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trout has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9289. Plaintiff Brian Tuohy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tuohy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tuohy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tuohy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9290. Plaintiff John Turner is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9291. Plaintiff Lester Van Horn is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Van Horn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Van Horn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Van Horn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9292. Plaintiff Daniel Vest is an individual residing in South Carolina. Vest worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vest has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vest has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9293. Plaintiff Lesley Vineyard is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Vineyard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vineyard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vineyard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9294. Plaintiff Cameron Ward is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9295. Plaintiff Deric Ware is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ware worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ware has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ware has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9296. Plaintiff Francis Warner Iv is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Warner Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9297. Plaintiff Gregory Warren is an individual residing in New Jersey. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9298. Plaintiff Lateef Watson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9299. Plaintiff Kenneth Weaver is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Weaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9300. Plaintiff Kimberly Weaver is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Weaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9301. Plaintiff Kyle Webb is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9302. Plaintiff Leonard Webb II is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Webb II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9303. Plaintiff Ryan Wellman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wellman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wellman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wellman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9304. Plaintiff Nathan Wenrich is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wenrich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wenrich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wenrich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9305. Plaintiff Stephen Wertz is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wertz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wertz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wertz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9306. Plaintiff Edward West is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9307. Plaintiff Sherri Whitman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Whitman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9308. Plaintiff James Whitten is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Whitten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9309. Plaintiff Mark Horst is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wilder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2006 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9310. Plaintiff Benjamin Wilk is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wilk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9311. Plaintiff Nicholas Wilkins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wilkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9312. Plaintiff David Williams is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9313. Plaintiff Clint Wilt is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wilt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9314. Plaintiff Jonathan Wiltraut is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wiltraut worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiltraut has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiltraut has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9315. Plaintiff Charles Wolfe is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wolfe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2000 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wolfe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wolfe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9316. Plaintiff Donald Wombacker Jr. is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wombacker Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wombacker Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wombacker Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9317. Plaintiff Levi Worthington is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Worthington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2001 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Worthington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worthington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9318. Plaintiff Jamir Wright is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9319. Plaintiff Justin Wright is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9320. Plaintiff Molly Yeager is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Yeager worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yeager has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yeager has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9321. Plaintiff Jeffrey Yearick is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Yearick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yearick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yearick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9322. Plaintiff Matt Zech is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Zech worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zech has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zech has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9323. Plaintiff George Zoeckler is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Zoeckler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Pennsylvania from approximately 1995 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zoeckler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zoeckler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9324. Plaintiff Nickolas Abrantes is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Abrantes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abrantes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abrantes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9325. Plaintiff Keith Andrews is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Andrews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andrews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andrews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9326. Plaintiff Antonio Baptista is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Baptista worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baptista has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baptista has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9327. Plaintiff Luis Batista is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Batista worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Batista has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Batista has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9328. Plaintiff Kenny Borges is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Borges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Borges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Borges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9329. Plaintiff Abraham Canario is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Canario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9330. Plaintiff Adonis Collado is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Collado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9331. Plaintiff Nelson Costa is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Costa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Costa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Costa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9332. Plaintiff Kevin Demello is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Demello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9333. Plaintiff Roger Dominguez is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Dominguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dominguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dominguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9334. Plaintiff Joseph Esposito is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Esposito worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Esposito has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Esposito has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9335. Plaintiff Varlindo Estrela is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Estrela worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estrela has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estrela has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9336. Plaintiff Anibal Fonseca is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Fonseca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2003 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fonseca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fonseca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9337. Plaintiff Shane Gilbert is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Gilbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9338. Plaintiff Jonathan Gill is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Gill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9339. Plaintiff Ronald Gilliard is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Gilliard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilliard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilliard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9340. Plaintiff Dmartinious Gooden is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Gooden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gooden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gooden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9341. Plaintiff Nathan Grandchamp is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Grandchamp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grandchamp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grandchamp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9342. Plaintiff William Harpin is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Harpin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harpin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harpin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9343. Plaintiff Robert Manchester is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Manchester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manchester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manchester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9344. Plaintiff Andrew Obrion is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Obrion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Obrion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Obrion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9345. Plaintiff Edson Reyes is an individual residing in New Jersey. Reyes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reyes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reyes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9346. Plaintiff Jonathan Robertson is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9347. Plaintiff Craig Sewall is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Sewall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sewall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sewall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9348. Plaintiff Sandra Smith is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9349. Plaintiff Arthur St. Pierre is an individual residing in Massachusetts. St. Pierre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. St. Pierre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because St. Pierre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9350. Plaintiff Antonio Torres is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9351. Plaintiff Kelly Wilson is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Rhode Island from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9352. Plaintiff Eugene A Viruet is an individual residing in South Carolina. Viruet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Viruet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Viruet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9353. Plaintiff Andre Adams is an individual residing in South Carolina. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9354. Plaintiff Kelly Adams is an individual residing in South Carolina. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina and North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9355. Plaintiff Jacob Allen is an individual residing in South Carolina. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9356. Plaintiff Elizabeth Allen is an individual residing in South Carolina. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9357. Plaintiff Daerol Ancrum is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ancrum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ancrum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ancrum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9358. Plaintiff Takisha Anderson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9359. Plaintiff Darius Anderson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9360. Plaintiff Joseph Armoogam is an individual residing in South Carolina. Armoogam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armoogam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armoogam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9361. Plaintiff Kouassi Assie is an individual residing in North Carolina. Assie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Assie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Assie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9362. Plaintiff Lee Azevedo is an individual residing in South Carolina. Azevedo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Azevedo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Azevedo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9363. Plaintiff Raymond Bagnato is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bagnato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bagnato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bagnato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9364. Plaintiff Anthony Ballenger is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ballenger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballenger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballenger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9365. Plaintiff Wendell Ballew is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ballew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9366. Plaintiff Brett Banchemo is an individual residing in South Carolina. Banchemo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banchemo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banchemo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9367. Plaintiff Cory Barrow is an individual residing in South Carolina. Barrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9368. Plaintiff Todd Bastian is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bastian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bastian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bastian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9369. Plaintiff Robert Beers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Beers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9370. Plaintiff Luther Bells is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9371. Plaintiff Santonia Bennett is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9372. Plaintiff Nathan Bennett is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9373. Plaintiff Shawn Bethea is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bethea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bethea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bethea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9374. Plaintiff Bi Bia is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9375. Plaintiff Recardo Blakney is an individual residing in South Carolina. Blakney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Blakney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blakney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9376. Plaintiff Marcus Bland is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9377. Plaintiff Transon Bookert is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bookert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bookert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bookert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9378. Plaintiff Michael Boozer is an individual residing in South Carolina. Boozer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boozer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boozer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9379. Plaintiff Vendie Borden is an individual residing in South Carolina. Borden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Borden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Borden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9380. Plaintiff Brent Bouton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bouton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bouton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bouton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9381. Plaintiff Christopher Boyd is an individual residing in North Carolina. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9382. Plaintiff Jeffrey Bradberry is an individual residing in South Carolina. Bradberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9383. Plaintiff Chiquita Brannon is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Brannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9384. Plaintiff Debra Brigman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brigman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brigman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brigman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9385. Plaintiff Trarhonda Britt is an individual residing in South Carolina. Britt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Britt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Britt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9386. Plaintiff Walter Brock is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2003 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9387. Plaintiff Tio Brooks is an individual residing in Virginia. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9388. Plaintiff Aric Brown is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9389. Plaintiff Christian Brown is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9390. Plaintiff Jermaine Brown-Young is an individual residing in South Carolina. Brown-Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown-Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown-Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9391. Plaintiff Roxie Burts is an individual residing in South Carolina. Burts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9392. Plaintiff Jalesa Byrd is an individual residing in North Carolina. Byrd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Byrd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Byrd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9393. Plaintiff Shalana Camp is an individual residing in South Carolina. Camp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Camp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Camp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9394. Plaintiff Malcolm Cantey is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cantey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cantey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cantey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9395. Plaintiff Kevin Canty is an individual residing in South Carolina. Canty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9396. Plaintiff Trevor Carman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Carman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9397. Plaintiff David Chacon is an individual residing in Texas. Chacon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chacon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chacon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9398. Plaintiff William Chavis is an individual residing in Florida. Chavis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9399. Plaintiff Kelli Chavis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Chavis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9400. Plaintiff Felicia Cherry is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cherry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cherry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cherry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9401. Plaintiff Brian Clark is an individual residing in South Carolina. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9402. Plaintiff Mae Clemmons is an individual residing in South Carolina. Clemmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clemmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clemmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9403. Plaintiff Walker Cobb is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cobb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cobb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cobb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9404. Plaintiff Joseph Cobbs is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cobbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cobbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cobbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9405. Plaintiff Tilman Cole is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9406. Plaintiff Cavin Coleman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9407. Plaintiff Adrian Conyers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Conyers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conyers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conyers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9408. Plaintiff Kevin Conyers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Conyers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conyers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conyers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9409. Plaintiff Brandon Cox is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9410. Plaintiff Onezean Crawford is an individual residing in South Carolina. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9411. Plaintiff Millicent Crockett is an individual residing in South Carolina. Crockett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crockett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crockett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9412. Plaintiff Lisa Crosby is an individual residing in South Carolina. Crosby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crosby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crosby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9413. Plaintiff Alexis Crowder is an individual residing in Alabama. Crowder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crowder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crowder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9414. Plaintiff Jackson Curtis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Curtis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Curtis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Curtis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9415. Plaintiff Ronald Davis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9416. Plaintiff Clarence Davis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9417. Plaintiff Marcus Dawkins is an individual residing in South Carolina. Dawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9418. Plaintiff Patrick Deaton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Deaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9419. Plaintiff Brandon Deese is an individual residing in North Carolina. Deese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9420. Plaintiff Demetrius Dennis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dennis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dennis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dennis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9421. Plaintiff Christopher Devito is an individual residing in South Carolina. Devito worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Devito has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Devito has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9422. Plaintiff Matthew Difilippo is an individual residing in South Carolina. Difilippo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Difilippo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Difilippo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9423. Plaintiff Courtney Dix is an individual residing in South Carolina. Dix worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dix has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dix has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9424. Plaintiff Doreen Dollison is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dollison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dollison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dollison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9425. Plaintiff Artis Dozier is an individual residing in South Carolina. Dozier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dozier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dozier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9426. Plaintiff Deaqualin Drayton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Drayton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drayton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drayton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9427. Plaintiff Jeffrey Driggers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Driggers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Driggers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Driggers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9428. Plaintiff Reeshema Eaddy is an individual residing in South Carolina. Eaddy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eaddy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eaddy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9429. Plaintiff Gwendolyn Easternwashington is an individual residing in South Carolina. Easternwashington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easternwashington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easternwashington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9430. Plaintiff Bryant Edwards is an individual residing in South Carolina. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9431. Plaintiff William Elm is an individual residing in South Carolina. Elm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9432. Plaintiff Ronald Evins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Evins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9433. Plaintiff Patrice Felder is an individual residing in South Carolina. Felder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 1999 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Felder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Felder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9434. Plaintiff Charles Fields is an individual residing in South Carolina. Fields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9435. Plaintiff Danielle Fiorillo is an individual residing in South Carolina. Fiorillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fiorillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fiorillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9436. Plaintiff Shaun Fitch is an individual residing in South Carolina. Fitch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fitch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fitch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9437. Plaintiff Todd Floyd is an individual residing in South Carolina. Floyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9438. Plaintiff Joe Ford is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9439. Plaintiff Joe Ford Iii is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ford Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9440. Plaintiff Mark Foster is an individual residing in South Carolina. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9441. Plaintiff Leavitrix Frayer is an individual residing in South Carolina. Frayer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frayer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frayer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9442. Plaintiff Michael Frazier is an individual residing in South Carolina. Frazier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Frazier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frazier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9443. Plaintiff Ernestine Gabe is an individual residing in South Carolina. Gabe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gabe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gabe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9444. Plaintiff Demetrius Gamble is an individual residing in South Carolina. Gamble worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gamble has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gamble has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9445. Plaintiff Jeffrey Gecek is an individual residing in Florida. Gecek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gecek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gecek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9446. Plaintiff Jon Gibson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Gibson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9447. Plaintiff Michael Glover is an individual residing in South Carolina. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9448. Plaintiff Karen Godwin is an individual residing in South Carolina. Godwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9449. Plaintiff Dustin Goodman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Goodman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9450. Plaintiff Marquis Gyant is an individual residing in South Carolina. Gyant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gyant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gyant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9451. Plaintiff Michael Hair is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9452. Plaintiff Jonathon Hamlet is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hamlet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamlet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamlet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9453. Plaintiff Jessica Hannaalston is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hannaalston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hannaalston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hannaalston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9454. Plaintiff Sheila Hannah is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hannah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Hannah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hannah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9455. Plaintiff Tyeisha Harmon is an individual residing in Texas. Harmon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harmon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harmon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9456. Plaintiff Stanley Harper is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9457. Plaintiff Shannon Harris is an individual residing in South Carolina. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9458. Plaintiff Michael Harris is an individual residing in South Carolina. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9459. Plaintiff Dante Hatfield is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hatfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hatfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hatfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9460. Plaintiff Jamie Headen is an individual residing in South Carolina. Headen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Headen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Headen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9461. Plaintiff Christopher Hinton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9462. Plaintiff Bobby Holbrooks is an individual residing in South Carolina. Holbrooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holbrooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holbrooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9463. Plaintiff Charlessa Holley is an individual residing in South Carolina. Holley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9464. Plaintiff Antonio Hollis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hollis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9465. Plaintiff Tony House is an individual residing in South Carolina. House worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. House has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because House has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9466. Plaintiff Clarence Howard is an individual residing in South Carolina. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9467. Plaintiff Patrick Huff is an individual residing in South Carolina. Huff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9468. Plaintiff Christopher Huseonica is an individual residing in Georgia. Huseonica worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huseonica has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huseonica has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9469. Plaintiff James Hutchinson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Hutchinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hutchinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hutchinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9470. Plaintiff Shakeniah Irby is an individual residing in South Carolina. Irby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9471. Plaintiff Samuel Isaac is an individual residing in South Carolina. Isaac worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isaac has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isaac has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9472. Plaintiff Kimberlie Isom is an individual residing in South Carolina. Isom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9473. Plaintiff Antquon Jackson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9474. Plaintiff Christopher Jackson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9475. Plaintiff Kayla Jackson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9476. Plaintiff Nikki James is an individual residing in South Carolina. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9477. Plaintiff Andrea James is an individual residing in South Carolina. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9478. Plaintiff Brandon Jerry is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jerry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jerry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jerry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9479. Plaintiff Jordan Jinks is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jinks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jinks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jinks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9480. Plaintiff James Johnson Jr. is an individual residing in South Carolina. Johnson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9481. Plaintiff Tarrance Jones is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9482. Plaintiff Marvin Jones is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9483. Plaintiff Herbert Jones is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9484. Plaintiff Charles Jones is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 1998 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9485. Plaintiff Ryan Kaczmarz is an individual residing in New York. Kaczmarz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kaczmarz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kaczmarz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9486. Plaintiff Shakail Keith is an individual residing in South Carolina. Keith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9487. Plaintiff Jeremiah Kennedy is an individual residing in South Carolina. Kennedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9488. Plaintiff Austin Keverett is an individual residing in South Carolina. Keverett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keverett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keverett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9489. Plaintiff Richard Lambert is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lambert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9490. Plaintiff Chanell Lasane Canty is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lasane Canty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lasane Canty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lasane Canty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9491. Plaintiff Rodrigues Leverette is an individual residing in South Carolina. Leverette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leverette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leverette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9492. Plaintiff Richard Lewis is an individual residing in Virginia. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9493. Plaintiff Edward Lewis is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9494. Plaintiff Travis Lipscomb is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lipscomb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lipscomb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lipscomb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9495. Plaintiff Sherry Little is an individual residing in North Carolina. Little worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Little has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Little has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9496. Plaintiff Lionel Luckett is an individual residing in South Carolina. Luckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9497. Plaintiff John Lutz is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lutz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lutz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lutz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9498. Plaintiff Erica Martin is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9499. Plaintiff Jason M Ross is an individual residing in South Carolina. M Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. M Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because M Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9500. Plaintiff Kendall Madison is an individual residing in South Carolina. Madison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Madison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Madison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9501. Plaintiff Jamie Norton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Marbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9502. Plaintiff Christopher Markey is an individual residing in South Carolina. Markey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Markey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Markey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9503. Plaintiff Matthew Martinez is an individual residing in South Carolina. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9504. Plaintiff Christopher Matthews is an individual residing in South Carolina. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9505. Plaintiff Garrett McAfee is an individual residing in Missouri. McAfee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McAfee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McAfee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9506. Plaintiff Paul McClellan is an individual residing in South Carolina. McClellan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McClellan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McClellan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9507. Plaintiff E. McGregor is an individual residing in South Carolina. McGregor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 1999 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGregor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGregor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9508. Plaintiff Adrian Mclellan is an individual residing in South Carolina. Mclellan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclellan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclellan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9509. Plaintiff Kieran Mcleod is an individual residing in Georgia. Mcleod worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcleod has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcleod has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9510. Plaintiff George Mcnealy Ii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mcnealy Ii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcnealy Ii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcnealy Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9511. Plaintiff Anthony Mcneil is an individual residing in South Carolina. Mcneil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcneil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcneil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9512. Plaintiff Thomas Meilinger is an individual residing in North Carolina. Meilinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meilinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meilinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9513. Plaintiff Roger Metze is an individual residing in South Carolina. Metze worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Metze has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Metze has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9514. Plaintiff Reginald Middleton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 1990 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9515. Plaintiff Sean Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9516. Plaintiff Benjamin Miller is an individual residing in South Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9517. Plaintiff Robert Mills is an individual residing in Puerto Rico. Mills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9518. Plaintiff Kevin Mills is an individual residing in South Carolina. Mills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9519. Plaintiff William Milton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Milton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9520. Plaintiff Shannon Mithcell is an individual residing in South Carolina. Mithcell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mithcell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mithcell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9521. Plaintiff Robert Morris is an individual residing in South Carolina. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9522. Plaintiff Michelle Morton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Morton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9523. Plaintiff Ryan Mumper is an individual residing in South Carolina. Mumper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mumper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mumper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9524. Plaintiff Kwasi Munufie is an individual residing in North Carolina. Munufie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munufie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munufie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9525. Plaintiff William Myers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Myers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9526. Plaintiff Porshia Nash is an individual residing in North Carolina. Nash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9527. Plaintiff Tyiesha Nathaniel is an individual residing in South Carolina. Nathaniel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nathaniel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nathaniel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9528. Plaintiff Donta Pack is an individual residing in South Carolina. Pack worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pack has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pack has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9529. Plaintiff Shana Paige is an individual residing in South Carolina. Paige worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paige has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paige has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9530. Plaintiff Derrick Pappas is an individual residing in South Carolina. Pappas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pappas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pappas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9531. Plaintiff Robyn Pavlakovich is an individual residing in South Carolina. Pavlakovich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pavlakovich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pavlakovich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9532. Plaintiff Erica Pendergrass is an individual residing in South Carolina. Pendergrass worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pendergrass has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pendergrass has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9533. Plaintiff Jeromie Phillips is an individual residing in South Carolina. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9534. Plaintiff Ronald Pietramala is an individual residing in South Carolina. Pietramala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pietramala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pietramala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9535. Plaintiff Marcus Polite is an individual residing in South Carolina. Polite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9536. Plaintiff Timothy Ponds is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ponds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ponds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ponds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9537. Plaintiff Jackie Profit is an individual residing in South Carolina. Profit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Profit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Profit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9538. Plaintiff Andrew Rambo is an individual residing in South Carolina. Rambo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rambo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rambo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9539. Plaintiff Lula Ramsey is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ramsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9540. Plaintiff Thomas Ratliff is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ratliff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ratliff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ratliff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9541. Plaintiff James Rennick is an individual residing in Florida. Rennick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rennick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rennick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9542. Plaintiff Paul Reynolds is an individual residing in South Carolina. Reynolds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynolds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynolds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9543. Plaintiff Larry Rhodes is an individual residing in South Carolina. Rhodes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhodes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhodes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9544. Plaintiff Willie Richardson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9545. Plaintiff Dashawn Ricks is an individual residing in South Carolina. Ricks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9546. Plaintiff Curtis Roach is an individual residing in South Carolina. Roach worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roach has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roach has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9547. Plaintiff Cleve Roberts is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9548. Plaintiff Ayannah Robinson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9549. Plaintiff Juan Rosado is an individual residing in South Carolina. Rosado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9550. Plaintiff Tonya Rowland is an individual residing in South Carolina. Rowland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rowland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rowland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9551. Plaintiff Shacoria Russell is an individual residing in South Carolina. Russell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9552. Plaintiff Omegatron Samuel is an individual residing in South Carolina. Samuel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samuel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samuel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9553. Plaintiff Christopher Samuel is an individual residing in South Carolina. Samuel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samuel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samuel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9554. Plaintiff Ruth Sanchez is an individual residing in Utah. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9555. Plaintiff Tyler Schumacher is an individual residing in South Carolina. Schumacher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schumacher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schumacher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9556. Plaintiff Sean Sellars is an individual residing in South Carolina. Sellars worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sellars has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sellars has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9557. Plaintiff Jamie Sherman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Sherman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9558. Plaintiff Dameion Simon is an individual residing in South Carolina. Simon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9559. Plaintiff Robert Singletary is an individual residing in South Carolina. Singletary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Singletary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Singletary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9560. Plaintiff Lavonda Singletary is an individual residing in North Carolina. Singletary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2000 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Singletary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Singletary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9561. Plaintiff Damont Slay is an individual residing in South Carolina. Slay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9562. Plaintiff Cicely Smalls is an individual residing in South Carolina. Smalls worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smalls has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smalls has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9563. Plaintiff Daniel Smith is an individual residing in South Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9564. Plaintiff Christopher Smith is an individual residing in South Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9565. Plaintiff Charles Smith is an individual residing in South Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9566. Plaintiff Rhonda Stapleton-Martin is an individual residing in Georgia. Stapleton-Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stapleton-Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stapleton-Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9567. Plaintiff Willie Steed is an individual residing in South Carolina. Steed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9568. Plaintiff Layman Stephens is an individual residing in North Carolina. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9569. Plaintiff Jimmy Stevens is an individual residing in South Carolina. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9570. Plaintiff Casey Stone is an individual residing in South Carolina. Stone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9571. Plaintiff Daniel Strickland is an individual residing in South Carolina. Strickland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strickland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strickland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9572. Plaintiff Jerome Swinton is an individual residing in South Carolina. Swinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9573. Plaintiff Larry Tate is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9574. Plaintiff Stefanie Taylor is an individual residing in South Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9575. Plaintiff Anna Tellman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Tellman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tellman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tellman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9576. Plaintiff Bryan Terry is an individual residing in South Carolina. Terry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Terry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Terry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9577. Plaintiff Joshua Thomas is an individual residing in South Carolina. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9578. Plaintiff Karel Thomas is an individual residing in South Carolina. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9579. Plaintiff Robert Thomas is an individual residing in South Carolina. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2001 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9580. Plaintiff Robby Timmons is an individual residing in South Carolina. Timmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Timmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Timmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9581. Plaintiff David Timmons is an individual residing in South Carolina. Timmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Timmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Timmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9582. Plaintiff Kathryn Tindal is an individual residing in South Carolina. Tindal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tindal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tindal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9583. Plaintiff Allie Torongeau is an individual residing in Wyoming. Torongeau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torongeau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torongeau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9584. Plaintiff Hector Trujillo-Esparza is an individual residing in South Carolina. Trujillo-Esparza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trujillo-Esparza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trujillo-Esparza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9585. Plaintiff Teresa Vanderhall is an individual residing in South Carolina. Vanderhall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vanderhall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vanderhall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9586. Plaintiff Renee Walker is an individual residing in South Carolina. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9587. Plaintiff Travis Ward is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9588. Plaintiff Brianne Washington is an individual residing in North Carolina. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9589. Plaintiff Timmy Watkins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9590. Plaintiff Tina Way is an individual residing in South Carolina. Way worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Way has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Way has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9591. Plaintiff Edward Weber is an individual residing in South Carolina. Weber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9592. Plaintiff Jeremiah Weston is an individual residing in South Carolina. Weston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9593. Plaintiff Keenan White is an individual residing in South Carolina. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9594. Plaintiff Veronda White is an individual residing in South Carolina. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9595. Plaintiff Carol White is an individual residing in South Carolina. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9596. Plaintiff Jeree Wilder is an individual residing in South Carolina. Wilder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9597. Plaintiff Kathy Wilkie is an individual residing in South Carolina. Wilkie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilkie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilkie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9598. Plaintiff Gregory Williams is an individual residing in South Carolina. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9599. Plaintiff Jonathan Williams is an individual residing in South Carolina. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9600. Plaintiff Harold Williams is an individual residing in South Carolina. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9601. Plaintiff Gerald Woods is an individual residing in Florida. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9602. Plaintiff Willie Wright is an individual residing in South Carolina. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9603. Plaintiff Jeffery Young is an individual residing in South Carolina. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9604. Plaintiff Keetra Young is an individual residing in South Carolina. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9605. Plaintiff Stephen Zadrozny is an individual residing in Connecticut. Zadrozny worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zadrozny has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zadrozny has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9606. Plaintiff Telis Zecopoulos is an individual residing in South Carolina. Zecopoulos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zecopoulos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zecopoulos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9607. Plaintiff Stacy Zimmerman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Zimmerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zimmerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zimmerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9608. Plaintiff Byron Carter is an individual residing in South Dakota. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9609. Plaintiff Brian Custer is an individual residing in South Dakota. Custer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Custer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Custer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9610. Plaintiff Sheldon Dickson is an individual residing in South Dakota. Dickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9611. Plaintiff Austin Elmore is an individual residing in Colorado. Elmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9612. Plaintiff Michael Fetter is an individual residing in South Dakota. Fetter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fetter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fetter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9613. Plaintiff Rick Fornwald is an individual residing in South Dakota. Fornwald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fornwald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fornwald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9614. Plaintiff Michael Fox is an individual residing in South Dakota. Fox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9615. Plaintiff Jordan Fuller is an individual residing in South Dakota. Fuller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9616. Plaintiff James Godfrey is an individual residing in South Dakota. Godfrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2005 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godfrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godfrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9617. Plaintiff Gregory Hansmann is an individual residing in South Dakota. Hansmann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hansmann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hansmann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9618. Plaintiff Jeffrey Hart is an individual residing in South Dakota. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9619. Plaintiff Brian Lee is an individual residing in South Dakota. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9620. Plaintiff Jay Martin is an individual residing in South Dakota. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9621. Plaintiff Jacob Miller is an individual residing in South Dakota. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9622. Plaintiff Chelsea Olson is an individual residing in Florida. Olson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9623. Plaintiff Susan Oslund is an individual residing in South Dakota. Oslund worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oslund has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oslund has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9624. Plaintiff Dustin Parmley is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Parmley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parmley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parmley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9625. Plaintiff Terry Plimpton is an individual residing in South Dakota. Plimpton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plimpton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plimpton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9626. Plaintiff Kenneth Rusten is an individual residing in South Dakota. Rusten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rusten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rusten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9627. Plaintiff Cameron Stutesman is an individual residing in South Dakota. Stutesman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stutesman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stutesman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9628. Plaintiff Aaron Townsend is an individual residing in South Dakota. Townsend worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Townsend has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Townsend has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9629. Plaintiff Tyrone Warne is an individual residing in South Dakota. Warne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9630. Plaintiff Randy Zaske is an individual residing in South Dakota. Zaske worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in South Dakota from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zaske has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zaske has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9631. Plaintiff Marcus Adams is an individual residing in Tennessee. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9632. Plaintiff Tyeshia Allen is an individual residing in Tennessee. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9633. Plaintiff Rodney Allison is an individual residing in Tennessee. Allison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2001 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9634. Plaintiff Andrew Ambuhl is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ambuhl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ambuhl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ambuhl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9635. Plaintiff Glenn Anderson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9636. Plaintiff Kevin Anderson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9637. Plaintiff James Anderson is an individual residing in Alabama. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9638. Plaintiff Julius Anderson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9639. Plaintiff Gary Anderson Jr. is an individual residing in Tennessee. Anderson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9640. Plaintiff Buffy Andies is an individual residing in Tennessee. Andies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9641. Plaintiff John Anglin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Anglin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anglin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anglin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9642. Plaintiff Andrew Appleton is an individual residing in Tennessee. Appleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Appleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Appleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9643. Plaintiff Ahmed Arkawazi is an individual residing in Tennessee. Arkawazi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arkawazi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arkawazi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9644. Plaintiff Vicki Arnold is an individual residing in Tennessee. Arnold worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arnold has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arnold has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9645. Plaintiff Devin Arthur is an individual residing in Tennessee. Arthur worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arthur has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arthur has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9646. Plaintiff Harrison Ashley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ashley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ashley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ashley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9647. Plaintiff Devin Atha is an individual residing in Tennessee. Atha worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Atha has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Atha has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9648. Plaintiff Grady Austin is an individual residing in Arkansas. Austin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Austin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Austin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9649. Plaintiff Teresa Autry is an individual residing in Texas. Autry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Autry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Autry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9650. Plaintiff Kyle Axley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Axley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Axley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Axley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9651. Plaintiff Lori Bailey is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9652. Plaintiff Alan Balko is an individual residing in Michigan. Balko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Balko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Balko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9653. Plaintiff Susan Bankhead is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bankhead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bankhead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bankhead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9654. Plaintiff Timothy Barfield is an individual residing in Tennessee. Barfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9655. Plaintiff Danielle Bates is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9656. Plaintiff Harrison Batson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Batson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Batson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Batson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9657. Plaintiff Lacy Beard is an individual residing in Tennessee. Beard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9658. Plaintiff Michael Becton is an individual residing in Florida. Becton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Becton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Becton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9659. Plaintiff Chase Begue is an individual residing in Tennessee. Begue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Begue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Begue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9660. Plaintiff Kevin Bergmann is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bergmann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bergmann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bergmann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9661. Plaintiff Brian Berkon is an individual residing in Tennessee. Berkon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berkon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berkon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9662. Plaintiff Roger Bernard is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bernard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 1993 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bernard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bernard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9663. Plaintiff Zackary Billenstein is an individual residing in Tennessee. Billenstein worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billenstein has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billenstein has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9664. Plaintiff Cassie Birdwell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Birdwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Birdwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Birdwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9665. Plaintiff Louwanna Blake is an individual residing in Tennessee. Blake worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blake has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blake has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9666. Plaintiff Johnathon Blankenship is an individual residing in Tennessee. Blankenship worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blankenship has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blankenship has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9667. Plaintiff Christopher Blodgett is an individual residing in Tennessee. Blodgett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blodgett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blodgett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9668. Plaintiff Cynthia Boldin is an individual residing in Georgia. Boldin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boldin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boldin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9669. Plaintiff Ryan Bonner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bonner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9670. Plaintiff James Boone is an individual residing in Tennessee. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee and Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9671. Plaintiff Ptosha Borner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Borner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Borner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Borner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9672. Plaintiff Derrick Bowers is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bowers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9673. Plaintiff Tracy Branner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Branner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Branner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Branner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9674. Plaintiff David Brasfield is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brasfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brasfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brasfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9675. Plaintiff Dustin Breedlove is an individual residing in Tennessee. Breedlove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Breedlove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Breedlove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9676. Plaintiff Jeffrey Bright is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9677. Plaintiff Ronnie Brock is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9678. Plaintiff Sherry Brooks is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9679. Plaintiff Sherry Brooksher is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brooksher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooksher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooksher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9680. Plaintiff Joseph Brown is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9681. Plaintiff Robert Brown is an individual residing in Kentucky. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9682. Plaintiff Tammy Brundige is an individual residing in Tennessee. Brundige worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brundige has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brundige has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9683. Plaintiff Austin Buhl is an individual residing in Tennessee. Buhl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buhl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buhl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9684. Plaintiff Gordon Burnam is an individual residing in Tennessee. Burnam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9685. Plaintiff Michael Butts is an individual residing in Illinois. Butts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9686. Plaintiff James Cable is an individual residing in Tennessee. Cable worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cable has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cable has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9687. Plaintiff Jonathan Campbell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9688. Plaintiff Gregory Carr is an individual residing in Tennessee. Carr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9689. Plaintiff John Carroll is an individual residing in Tennessee. Carroll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carroll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carroll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9690. Plaintiff Elliot Carter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9691. Plaintiff Mark Carter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9692. Plaintiff Derek Cartozzo is an individual residing in Tennessee. Cartozzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cartozzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cartozzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9693. Plaintiff Tc Cassidy is an individual residing in Tennessee. Cassidy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cassidy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cassidy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9694. Plaintiff Stephen Castle is an individual residing in Tennessee. Castle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9695. Plaintiff Kevin Castro is an individual residing in Tennessee. Castro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9696. Plaintiff Matthew Chalmers is an individual residing in California. Chalmers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chalmers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chalmers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9697. Plaintiff Devonte Chamberlain is an individual residing in Tennessee. Chamberlain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chamberlain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chamberlain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9698. Plaintiff Larry Chan is an individual residing in Tennessee. Chan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9699. Plaintiff Cory Cheesman is an individual residing in Ohio. Cheesman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cheesman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cheesman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9700. Plaintiff Chaz Chupp is an individual residing in Tennessee. Chupp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chupp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chupp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9701. Plaintiff Gladys Clark is an individual residing in Tennessee. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9702. Plaintiff William Clark is an individual residing in New York. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9703. Plaintiff Amy Clark is an individual residing in Georgia. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9704. Plaintiff Candace Clarke is an individual residing in Florida. Clarke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clarke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clarke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9705. Plaintiff Charles Close is an individual residing in Tennessee. Close worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Close has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Close has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9706. Plaintiff William Coffman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9707. Plaintiff Brandon Coffman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9708. Plaintiff James Coffman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9709. Plaintiff Sharee Cole is an individual residing in Tennessee. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9710. Plaintiff Bryan Coleman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9711. Plaintiff William Coleman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9712. Plaintiff Ronald Coleman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9713. Plaintiff Graham Collins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9714. Plaintiff Naomi Collins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9715. Plaintiff Matt Colwell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Colwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9716. Plaintiff Roxanne Condon-Lodewegen is an individual residing in Tennessee. Condon-Lodewegen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Condon-Lodewegen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Condon-Lodewegen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9717. Plaintiff Demario Conner is an individual residing in Mississippi. Conner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9718. Plaintiff Cassandra Cravens is an individual residing in Tennessee. Cravens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 1997 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cravens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cravens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9719. Plaintiff Michael Crayton is an individual residing in Mississippi. Crayton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crayton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crayton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9720. Plaintiff Darian Crisp is an individual residing in Tennessee. Crisp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crisp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crisp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9721. Plaintiff Andrew Cumberbatch is an individual residing in Florida. Cumberbatch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cumberbatch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cumberbatch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9722. Plaintiff Crystal Daugherty is an individual residing in Tennessee. Daugherty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Daugherty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daugherty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9723. Plaintiff Jon Davis is an individual residing in Tennessee. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9724. Plaintiff Venus Davis is an individual residing in Arkansas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9725. Plaintiff Charles Davis is an individual residing in Tennessee. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9726. Plaintiff Leonora Dawson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9727. Plaintiff Austin Deaton is an individual residing in Tennessee. Deaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9728. Plaintiff Delores Degraw is an individual residing in Tennessee. Degraw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Degraw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Degraw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9729. Plaintiff Richard Despain is an individual residing in Tennessee. Despain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Despain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Despain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9730. Plaintiff Dennis Dieckhoff is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dieckhoff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dieckhoff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dieckhoff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9731. Plaintiff Homer Dinkins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dinkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dinkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dinkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9732. Plaintiff Karlton Dixon is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2003 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9733. Plaintiff Ashley Dokes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9734. Plaintiff Tyler Doney is an individual residing in Tennessee. Doney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9735. Plaintiff Charles Doss is an individual residing in Tennessee. Doss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9736. Plaintiff Joshua Douglas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9737. Plaintiff Timothy Douglas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9738. Plaintiff Tavarus Douglas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9739. Plaintiff Carren Downey is an individual residing in Tennessee. Downey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Downey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Downey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9740. Plaintiff Justin Dreher is an individual residing in Tennessee. Dreher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dreher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dreher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9741. Plaintiff Andrea Elder is an individual residing in Tennessee. Elder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9742. Plaintiff Carl Estep is an individual residing in Tennessee. Estep worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estep has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estep has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9743. Plaintiff Joshua Etters is an individual residing in Tennessee. Etters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Etters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Etters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9744. Plaintiff Nina Evans is an individual residing in Tennessee. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9745. Plaintiff Stephen Ferguson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ferguson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferguson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferguson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9746. Plaintiff Cassandra Fisher is an individual residing in Tennessee. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9747. Plaintiff Cary Flatt is an individual residing in Tennessee. Flatt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flatt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flatt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9748. Plaintiff Anthony Foister is an individual residing in Tennessee. Foister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9749. Plaintiff Lance Ford is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9750. Plaintiff James Ford is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9751. Plaintiff Timothy Ford Jr is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ford Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9752. Plaintiff Greg Foulks is an individual residing in Tennessee. Foulks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foulks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foulks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9753. Plaintiff Adam Fountain is an individual residing in Tennessee. Fountain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fountain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fountain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9754. Plaintiff Lydale Foutch is an individual residing in Indiana. Foutch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foutch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foutch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9755. Plaintiff Tedd French is an individual residing in Florida. French worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. French has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because French has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9756. Plaintiff Matthew Frentzel is an individual residing in Tennessee. Frentzel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frentzel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frentzel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9757. Plaintiff Stevie Frierson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Frierson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frierson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frierson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9758. Plaintiff Raleigh Gardner is an individual residing in Alabama. Gardner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gardner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gardner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9759. Plaintiff Grant Garrett is an individual residing in Tennessee. Garrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9760. Plaintiff Dave Gilliam is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gilliam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilliam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilliam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9761. Plaintiff Josh Glass is an individual residing in Tennessee. Glass worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glass has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glass has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9762. Plaintiff Derrick Gleaves is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gleaves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gleaves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gleaves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9763. Plaintiff Lisa Glover is an individual residing in Tennessee. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9764. Plaintiff Steven Goins is an individual residing in Georgia. Goins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9765. Plaintiff Amber Goley is an individual residing in Georgia. Goley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9766. Plaintiff Sharon Gooch is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gooch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gooch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gooch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9767. Plaintiff Richard Goodyear is an individual residing in Tennessee. Goodyear worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodyear has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodyear has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9768. Plaintiff Patty Gray is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9769. Plaintiff Steven Green is an individual residing in Tennessee. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9770. Plaintiff Antonio Greer is an individual residing in Tennessee. Greer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9771. Plaintiff Amanda Gregory is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gregory worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gregory has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gregory has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9772. Plaintiff Mitchell Greub is an individual residing in Tennessee. Greub worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greub has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greub has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9773. Plaintiff Dawn Griffin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9774. Plaintiff Angela Griffin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9775. Plaintiff Travis Griffin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9776. Plaintiff James Grigsby is an individual residing in Tennessee. Grigsby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grigsby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grigsby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9777. Plaintiff Joy Groves is an individual residing in Tennessee. Groves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Groves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Groves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9778. Plaintiff Robert Gryl is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gryl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gryl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gryl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9779. Plaintiff Luke Gulczynski is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gulczynski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gulczynski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gulczynski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9780. Plaintiff Neonila Gusar is an individual residing in Tennessee. Gusar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gusar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gusar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9781. Plaintiff Kiya Guye is an individual residing in Tennessee. Guye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9782. Plaintiff Kory Haley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Haley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9783. Plaintiff Charles Hall is an individual residing in Alabama. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9784. Plaintiff Terry Hall is an individual residing in Florida. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9785. Plaintiff Matthew Hammond is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hammond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hammond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hammond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9786. Plaintiff Johnathan Hardin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hardin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9787. Plaintiff Antonio Harper is an individual residing in Georgia. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9788. Plaintiff Joshua Harper is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9789. Plaintiff Sam Harris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9790. Plaintiff John Harris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9791. Plaintiff Jeffrey Harris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9792. Plaintiff Shannon Harrison is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9793. Plaintiff Kristi Hayes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9794. Plaintiff Richard Haynes is an individual residing in Alabama. Haynes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2003 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haynes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haynes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9795. Plaintiff John Heathington is an individual residing in Tennessee. Heathington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heathington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heathington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9796. Plaintiff John Helm is an individual residing in Tennessee. Helm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9797. Plaintiff Rick Hendrix is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hendrix worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hendrix has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hendrix has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9798. Plaintiff Ervin Herron is an individual residing in Tennessee. Herron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9799. Plaintiff Ricky Hewitt is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hewitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hewitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hewitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9800. Plaintiff Donald Hicks is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9801. Plaintiff Matthew Hoag is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hoag worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoag has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoag has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9802. Plaintiff Thomas Hoffman is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hoffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9803. Plaintiff Ryan Holloway is an individual residing in Tennessee. Holloway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holloway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holloway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9804. Plaintiff Isaac Hopkins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9805. Plaintiff Jacqueline Hopkins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9806. Plaintiff William Horinek is an individual residing in Kentucky. Horinek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horinek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horinek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9807. Plaintiff Randy Hughes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9808. Plaintiff Delano Hughley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hughley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9809. Plaintiff Christopher Hunt is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hunt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9810. Plaintiff Jason Hunter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hunter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9811. Plaintiff Thomas Hurst Jr. is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hurst Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hurst Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hurst Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9812. Plaintiff Nicholas Ingle is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ingle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ingle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ingle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9813. Plaintiff Jamie Irwin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Irwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9814. Plaintiff Kamal Rai is an individual residing in Tennessee. Israel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Israel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Israel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9815. Plaintiff Marvin Jones is an individual residing in Tennessee. Israel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Israel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Israel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9816. Plaintiff Marcell Jackson is an individual residing in Illinois. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9817. Plaintiff Anthony Jackson is an individual residing in Idaho. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9818. Plaintiff Tony Jackson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9819. Plaintiff Steven Jamison is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jamison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jamison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jamison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9820. Plaintiff Milton Jennings is an individual residing in Arkansas. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9821. Plaintiff Emily Jobe is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jobe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jobe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jobe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9822. Plaintiff Felix Johnson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9823. Plaintiff Mitch Johnson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9824. Plaintiff Zachary Johnson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9825. Plaintiff Kyanna Johnson is an individual residing in Illinois. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9826. Plaintiff Rokwasha Jones is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9827. Plaintiff Lance Jones is an individual residing in Arizona. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9828. Plaintiff Tom Jones is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9829. Plaintiff Jacob Jordan is an individual residing in Tennessee. Jordan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jordan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jordan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9830. Plaintiff Timothy Joy is an individual residing in Alabama. Joy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9831. Plaintiff Drew Kairot is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kairot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kairot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kairot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9832. Plaintiff Brianna Kayler is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kayler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kayler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kayler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9833. Plaintiff Kelly Keebler is an individual residing in Tennessee. Keebler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keebler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keebler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9834. Plaintiff Todd Keeling is an individual residing in Kentucky. Keeling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keeling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keeling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9835. Plaintiff Trevonn Keller is an individual residing in Mississippi. Keller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9836. Plaintiff Craig Keller is an individual residing in New York. Keller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9837. Plaintiff Will Kennedy is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kennedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9838. Plaintiff Richard Kennedy is an individual residing in Arkansas. Kennedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9839. Plaintiff Cynthia Ketron is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ketron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ketron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ketron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9840. Plaintiff Jeremy Kilpatrick is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kilpatrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kilpatrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kilpatrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9841. Plaintiff Christian Kimble is an individual residing in Kansas. Kimble worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kimble has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kimble has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9842. Plaintiff Renaldo Kinnard is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kinnard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kinnard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kinnard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9843. Plaintiff Halley Knott is an individual residing in Nebraska. Knott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9844. Plaintiff Michael Knowles is an individual residing in Tennessee. Knowles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knowles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knowles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9845. Plaintiff Charon Kramer is an individual residing in Tennessee. Kramer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kramer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kramer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9846. Plaintiff David Lafever is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lafever worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2000 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lafever has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lafever has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9847. Plaintiff Joel Lawrence is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9848. Plaintiff Timothy Lawson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 1998 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9849. Plaintiff Rickey Lawson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9850. Plaintiff William Layne is an individual residing in Tennessee. Layne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Layne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Layne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9851. Plaintiff Daniel Lehmkuhl is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lehmkuhl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Lehmkuhl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lehmkuhl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9852. Plaintiff Charity Lester is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9853. Plaintiff Mark Levasseur is an individual residing in Tennessee. Levasseur worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levasseur has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levasseur has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9854. Plaintiff Ebony Levelston is an individual residing in Mississippi. Levelston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levelston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levelston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9855. Plaintiff Billy Lewallen is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lewallen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewallen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewallen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9856. Plaintiff Dewey Lewis is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9857. Plaintiff Chris Lieber is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lieber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lieber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lieber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9858. Plaintiff Chad Long is an individual residing in Tennessee. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9859. Plaintiff Dylan Long is an individual residing in Tennessee. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9860. Plaintiff Terrell Lowdermilk is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lowdermilk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowdermilk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowdermilk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9861. Plaintiff Ashley Lowe is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9862. Plaintiff Max Luegge is an individual residing in Tennessee. Luegge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luegge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luegge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9863. Plaintiff Darrell Lyons is an individual residing in Arizona. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9864. Plaintiff Ryan Malicoat is an individual residing in Tennessee. Malicoat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malicoat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malicoat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9865. Plaintiff Joshua Mann is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9866. Plaintiff Michael Mann is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9867. Plaintiff Dajuan Manning is an individual residing in South Carolina. Manning worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manning has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manning has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9868. Plaintiff Guy Martin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9869. Plaintiff Charles Martin is an individual residing in Georgia. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9870. Plaintiff Matt Mason is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9871. Plaintiff Jeff Maxwell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Maxwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maxwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maxwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9872. Plaintiff Dana Mayes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9873. Plaintiff Roshawn Mays is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mays worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mays has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mays has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9874. Plaintiff Caleb Fuson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mcallister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcallister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcallister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9875. Plaintiff Cindy Mccann is an individual residing in Kentucky. Mccann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee and Kentucky from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9876. Plaintiff Dustin Mccarley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mccarley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9877. Plaintiff Jeffrey Mccarter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mccarter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9878. Plaintiff Tracy Mccoy is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mccoy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccoy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccoy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9879. Plaintiff Martin Mclemore is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mclemore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclemore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclemore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9880. Plaintiff Cecil McLerran is an individual residing in Tennessee. McLerran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McLerran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McLerran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9881. Plaintiff Robert McMahon Iii is an individual residing in Tennessee. McMahon Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McMahon Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McMahon Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9882. Plaintiff Randi Mcneely is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mcneely worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcneely has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcneely has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9883. Plaintiff Raymond Meadows is an individual residing in Tennessee. Meadows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meadows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meadows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9884. Plaintiff Francisco Meyer is an individual residing in Tennessee. Meyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9885. Plaintiff Brian Miller is an individual residing in Tennessee. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9886. Plaintiff Jason Miller is an individual residing in Tennessee. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9887. Plaintiff Emily Minnick is an individual residing in Tennessee. Minnick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Minnick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Minnick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9888. Plaintiff Michael Mixson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mixson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mixson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mixson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9889. Plaintiff Lejerrith Mooney is an individual residing in Arkansas. Mooney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mooney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mooney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9890. Plaintiff Barry Moore is an individual residing in Tennessee. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9891. Plaintiff Aubery Moore is an individual residing in Tennessee. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9892. Plaintiff Britni Morgan is an individual residing in Tennessee. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9893. Plaintiff Janice Morgan is an individual residing in Tennessee. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9894. Plaintiff Michael Morrow is an individual residing in Tennessee. Morrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9895. Plaintiff Kendra Murphy is an individual residing in Tennessee. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9896. Plaintiff Adam Muse is an individual residing in Tennessee. Muse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9897. Plaintiff Jack Myers is an individual residing in Tennessee. Myers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9898. Plaintiff Evan Needham is an individual residing in Illinois. Needham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Needham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Needham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9899. Plaintiff Frank Neely is an individual residing in Tennessee. Neely worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2005 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neely has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neely has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9900. Plaintiff Michael Newbern is an individual residing in Kentucky. Newbern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newbern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newbern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9901. Plaintiff Quaneal Nixon is an individual residing in Louisiana. Nixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9902. Plaintiff Christopher Nolen is an individual residing in Tennessee. Nolen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nolen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nolen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9903. Plaintiff Casey Norris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Norris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9904. Plaintiff Kristen Obie is an individual residing in Tennessee. Obie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Obie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Obie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9905. Plaintiff Ledarius Osborne is an individual residing in Tennessee. Osborne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osborne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osborne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9906. Plaintiff Mark Ouellette is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ouellette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ouellette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ouellette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9907. Plaintiff Wesly Owens is an individual residing in Tennessee. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9908. Plaintiff Stephen Owens is an individual residing in Tennessee. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9909. Plaintiff Mitchell Painter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Painter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Painter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Painter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9910. Plaintiff Tony Palmer is an individual residing in Virginia. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2004 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9911. Plaintiff Keri Parker-Lee is an individual residing in Tennessee. Parker-Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker-Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker-Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9912. Plaintiff Douglas Patterson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9913. Plaintiff James Patton is an individual residing in Tennessee. Patton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9914. Plaintiff Philip Patton is an individual residing in Tennessee. Patton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9915. Plaintiff Amanda Peavley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Peavley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peavley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peavley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9916. Plaintiff Jeffrey Peele is an individual residing in Tennessee. Peele worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2002 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peele has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peele has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9917. Plaintiff Chris Perdue is an individual residing in Kentucky. Perdue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perdue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perdue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9918. Plaintiff Carlos Perry is an individual residing in Tennessee. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9919. Plaintiff Kenneth Petty is an individual residing in Indiana. Petty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9920. Plaintiff Robert Phaneuf is an individual residing in Tennessee. Phaneuf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phaneuf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phaneuf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9921. Plaintiff Sean Pharris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Pharris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pharris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pharris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9922. Plaintiff John Phillips Jr. is an individual residing in Tennessee. Phillips Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9923. Plaintiff Edward Ervin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Polanco Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9924. Plaintiff Robert Pope is an individual residing in Tennessee. Pope worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pope has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pope has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9925. Plaintiff Kenneth Porter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9926. Plaintiff Andrew Poteete is an individual residing in Tennessee. Poteete worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 1986 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poteete has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poteete has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9927. Plaintiff Brandon Potter is an individual residing in Tennessee. Potter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Potter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Potter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9928. Plaintiff Marcus Price is an individual residing in Tennessee. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9929. Plaintiff Tennisha Puckett is an individual residing in Tennessee. Puckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Puckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Puckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9930. Plaintiff Adram Puckett is an individual residing in Tennessee. Puckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Puckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Puckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9931. Plaintiff Cory Pulaski is an individual residing in Georgia. Pulaski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pulaski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pulaski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9932. Plaintiff Jacob Pulford is an individual residing in Tennessee. Pulford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pulford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pulford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9933. Plaintiff Kristie Putnam is an individual residing in Tennessee. Putnam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Putnam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Putnam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9934. Plaintiff Bryan Qualls is an individual residing in Tennessee. Qualls worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Qualls has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Qualls has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9935. Plaintiff Andrew Quinn is an individual residing in Tennessee. Quinn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quinn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quinn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9936. Plaintiff Nicholas Rainey is an individual residing in Tennessee. Rainey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rainey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rainey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9937. Plaintiff James Ransom is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ransom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ransom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ransom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9938. Plaintiff Ernest Rayfield is an individual residing in Tennessee. Rayfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rayfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rayfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9939. Plaintiff Mark Reagan is an individual residing in Florida. Reagan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reagan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reagan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9940. Plaintiff Michael Reece is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reece worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reece has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reece has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9941. Plaintiff Joseph Reed is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9942. Plaintiff Darnell Reel is an individual residing in Arkansas. Reel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9943. Plaintiff Kimberly Reid is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9944. Plaintiff Jason Reszka is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reszka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reszka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reszka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9945. Plaintiff Santiago Reyna Jr. is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reyna Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reyna Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reyna Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9946. Plaintiff John Reynolds is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reynolds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynolds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynolds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9947. Plaintiff Nathan Reynolds is an individual residing in Tennessee. Reynolds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynolds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynolds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9948. Plaintiff Latonya Richardson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9949. Plaintiff Chris Roberson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Roberson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9950. Plaintiff Daniel Roberts is an individual residing in Tennessee. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9951. Plaintiff Sherrie Ross is an individual residing in Tennessee. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9952. Plaintiff Daniel Rutledge is an individual residing in Tennessee. Rutledge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rutledge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rutledge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9953. Plaintiff William Sampson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sampson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sampson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sampson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9954. Plaintiff Hope Sanders is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9955. Plaintiff Kendrick Sanders is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9956. Plaintiff William Scarberry is an individual residing in Virginia. Scarberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scarberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scarberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9957. Plaintiff Thomas Schubert is an individual residing in Tennessee. Schubert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schubert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schubert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9958. Plaintiff Stephen Sheehan is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sheehan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheehan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheehan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9959. Plaintiff Tylor Sheridan is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sheridan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheridan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheridan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9960. Plaintiff Thomas Silk is an individual residing in Tennessee. Silk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Silk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Silk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9961. Plaintiff Jason Simmons is an individual residing in Tennessee. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9962. Plaintiff David Smiley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smiley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smiley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smiley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9963. Plaintiff Amber Smiley is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smiley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smiley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smiley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9964. Plaintiff Rachel Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9965. Plaintiff Charles Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9966. Plaintiff Ashley Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9967. Plaintiff Zach Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9968. Plaintiff Quinten Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing

less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9969. Plaintiff Charles Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9970. Plaintiff Gregory Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9971. Plaintiff Brandon Smith is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9972. Plaintiff Ronnie Smith Jr. is an individual residing in Tennessee. Smith Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9973. Plaintiff Jason Spann is an individual residing in Tennessee. Spann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9974. Plaintiff Jeffrey Spicer is an individual residing in Virginia. Spicer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spicer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spicer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9975. Plaintiff Porter Stadaker is an individual residing in Washington. Stadaker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stadaker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stadaker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9976. Plaintiff Branden Stafford is an individual residing in Tennessee. Stafford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stafford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stafford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9977. Plaintiff Chad Steelman is an individual residing in Missouri. Steelman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2000 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steelman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steelman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9978. Plaintiff Jacob Stephens is an individual residing in Tennessee. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9979. Plaintiff Todd Stephens is an individual residing in Tennessee. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9980. Plaintiff Dandra Stephenson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Stephenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9981. Plaintiff Tabitha Stock is an individual residing in Tennessee. Stock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9982. Plaintiff Jeffrey Summers is an individual residing in Tennessee. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2000 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9983. Plaintiff Terry Sumner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sumner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sumner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sumner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9984. Plaintiff Trenton Sweatman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Sweatman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Sweatman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sweatman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9985. Plaintiff Mindy Sweatman is an individual residing in South Carolina. Sweatman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sweatman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sweatman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9986. Plaintiff Terry Sykes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Sykes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 1993 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sykes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sykes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9987. Plaintiff Martha Tanner is an individual residing in Alabama. Tanner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tanner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tanner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9988. Plaintiff Nathan Taylor is an individual residing in Tennessee. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9989. Plaintiff Joyce Taylor is an individual residing in Tennessee. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9990. Plaintiff Dana Teeple is an individual residing in Tennessee. Teeple worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Teeple has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Teeple has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9991. Plaintiff Juanita Terry is an individual residing in Tennessee. Terry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Terry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Terry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9992. Plaintiff Robert Thomas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9993. Plaintiff Shelton Thomas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9994. Plaintiff Marvin Thomas is an individual residing in Tennessee. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9995. Plaintiff Anglius Thompson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9996. Plaintiff Matt Thompson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9997. Plaintiff Calan Tinch is an individual residing in Tennessee. Tinch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tinch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tinch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9998. Plaintiff Gary Titington is an individual residing in Tennessee. Titington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Titington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Titington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

9999. Plaintiff Will Tomb is an individual residing in South Carolina. Tomb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10000. Plaintiff Jessica Townsend is an individual residing in Kentucky. Townsend worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Townsend has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Townsend has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10001. Plaintiff Thomas Triplett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Triplett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Triplett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Triplett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10002. Plaintiff Harold Turpin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Turpin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turpin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turpin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10003. Plaintiff Logan Underhill is an individual residing in Tennessee. Underhill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Underhill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Underhill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10004. Plaintiff Shane Vaughn is an individual residing in Tennessee. Vaughn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vaughn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vaughn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10005. Plaintiff Kevin Vaughn is an individual residing in Tennessee. Vaughn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vaughn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vaughn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10006. Plaintiff Bryant Volz is an individual residing in Georgia. Volz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Volz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Volz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10007. Plaintiff Brandi Wade is an individual residing in Tennessee. Wade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10008. Plaintiff Brandon Wald is an individual residing in Tennessee. Wald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10009. Plaintiff Michaela Walker is an individual residing in Tennessee. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10010. Plaintiff Rhonda Walker is an individual residing in Tennessee. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10011. Plaintiff Joe Walker is an individual residing in Florida. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10012. Plaintiff Aridth Ward is an individual residing in Arkansas. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10013. Plaintiff Frankie Warrington is an individual residing in Tennessee. Warrington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Warrington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warrington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10014. Plaintiff Shawn Warta is an individual residing in Tennessee. Warta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10015. Plaintiff Juan Washington is an individual residing in Tennessee. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10016. Plaintiff Marketta Watkins is an individual residing in Tennessee. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10017. Plaintiff Josh Watson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10018. Plaintiff Quinton Watson is an individual residing in Tennessee. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10019. Plaintiff Derrick Webb is an individual residing in Kentucky. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10020. Plaintiff Carl Wehner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Wehner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee and New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wehner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wehner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10021. Plaintiff Richard Welch is an individual residing in Tennessee. Welch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Welch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Welch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10022. Plaintiff Jeffrey West is an individual residing in Tennessee. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10023. Plaintiff Lamardo Westerfield is an individual residing in Tennessee. Westerfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Westerfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Westerfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10024. Plaintiff David White is an individual residing in Georgia. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10025. Plaintiff Brittany Whittington is an individual residing in Tennessee. Whittington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Whittington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whittington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10026. Plaintiff Matthew Widner is an individual residing in Tennessee. Widner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Widner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Widner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10027. Plaintiff Mark Williams is an individual residing in Tennessee. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10028. Plaintiff Tyeisha Williams is an individual residing in Tennessee. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10029. Plaintiff Jon Williams is an individual residing in Tennessee. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10030. Plaintiff Larry Williford is an individual residing in Tennessee. Williford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10031. Plaintiff Teresa Windum is an individual residing in Tennessee. Windum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Windum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Windum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10032. Plaintiff Kenyatta Woodard is an individual residing in Tennessee. Woodard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10033. Plaintiff Dante Woods is an individual residing in Tennessee. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10034. Plaintiff John Yost is an individual residing in Tennessee. Yost worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yost has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yost has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10035. Plaintiff Dawn Yount is an individual residing in Tennessee. Yount worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yount has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yount has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10036. Plaintiff Richard Zack is an individual residing in Tennessee. Zack worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zack has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zack has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10037. Plaintiff Larry Zipler II is an individual residing in Tennessee. Zipler II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Tennessee from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zipler II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zipler II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10038. Plaintiff Oscar Abrego is an individual residing in Texas. Abrego worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abrego has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abrego has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10039. Plaintiff Otis Adams is an individual residing in Texas. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10040. Plaintiff Kennard Adams is an individual residing in Texas. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10041. Plaintiff Jeffrey Adcock is an individual residing in Texas. Adcock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adcock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adcock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10042. Plaintiff Broderick Addison is an individual residing in Texas. Addison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Addison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Addison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10043. Plaintiff Moshood Adekola is an individual residing in Indiana. Adekola worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adekola has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adekola has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10044. Plaintiff Oluwafemi Adekunle is an individual residing in Texas. Adekunle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adekunle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adekunle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10045. Plaintiff Marwan Al Nasser is an individual residing in Texas. Al Nasser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Al Nasser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Al Nasser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10046. Plaintiff Gina Albert is an individual residing in Texas. Albert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Albert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Albert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10047. Plaintiff Charles Albert is an individual residing in Texas. Albert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Albert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Albert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10048. Plaintiff Kendall Alexander is an individual residing in Texas. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10049. Plaintiff Jerry Alexander is an individual residing in Texas. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10050. Plaintiff Devante Allen is an individual residing in Texas. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10051. Plaintiff Erwin Allen is an individual residing in Texas. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10052. Plaintiff Emilio Almanza is an individual residing in Texas. Almanza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almanza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almanza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10053. Plaintiff Peter Alsing is an individual residing in Texas. Alsing worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alsing has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alsing has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10054. Plaintiff Jose Alvarado is an individual residing in Texas. Alvarado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvarado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvarado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10055. Plaintiff Juan Alvarado is an individual residing in Texas. Alvarado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvarado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvarado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10056. Plaintiff Jakeist Ambrose is an individual residing in Texas. Ambrose worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ambrose has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ambrose has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10057. Plaintiff Muhammad Amin is an individual residing in Texas. Amin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10058. Plaintiff Jimmy Anderson is an individual residing in Texas. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10059. Plaintiff Robin Anderson is an individual residing in Texas. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10060. Plaintiff Ursula Andres is an individual residing in Texas. Andres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10061. Plaintiff Anthony Annino is an individual residing in Texas. Annino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Annino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Annino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10062. Plaintiff Innocent Anye is an individual residing in Texas. Anye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10063. Plaintiff Clarence Appling is an individual residing in Texas. Appling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2000 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Appling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Appling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10064. Plaintiff Eduardo Arana is an individual residing in Texas. Arana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10065. Plaintiff Tevin Archangel is an individual residing in Texas. Archangel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Archangel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Archangel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10066. Plaintiff Victor Arciva is an individual residing in Texas. Arciva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arciva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arciva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10067. Plaintiff Stephanie Arellano is an individual residing in Texas. Arellano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arellano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arellano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10068. Plaintiff Mayra Arellano is an individual residing in Texas. Arellano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arellano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arellano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10069. Plaintiff Julian Armendariz is an individual residing in Texas. Armendariz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armendariz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armendariz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10070. Plaintiff Courtney Armstrong is an individual residing in Texas. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10071. Plaintiff Dominic Armstrong is an individual residing in Texas. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10072. Plaintiff Joshua Arnold is an individual residing in Texas. Arnold worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arnold has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arnold has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10073. Plaintiff Precious Aron is an individual residing in Texas. Aron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10074. Plaintiff Paul Arredondo is an individual residing in Texas. Arredondo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arredondo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arredondo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10075. Plaintiff Juan Avila is an individual residing in Texas. Avila worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Avila has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Avila has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10076. Plaintiff Tamika Awel is an individual residing in Texas. Awel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Awel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Awel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10077. Plaintiff Michael Bailey is an individual residing in Texas. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10078. Plaintiff Alonzo Bailey is an individual residing in Texas. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10079. Plaintiff Anthony Bailey is an individual residing in Texas. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10080. Plaintiff Roderick Baker is an individual residing in Texas. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10081. Plaintiff Jennifer Baker is an individual residing in Texas. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10082. Plaintiff Ron Bakken is an individual residing in Texas. Bakken worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bakken has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bakken has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10083. Plaintiff Ubaldo Bakluda is an individual residing in Texas. Bakluda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bakluda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bakluda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10084. Plaintiff Anthony Bale is an individual residing in Texas. Bale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10085. Plaintiff Dennashi Ball is an individual residing in Texas. Ball worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ball has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ball has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10086. Plaintiff Tonya Ballard is an individual residing in Florida. Ballard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10087. Plaintiff Hollis Ballom is an individual residing in Texas. Ballom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10088. Plaintiff Alexandra Banda is an individual residing in Texas. Banda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10089. Plaintiff Calvin Banks is an individual residing in Texas. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10090. Plaintiff Sammy Barakat is an individual residing in Texas. Barakat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barakat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barakat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10091. Plaintiff Brandon Barnes is an individual residing in Texas. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10092. Plaintiff Dustin Barnett is an individual residing in Texas. Barnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10093. Plaintiff Jose Barrera Ramos is an individual residing in Texas. Barrera Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrera Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrera Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10094. Plaintiff Amanda Barrett is an individual residing in Texas. Barrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10095. Plaintiff Timmarick Bates is an individual residing in Texas. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10096. Plaintiff Derron Battle is an individual residing in Texas. Battle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Battle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Battle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10097. Plaintiff Alfred Bautista is an individual residing in Texas. Bautista worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bautista has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bautista has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10098. Plaintiff Faustino Bautista is an individual residing in Texas. Bautista worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bautista has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bautista has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10099. Plaintiff William Beaudoin is an individual residing in Texas. Beaudoin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas and Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beaudoin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beaudoin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10100. Plaintiff Phillip Beaver Ii is an individual residing in Texas. Beaver Ii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beaver Ii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beaver Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10101. Plaintiff Dalton Beck is an individual residing in Georgia. Beck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10102. Plaintiff Roderick Bell is an individual residing in Texas. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10103. Plaintiff Corey Bell is an individual residing in Texas. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10104. Plaintiff Jesse Belmarez is an individual residing in Texas. Belmarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Belmarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Belmarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10105. Plaintiff Juan Benavides is an individual residing in Texas. Benavides worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benavides has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benavides has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10106. Plaintiff Robert Benavides is an individual residing in Texas. Benavides worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1995 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benavides has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benavides has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10107. Plaintiff Dominique Bennett is an individual residing in Texas. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10108. Plaintiff Alexis Bennett is an individual residing in Texas. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10109. Plaintiff Howard Bentley is an individual residing in Texas. Bentley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bentley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bentley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10110. Plaintiff Mark Bentley is an individual residing in Texas. Bentley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bentley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bentley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10111. Plaintiff Donna Berry-Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Berry-Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berry-Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berry-Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10112. Plaintiff Joseph Birton is an individual residing in Texas. Birton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Birton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Birton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10113. Plaintiff Jamie Bisor-Bacon is an individual residing in Texas. Bisor-Bacon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bisor-Bacon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bisor-Bacon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10114. Plaintiff Eric Black is an individual residing in Texas. Black worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Black has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Black has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10115. Plaintiff Dabryan Blanton is an individual residing in Texas. Blanton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blanton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blanton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10116. Plaintiff David Blasquez is an individual residing in Texas. Blasquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blasquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blasquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10117. Plaintiff Michael Blassingame is an individual residing in Texas. Blassingame worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blassingame has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blassingame has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10118. Plaintiff Ashlea Blumenberg is an individual residing in Texas. Blumenberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blumenberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blumenberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10119. Plaintiff Randall Bohannon is an individual residing in Texas. Bohannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bohannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bohannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10120. Plaintiff Jared Bonner is an individual residing in Texas. Bonner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10121. Plaintiff Gary Bonner is an individual residing in Texas. Bonner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10122. Plaintiff Gerardo Botello is an individual residing in Texas. Botello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Botello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Botello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10123. Plaintiff Lakendra Boutte is an individual residing in Texas. Boutte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boutte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boutte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10124. Plaintiff Jeffrey Boyd is an individual residing in Texas. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10125. Plaintiff Daren Bradford is an individual residing in Texas. Bradford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10126. Plaintiff Adrein Bradley is an individual residing in Texas. Bradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10127. Plaintiff Kenya Bradley is an individual residing in Texas. Bradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10128. Plaintiff Cameron Breaux is an individual residing in Texas. Breaux worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Breaux has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Breaux has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10129. Plaintiff Andrew Brennan is an individual residing in Texas. Brennan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brennan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brennan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10130. Plaintiff Archie Brewer is an individual residing in Texas. Brewer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brewer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brewer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10131. Plaintiff Miguel Brieva is an individual residing in Texas. Brieva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brieva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brieva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10132. Plaintiff Christini Briggs is an individual residing in Texas. Briggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Briggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Briggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10133. Plaintiff Shelby Brittain is an individual residing in Texas. Brittain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brittain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brittain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10134. Plaintiff Jon Brooks is an individual residing in Texas. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10135. Plaintiff Nicholas Brooks is an individual residing in Texas. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10136. Plaintiff Jeffery Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10137. Plaintiff Arthaviea Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10138. Plaintiff Travon Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10139. Plaintiff Curtis Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10140. Plaintiff Karl Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10141. Plaintiff Jaque Brown is an individual residing in Texas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10142. Plaintiff Riley Brunson Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Brunson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas and Arkansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brunson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brunson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10143. Plaintiff David Burgess is an individual residing in Texas. Burgess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burgess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burgess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10144. Plaintiff Beverly Burke is an individual residing in Texas. Burke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10145. Plaintiff Mykeshia Burrell is an individual residing in Texas. Burrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10146. Plaintiff Joe Bustos is an individual residing in Texas. Bustos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bustos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bustos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10147. Plaintiff Anthony Calderon is an individual residing in Texas. Calderon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calderon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calderon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10148. Plaintiff Javier Calderon is an individual residing in Texas. Calderon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calderon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calderon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10149. Plaintiff Honest Calligan is an individual residing in Texas. Calligan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calligan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calligan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10150. Plaintiff Tam Cao is an individual residing in Texas. Cao worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cao has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cao has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10151. Plaintiff Hung Cao is an individual residing in Texas. Cao worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cao has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cao has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10152. Plaintiff Chasen Capehart is an individual residing in Texas. Capehart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Capehart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Capehart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10153. Plaintiff Robert Carpenter is an individual residing in Texas. Carpenter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carpenter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carpenter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10154. Plaintiff Brian Carr is an individual residing in Texas. Carr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10155. Plaintiff Jonathan Carradine is an individual residing in Texas. Carradine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carradine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carradine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10156. Plaintiff Alfonso Carranza is an individual residing in Texas. Carranza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carranza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carranza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10157. Plaintiff Rodrigo Carrasco is an individual residing in Texas. Carrasco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carrasco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carrasco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10158. Plaintiff David Carrasco, Sr. is an individual residing in Texas. Carrasco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carrasco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carrasco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10159. Plaintiff Luis Carrasco is an individual residing in Texas. Carrasco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carrasco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carrasco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10160. Plaintiff Nina Carter is an individual residing in Texas. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10161. Plaintiff Najee Carter is an individual residing in Texas. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10162. Plaintiff Patrick Carter, Sr. is an individual residing in Texas. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10163. Plaintiff Aurtha Carter is an individual residing in Texas. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10164. Plaintiff Xavier Cary is an individual residing in Texas. Cary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10165. Plaintiff Edward Newell is an individual residing in Texas. Casmier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casmier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casmier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10166. Plaintiff Francisco Castaneda is an individual residing in Texas. Castaneda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castaneda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castaneda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10167. Plaintiff David Castillo is an individual residing in Texas. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10168. Plaintiff Raul Castillo is an individual residing in Texas. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10169. Plaintiff Anthony Castloo is an individual residing in Texas. Castloo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castloo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castloo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10170. Plaintiff Ivan Castro is an individual residing in Texas. Castro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10171. Plaintiff Craig Catapano is an individual residing in Texas. Catapano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Catapano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Catapano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10172. Plaintiff Layce Cates is an individual residing in Texas. Cates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10173. Plaintiff Raul Cedillo Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Cedillo Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cedillo Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cedillo Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10174. Plaintiff Jason Chagoya is an individual residing in Texas. Chagoya worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chagoya has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chagoya has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10175. Plaintiff Lavonda Chambers is an individual residing in Texas. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10176. Plaintiff Robert Chancellor is an individual residing in Texas. Chancellor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chancellor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chancellor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10177. Plaintiff Juan Chavez is an individual residing in Texas. Chavez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10178. Plaintiff Sara Chavez is an individual residing in Texas. Chavez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10179. Plaintiff John Christner is an individual residing in Texas. Christner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10180. Plaintiff Raul Cisneros is an individual residing in Texas. Cisneros worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cisneros has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cisneros has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10181. Plaintiff Albert Clark is an individual residing in Texas. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10182. Plaintiff Sheila Clark is an individual residing in Texas. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10183. Plaintiff Joe Clark is an individual residing in Texas. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10184. Plaintiff Ish Clement is an individual residing in Texas. Clement worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clement has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clement has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10185. Plaintiff Mario Cmet is an individual residing in Texas. Cmet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cmet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cmet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10186. Plaintiff Dennis Cole is an individual residing in Texas. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10187. Plaintiff Jeffery Coleman is an individual residing in Texas. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10188. Plaintiff David Collier is an individual residing in Texas. Collier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10189. Plaintiff Kenneth Collinsworth is an individual residing in Texas. Collinsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collinsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collinsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10190. Plaintiff Cory Colston is an individual residing in Texas. Colston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10191. Plaintiff Frank Conde Iii is an individual residing in Texas. Conde Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conde Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conde Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10192. Plaintiff Derek Conley is an individual residing in Texas. Conley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10193. Plaintiff Darian Conner is an individual residing in Texas. Conner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10194. Plaintiff Jessica Contreras is an individual residing in Texas. Contreras worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Contreras has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Contreras has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10195. Plaintiff Linda Cooks is an individual residing in Texas. Cooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10196. Plaintiff Holly Copeland is an individual residing in Texas. Copeland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Copeland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Copeland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10197. Plaintiff Vlad Corneanu is an individual residing in Texas. Corneanu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corneanu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corneanu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10198. Plaintiff Hector Coronado is an individual residing in Texas. Coronado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coronado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coronado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10199. Plaintiff Miguel Coronado Jr is an individual residing in Texas. Coronado Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1999 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coronado Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coronado Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10200. Plaintiff Jorge Cortes is an individual residing in Texas. Cortes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cortes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cortes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10201. Plaintiff Isaias Covarrubias is an individual residing in Texas. Covarrubias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Covarrubias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Covarrubias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10202. Plaintiff Kevin Cox is an individual residing in Texas. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10203. Plaintiff Jason Crider is an individual residing in Texas. Crider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10204. Plaintiff Tiffany Croff is an individual residing in Texas. Croff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Croff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Croff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10205. Plaintiff Leeroy Cruz is an individual residing in Texas. Cruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10206. Plaintiff Sean Cunningham is an individual residing in Texas. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10207. Plaintiff Richard Da Rosa is an individual residing in Texas. Da Rosa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Da Rosa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Da Rosa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10208. Plaintiff Dondrico Dade is an individual residing in Arkansas. Dade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10209. Plaintiff Sandi Dailey is an individual residing in Texas. Dailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10210. Plaintiff Christina Dalfrey is an individual residing in Texas. Dalfrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dalfrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dalfrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10211. Plaintiff Kisha Dancy is an individual residing in Texas. Dancy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dancy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dancy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10212. Plaintiff Carlos Daniel is an individual residing in Texas. Daniel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10213. Plaintiff Tevin Daniels is an individual residing in Texas. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10214. Plaintiff Joseph Daniels is an individual residing in Texas. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10215. Plaintiff Joyneshia Darby is an individual residing in Texas. Darby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Darby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Darby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10216. Plaintiff Melissa Davidson is an individual residing in Texas. Davidson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davidson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davidson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10217. Plaintiff Sammy Davila is an individual residing in Texas. Davila worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davila has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davila has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10218. Plaintiff Leonard Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10219. Plaintiff Ericka Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10220. Plaintiff Craig Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10221. Plaintiff Latonya Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10222. Plaintiff Xavier Davis is an individual residing in Texas. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10223. Plaintiff Larnette Davis-Leblanc is an individual residing in Texas. Davis-Leblanc worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis-Leblanc has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis-Leblanc has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10224. Plaintiff Shaundrelle Daw is an individual residing in Texas. Daw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10225. Plaintiff Sebastian De Jesus is an individual residing in Texas. De Jesus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Jesus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Jesus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10226. Plaintiff Candace Connolly is an individual residing in Texas. De Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10227. Plaintiff Virginia Deanda is an individual residing in Texas. Deanda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deanda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deanda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10228. Plaintiff Kai Debaun is an individual residing in Texas. Debaun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Debaun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Debaun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10229. Plaintiff Savaughna Deere is an individual residing in Texas. Deere worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deere has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deere has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10230. Plaintiff Emilio Deleon is an individual residing in Texas. Deleon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deleon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deleon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10231. Plaintiff Samuel Deleon is an individual residing in Texas. Deleon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deleon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deleon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10232. Plaintiff Jeremy Demps is an individual residing in Texas. Demps worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demps has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demps has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10233. Plaintiff Phillip Demps is an individual residing in Texas. Demps worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demps has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demps has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10234. Plaintiff Bruce Dennis is an individual residing in Texas. Dennis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dennis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dennis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10235. Plaintiff Scott Dibble is an individual residing in Texas. Dibble worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dibble has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dibble has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10236. Plaintiff Silvain Domen is an individual residing in Texas. Domen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Domen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Domen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10237. Plaintiff Lewis Dominguez is an individual residing in Texas. Dominguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dominguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dominguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10238. Plaintiff Nicholas Donnell is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Donnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10239. Plaintiff Jordan Doremus is an individual residing in Texas. Doremus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doremus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doremus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10240. Plaintiff Quentin Douglas is an individual residing in Texas. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10241. Plaintiff Jessica Doyel is an individual residing in Texas. Doyel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doyel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doyel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10242. Plaintiff Elroy Dozier is an individual residing in Texas. Dozier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dozier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dozier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10243. Plaintiff Anthony Drumgoole is an individual residing in Texas. Drumgoole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drumgoole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drumgoole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10244. Plaintiff Sonny Duckworth is an individual residing in Texas. Duckworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duckworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duckworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10245. Plaintiff Ashlyne Duckworth is an individual residing in Texas. Duckworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duckworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duckworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10246. Plaintiff Larry Dukes is an individual residing in Texas. Dukes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dukes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dukes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10247. Plaintiff Robby Duncan is an individual residing in Texas. Duncan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duncan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duncan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10248. Plaintiff Desmond Dupree is an individual residing in Texas. Dupree worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dupree has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dupree has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10249. Plaintiff Roman Duran is an individual residing in Texas. Duran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10250. Plaintiff Angel Earvin is an individual residing in Texas. Earvin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earvin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earvin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10251. Plaintiff Adam Edington is an individual residing in Texas. Edington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10252. Plaintiff Rudolfo Elizondo is an individual residing in Texas. Elizondo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elizondo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elizondo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10253. Plaintiff Lynnet Elliott-White is an individual residing in Texas. Elliott-White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elliott-White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elliott-White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10254. Plaintiff Demarcus Emanuel is an individual residing in Texas. Emanuel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emanuel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emanuel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10255. Plaintiff Marvin English is an individual residing in Texas. English worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. English has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because English has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10256. Plaintiff Luis Enriquez is an individual residing in Texas. Enriquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Enriquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Enriquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10257. Plaintiff Jonathan Erling is an individual residing in Texas. Erling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Erling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Erling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10258. Plaintiff Jonathan Ervin is an individual residing in Texas. Ervin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ervin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ervin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10259. Plaintiff Joseph Esparza is an individual residing in Texas. Esparza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Esparza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Esparza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10260. Plaintiff Manuel Espitia is an individual residing in Texas. Espitia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Espitia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Espitia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10261. Plaintiff Darian Eubanks is an individual residing in Texas. Eubanks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eubanks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eubanks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10262. Plaintiff Michael Evans is an individual residing in Texas. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10263. Plaintiff Christopher Faison Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Faison Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faison Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faison Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10264. Plaintiff Daniel Falcon is an individual residing in Texas. Falcon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Falcon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Falcon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10265. Plaintiff Angel Farias is an individual residing in Texas. Farias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10266. Plaintiff Marvin Faz is an individual residing in Texas. Faz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10267. Plaintiff Robert Fernandez is an individual residing in Texas. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10268. Plaintiff Marcia Ferrer is an individual residing in Texas. Ferrer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferrer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferrer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10269. Plaintiff Jasmine Fisher is an individual residing in Texas. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10270. Plaintiff Shawn Fisher is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10271. Plaintiff Dimitri Fisher is an individual residing in Texas. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10272. Plaintiff Sharonda Fisher is an individual residing in Texas. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10273. Plaintiff Michael Fitch is an individual residing in Alabama. Fitch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1995 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fitch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fitch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10274. Plaintiff John Fleming is an individual residing in Texas. Fleming worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fleming has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fleming has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10275. Plaintiff Rafael Flores is an individual residing in Texas. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10276. Plaintiff Juan Flores is an individual residing in Texas. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10277. Plaintiff Justin Flores is an individual residing in Texas. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10278. Plaintiff Joe Flores is an individual residing in Texas. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1993 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10279. Plaintiff Ruben Flores is an individual residing in Texas. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10280. Plaintiff Ricky Florez is an individual residing in Texas. Florez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Florez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Florez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10281. Plaintiff Jamal Fofanah is an individual residing in Texas. Fofanah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fofanah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fofanah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10282. Plaintiff Anthony Fontenot is an individual residing in Louisiana. Fontenot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas and Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fontenot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fontenot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10283. Plaintiff Kevon Fore is an individual residing in Texas. Fore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10284. Plaintiff Tynisha Forrest is an individual residing in Nebraska. Forrest worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Forrest has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Forrest has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10285. Plaintiff Brandon Forster is an individual residing in Texas. Forster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Forster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Forster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10286. Plaintiff Amanda Fortin-Eisemann is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Fortin-Eisemann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fortin-Eisemann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fortin-Eisemann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10287. Plaintiff Tina Foster is an individual residing in Texas. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10288. Plaintiff Preston Frakes is an individual residing in Texas. Frakes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frakes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frakes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10289. Plaintiff Michael Francis is an individual residing in Texas. Francis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10290. Plaintiff Derek Francis Jr is an individual residing in Texas. Francis Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francis Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francis Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10291. Plaintiff Kamille Francisco is an individual residing in Texas. Francisco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francisco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francisco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10292. Plaintiff Larry Friday is an individual residing in Texas. Friday worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Friday has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Friday has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10293. Plaintiff Marcial Fuentes is an individual residing in Texas. Fuentes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuentes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuentes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10294. Plaintiff Oscar Fuentes is an individual residing in Texas. Fuentes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuentes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuentes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10295. Plaintiff Irineo Fuentes is an individual residing in Texas. Fuentes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuentes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuentes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10296. Plaintiff Vincent Gabriel is an individual residing in Texas. Gabriel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gabriel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gabriel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10297. Plaintiff Germarlin Gaines is an individual residing in Texas. Gaines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10298. Plaintiff Orvin Ganesh is an individual residing in Texas. Ganesh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ganesh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ganesh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10299. Plaintiff Javier Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10300. Plaintiff Santana Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10301. Plaintiff Alfonso Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10302. Plaintiff Raul Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10303. Plaintiff David Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10304. Plaintiff Jacob Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10305. Plaintiff Marty Garcia is an individual residing in New Mexico. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10306. Plaintiff Hipolito Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10307. Plaintiff Efrain Garcia is an individual residing in Nevada. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10308. Plaintiff Richard Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10309. Plaintiff Jerry Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10310. Plaintiff Jason Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10311. Plaintiff Rommel Garcia-Arroliga is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia-Arroliga worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia-Arroliga has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia-Arroliga has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10312. Plaintiff Raul Garcia-Ogando is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia-Ogando worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia-Ogando has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia-Ogando has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10313. Plaintiff Oscar Garza is an individual residing in Texas. Garza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10314. Plaintiff Valarie Garza is an individual residing in Texas. Garza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10315. Plaintiff James Garza is an individual residing in Texas. Garza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1998 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10316. Plaintiff Lisa Gegner is an individual residing in Texas. Gegner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gegner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gegner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10317. Plaintiff Gage Gernentz is an individual residing in Texas. Gernentz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gernentz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gernentz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10318. Plaintiff Garrison Gershon is an individual residing in Texas. Gershon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gershon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gershon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10319. Plaintiff Timothy Gibson is an individual residing in Illinois. Gibson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10320. Plaintiff Ausby Gilbert is an individual residing in Texas. Gilbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10321. Plaintiff Anthony Gilbert is an individual residing in Texas. Gilbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10322. Plaintiff Robert Giles is an individual residing in Texas. Giles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Giles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Giles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10323. Plaintiff Jalen Gilford is an individual residing in Texas. Gilford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10324. Plaintiff Tiffany Gilmore is an individual residing in Texas. Gilmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10325. Plaintiff Ashley Gilmore is an individual residing in Texas. Gilmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10326. Plaintiff Yarann Glenn is an individual residing in Texas. Glenn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glenn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glenn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10327. Plaintiff Anthony Godfrey is an individual residing in Texas. Godfrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godfrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godfrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10328. Plaintiff Joe-Anthony Godina is an individual residing in Texas. Godina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10329. Plaintiff Chadwick Godine is an individual residing in Texas. Godine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10330. Plaintiff Ashley Goffney is an individual residing in Texas. Goffney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goffney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goffney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10331. Plaintiff Paula Goldsby is an individual residing in Texas. Goldsby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goldsby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goldsby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10332. Plaintiff Guadalupe Gomez is an individual residing in Texas. Gomez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gomez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gomez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10333. Plaintiff Juan Gonzales is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10334. Plaintiff Marcelina Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10335. Plaintiff Shareefah Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10336. Plaintiff Damian Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10337. Plaintiff Gloria Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10338. Plaintiff Jose Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10339. Plaintiff Justin Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10340. Plaintiff Ramon Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10341. Plaintiff Mario Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10342. Plaintiff Daniel Gonzalez-Lopez is an individual residing in Texas. Gonzalez-Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez-Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez-Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10343. Plaintiff Dorothy Goodjoint is an individual residing in Texas. Goodjoint worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodjoint has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodjoint has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10344. Plaintiff Dorothy Goodjoint is an individual residing in Texas. Goodjoint worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodjoint has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodjoint has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10345. Plaintiff Jamarcus Green is an individual residing in Texas. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10346. Plaintiff Anthony Green is an individual residing in Texas. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10347. Plaintiff Willia-Mae Green-Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Green-Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green-Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green-Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10348. Plaintiff Damon Greer is an individual residing in Texas. Greer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10349. Plaintiff Richard Grissom is an individual residing in Texas. Grissom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grissom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grissom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10350. Plaintiff Richard Gruwell is an individual residing in Texas. Gruwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gruwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gruwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10351. Plaintiff Frances Guerra is an individual residing in Texas. Guerra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guerra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guerra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10352. Plaintiff Thomas Guerra is an individual residing in Texas. Guerra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guerra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guerra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10353. Plaintiff Gabriel Guerrero is an individual residing in Texas. Guerrero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guerrero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guerrero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10354. Plaintiff Rodriguez Guillermo is an individual residing in Texas. Guillermo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guillermo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guillermo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10355. Plaintiff Matthew Gurule is an individual residing in Texas. Gurule worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gurule has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gurule has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10356. Plaintiff Luis Gutierrez is an individual residing in Texas. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10357. Plaintiff Brandon Gutierrez is an individual residing in Texas. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10358. Plaintiff Juan Gutierrez is an individual residing in Texas. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1900 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10359. Plaintiff Freddy Guzman is an individual residing in Texas. Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10360. Plaintiff Kimberley Guzman-Garza is an individual residing in Texas. Guzman-Garza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman-Garza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman-Garza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10361. Plaintiff Derus Haggerty is an individual residing in Texas. Haggerty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haggerty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haggerty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10362. Plaintiff Derrick Hailey is an individual residing in Texas. Hailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10363. Plaintiff Anthony Hall is an individual residing in Texas. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10364. Plaintiff Gerald Hall is an individual residing in Texas. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10365. Plaintiff Corree Hall is an individual residing in Texas. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10366. Plaintiff Effie Hallman is an individual residing in Texas. Hallman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hallman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hallman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10367. Plaintiff Spurgeon Ham is an individual residing in Texas. Ham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10368. Plaintiff Joe Hamilton is an individual residing in Texas. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10369. Plaintiff David Hamilton is an individual residing in Colorado. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10370. Plaintiff Marlin Hammons is an individual residing in Texas. Hammons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hammons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hammons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10371. Plaintiff Clinton Hanby is an individual residing in Texas. Hanby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10372. Plaintiff Willieb Hardeman is an individual residing in Texas. Hardeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10373. Plaintiff Danielle Hardeman is an individual residing in Texas. Hardeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10374. Plaintiff Maurice Harper is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10375. Plaintiff Adrien Harris is an individual residing in Texas. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10376. Plaintiff Desidre Harris is an individual residing in Texas. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10377. Plaintiff Steven Harris is an individual residing in Texas. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10378. Plaintiff Bobby Harris is an individual residing in Texas. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10379. Plaintiff Walter Harrison is an individual residing in Texas. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10380. Plaintiff James Harvey is an individual residing in Texas. Harvey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harvey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harvey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10381. Plaintiff Ahmed Hassan is an individual residing in Texas. Hassan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10382. Plaintiff Lorie Hayes is an individual residing in Texas. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10383. Plaintiff Robert Hayes is an individual residing in Texas. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10384. Plaintiff Anthony Hayes is an individual residing in Texas. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10385. Plaintiff Damon Hayes is an individual residing in Texas. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10386. Plaintiff Tammie Haynes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Haynes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haynes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haynes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10387. Plaintiff Thaddeus Heade is an individual residing in Texas. Heade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10388. Plaintiff Tywanna Heard is an individual residing in Texas. Heard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10389. Plaintiff Sandon Helm is an individual residing in Texas. Helm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas and Colorado from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10390. Plaintiff Derrick Henderson is an individual residing in Texas. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10391. Plaintiff L Henry, Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Henry, Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry, Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry, Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10392. Plaintiff Robert Herer is an individual residing in New Jersey. Herer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10393. Plaintiff Eliseo Hernandez is an individual residing in Texas. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10394. Plaintiff Simon Hernandez is an individual residing in Texas. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10395. Plaintiff Buddy Hernandez is an individual residing in Texas. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10396. Plaintiff Eduardo Herrera is an individual residing in Texas. Herrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10397. Plaintiff George Herrera is an individual residing in Texas. Herrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10398. Plaintiff Matthew Herrera is an individual residing in Texas. Herrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10399. Plaintiff George Herrers is an individual residing in Texas. Herrers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10400. Plaintiff Jordan Hess is an individual residing in Texas. Hess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10401. Plaintiff Shynitra Hicks is an individual residing in Texas. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10402. Plaintiff Felton Hicks is an individual residing in Texas. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10403. Plaintiff Stephen Hicks is an individual residing in Texas. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10404. Plaintiff Kimbley Hill is an individual residing in Texas. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10405. Plaintiff Emma Hill is an individual residing in Texas. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10406. Plaintiff David Hilliard is an individual residing in Texas. Hilliard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilliard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilliard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10407. Plaintiff Anthony Hines is an individual residing in Texas. Hines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1900 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10408. Plaintiff Brandon Hodges is an individual residing in Texas. Hodges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hodges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hodges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10409. Plaintiff Kenneth Holden is an individual residing in Texas. Holden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10410. Plaintiff John Holguin is an individual residing in Texas. Holguin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holguin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holguin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10411. Plaintiff Ryan Hollerman is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hollerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Hollerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10412. Plaintiff Charles Hollie is an individual residing in Texas. Hollie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10413. Plaintiff Calvin Holmes is an individual residing in Texas. Holmes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holmes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holmes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10414. Plaintiff Darrin Home is an individual residing in Texas. Home worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Home has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Home has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10415. Plaintiff Steven Howard is an individual residing in Texas. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10416. Plaintiff Tom Howland is an individual residing in Texas. Howland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10417. Plaintiff Tevin Hubbard is an individual residing in Texas. Hubbard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10418. Plaintiff Donald Hubbard is an individual residing in Texas. Hubbard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10419. Plaintiff Christopher Hudek is an individual residing in Texas. Hudek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10420. Plaintiff Lacy Hudson is an individual residing in Texas. Hudson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10421. Plaintiff Corey Hughes is an individual residing in Texas. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10422. Plaintiff Heather Hunt is an individual residing in Texas. Hunt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10423. Plaintiff Delphine Hunt is an individual residing in Texas. Hunt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10424. Plaintiff Rashad Hurd is an individual residing in Texas. Hurd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hurd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hurd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10425. Plaintiff Syed Hussain is an individual residing in Texas. Hussain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hussain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hussain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10426. Plaintiff Aleksandar Ilic is an individual residing in Texas. Ilic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ilic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ilic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10427. Plaintiff Warren Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10428. Plaintiff Damain Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10429. Plaintiff Gregory Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10430. Plaintiff Johnny Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10431. Plaintiff Candice Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10432. Plaintiff Eric Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10433. Plaintiff Jerome Jackson is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10434. Plaintiff Wanessa Jackson-Banks is an individual residing in Texas. Jackson-Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson-Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson-Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10435. Plaintiff Mary Jeffries is an individual residing in Texas. Jeffries worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeffries has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeffries has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10436. Plaintiff Michael Jennings is an individual residing in Texas. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10437. Plaintiff Dusty Johansen is an individual residing in Texas. Johansen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johansen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johansen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10438. Plaintiff Donya Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10439. Plaintiff Gwyndolyn Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10440. Plaintiff Jill Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10441. Plaintiff Jarred Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10442. Plaintiff Reginald Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10443. Plaintiff Reginald Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10444. Plaintiff Valencia Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10445. Plaintiff Eldent Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10446. Plaintiff Chaka Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10447. Plaintiff Randy Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10448. Plaintiff Bobby Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10449. Plaintiff Tremendous Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10450. Plaintiff Calvin Johnson Iii is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10451. Plaintiff Anthony Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10452. Plaintiff Javon Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10453. Plaintiff Tywon Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10454. Plaintiff Alicia Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10455. Plaintiff Brandon Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10456. Plaintiff Sharon Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10457. Plaintiff Steven Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10458. Plaintiff Antonio Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10459. Plaintiff Michael Jones is an individual residing in Texas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10460. Plaintiff Tony Joseph is an individual residing in Texas. Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10461. Plaintiff Michael Joyce is an individual residing in Texas. Joyce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joyce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joyce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10462. Plaintiff Michelle Juarez is an individual residing in Texas. Juarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Juarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Juarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10463. Plaintiff Troy Jupiter is an individual residing in Texas. Jupiter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jupiter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jupiter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10464. Plaintiff Nikolas Jurado is an individual residing in Texas. Jurado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jurado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jurado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10465. Plaintiff Geoffrey Karcher is an individual residing in Texas. Karcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Karcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Karcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10466. Plaintiff Quendon Keels is an individual residing in Texas. Keels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10467. Plaintiff Freda Kelley is an individual residing in Texas. Kelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10468. Plaintiff Sharon Kelly is an individual residing in Texas. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10469. Plaintiff Oneal Kennon is an individual residing in Texas. Kennon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10470. Plaintiff Tibor Keya is an individual residing in Texas. Keya worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keya has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keya has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10471. Plaintiff Keydreprince Keydreprince Luna is an individual residing in Texas. Keydreprince Luna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keydreprince Luna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keydreprince Luna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10472. Plaintiff Daniel Kim is an individual residing in Texas. Kim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10473. Plaintiff Ladonna Kimsey is an individual residing in Texas. Kimsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kimsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kimsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10474. Plaintiff Rebecca Kiphen-Newsome is an individual residing in Minnesota. Kiphen-Newsome worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kiphen-Newsome has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kiphen-Newsome has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10475. Plaintiff Shandrea Kirby is an individual residing in Texas. Kirby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10476. Plaintiff Kristian Kleinert is an individual residing in Texas. Kleinert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kleinert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kleinert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10477. Plaintiff Harold Knightshed is an individual residing in Texas. Knightshed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knightshed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knightshed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10478. Plaintiff Darryl Kowalski is an individual residing in Texas. Kowalski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kowalski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kowalski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10479. Plaintiff Kary Krafve is an individual residing in Texas. Krafve worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krafve has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krafve has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10480. Plaintiff Oliver Lacosta is an individual residing in California. Lacosta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lacosta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lacosta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10481. Plaintiff Karron Lalande is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lalande worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lalande has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lalande has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10482. Plaintiff Evan Lange is an individual residing in Arizona. Lange worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lange has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lange has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10483. Plaintiff Jolanca Lasalle is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lasalle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lasalle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lasalle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10484. Plaintiff Titus Lathen is an individual residing in Texas. Lathen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lathen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lathen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10485. Plaintiff April Lattimore is an individual residing in Texas. Lattimore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lattimore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lattimore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10486. Plaintiff Juan Leal is an individual residing in Texas. Leal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10487. Plaintiff Alfredo Leblanc is an individual residing in Texas. Leblanc worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leblanc has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leblanc has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10488. Plaintiff Devon Lecompte is an individual residing in Texas. Lecompte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lecompte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lecompte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10489. Plaintiff Christopher Ledesma is an individual residing in Texas. Ledesma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ledesma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ledesma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10490. Plaintiff Lawhalen Lee is an individual residing in Texas. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10491. Plaintiff Labridgett Lewis is an individual residing in Texas. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10492. Plaintiff Shearon Lewis is an individual residing in Texas. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10493. Plaintiff Le Lindsey is an individual residing in Texas. Lindsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lindsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lindsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10494. Plaintiff Steve Liomnes is an individual residing in Texas. Liomnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Liomnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Liomnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10495. Plaintiff Bryant Livingston is an individual residing in Texas. Livingston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Livingston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Livingston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10496. Plaintiff Nikeyia Locke is an individual residing in Texas. Locke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Locke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Locke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10497. Plaintiff Edward Loredó is an individual residing in Texas. Loredó worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loredó has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loredó has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10498. Plaintiff Emile Lowe is an individual residing in Texas. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10499. Plaintiff Luis Loza is an individual residing in Texas. Loza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10500. Plaintiff Juan Lozada Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Lozada Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lozada Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lozada Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10501. Plaintiff Malachi Luevano is an individual residing in Missouri. Luevano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luevano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luevano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10502. Plaintiff Eric Lugo is an individual residing in Texas. Lugo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lugo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lugo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10503. Plaintiff Clayton Lundell is an individual residing in Texas. Lundell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lundell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lundell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10504. Plaintiff Dasi Lynch is an individual residing in Texas. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10505. Plaintiff Kyle Lynch is an individual residing in Texas. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10506. Plaintiff Kimberly Lynch is an individual residing in Texas. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10507. Plaintiff Donny Lyons is an individual residing in Texas. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10508. Plaintiff Komlan M Agbalevon is an individual residing in Texas. M Agbalevon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. M Agbalevon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because M Agbalevon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10509. Plaintiff Allyson Mackey is an individual residing in Texas. Mackey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mackey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mackey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10510. Plaintiff Edward Madigan is an individual residing in Texas. Madigan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Madigan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Madigan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10511. Plaintiff John Maina is an individual residing in Texas. Maina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10512. Plaintiff Jacob Marin is an individual residing in Texas. Marin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10513. Plaintiff Kearsten Marion is an individual residing in Texas. Marion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10514. Plaintiff Ivan Marte is an individual residing in Texas. Marte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas and New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10515. Plaintiff Shemica Martin is an individual residing in Texas. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10516. Plaintiff Steven Martin is an individual residing in Texas. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10517. Plaintiff Jose Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10518. Plaintiff Derek Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10519. Plaintiff Oziel Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10520. Plaintiff Samuel Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10521. Plaintiff Francisco Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10522. Plaintiff Juan Martnez is an individual residing in Texas. Martnez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martnez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martnez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10523. Plaintiff Crystal Mascorro is an individual residing in Texas. Mascorro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mascorro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mascorro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10524. Plaintiff Jonathan Mason is an individual residing in Texas. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10525. Plaintiff Robert Mattes is an individual residing in Texas. Mattes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mattes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mattes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10526. Plaintiff Jack Maupin Jr is an individual residing in Texas. Maupin Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maupin Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maupin Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10527. Plaintiff David Maynard is an individual residing in Texas. Maynard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maynard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maynard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10528. Plaintiff Arthur Mayo is an individual residing in Texas. Mayo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10529. Plaintiff Noel Mc Cue is an individual residing in Texas. Mc Cue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mc Cue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mc Cue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10530. Plaintiff Rodney Reyes is an individual residing in Texas. Mcallister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcallister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcallister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10531. Plaintiff Geturemae McBride/Nwarisi is an individual residing in Texas. McBride-Nwarisi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBride-Nwarisi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBride-Nwarisi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10532. Plaintiff Ethan Mcclung is an individual residing in Texas. Mcclung worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclung has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclung has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10533. Plaintiff Chavis Mccollister is an individual residing in Texas. Mccollister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccollister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccollister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10534. Plaintiff Larry Mccowin is an individual residing in Texas. Mccowin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccowin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccowin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10535. Plaintiff Dale Mccraw is an individual residing in Texas. Mccraw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccraw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccraw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10536. Plaintiff Charles Mccray is an individual residing in Texas. Mccray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10537. Plaintiff Hendric Mcdaniel is an individual residing in Texas. Mcdaniel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdaniel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdaniel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10538. Plaintiff Omar Mcdowell is an individual residing in Texas. Mcdowell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdowell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdowell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10539. Plaintiff Keith Mcfarland is an individual residing in Texas. Mcfarland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcfarland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcfarland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10540. Plaintiff Robert Mcfarland is an individual residing in Texas. Mcfarland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcfarland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcfarland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10541. Plaintiff Arthur McGowen is an individual residing in Texas. McGowen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGowen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGowen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10542. Plaintiff Andre Mcmillon is an individual residing in Texas. Mcmillon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcmillon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcmillon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10543. Plaintiff Julie McMullen is an individual residing in Texas. McMullen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McMullen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McMullen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10544. Plaintiff Lance Medina is an individual residing in Texas. Medina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10545. Plaintiff Arquimedes Melendez is an individual residing in Texas. Melendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Melendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Melendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10546. Plaintiff Javier Menchaca is an individual residing in Texas. Menchaca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Menchaca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Menchaca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10547. Plaintiff Andrea Mendoza is an individual residing in Texas. Mendoza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendoza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendoza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10548. Plaintiff Antonio Menefee is an individual residing in Texas. Menefee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Menefee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Menefee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10549. Plaintiff Corderro Menfield is an individual residing in Texas. Menfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Menfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Menfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10550. Plaintiff Antonio Mercardo is an individual residing in Texas. Mercardo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mercardo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mercardo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10551. Plaintiff Anthony Mesa is an individual residing in Texas. Mesa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mesa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mesa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10552. Plaintiff Adam Meza is an individual residing in Texas. Meza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10553. Plaintiff Ermont Miles is an individual residing in Texas. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10554. Plaintiff Hayli Miller is an individual residing in Texas. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10555. Plaintiff Meagan Miller is an individual residing in Texas. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10556. Plaintiff Jeremy Miller is an individual residing in Indiana. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10557. Plaintiff Allen Miller is an individual residing in Texas. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10558. Plaintiff Joshua Miller is an individual residing in Texas. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10559. Plaintiff Marian Mitchell is an individual residing in Texas. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10560. Plaintiff Shane Mitchell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10561. Plaintiff Jarrett Mobley is an individual residing in Texas. Mobley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mobley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mobley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10562. Plaintiff Daniel Monjaraz is an individual residing in Texas. Monjaraz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Monjaraz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monjaraz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10563. Plaintiff Javier Montanez is an individual residing in Texas. Montanez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montanez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montanez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10564. Plaintiff Jackson Montilla Altamar is an individual residing in Texas. Montilla Altamar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montilla Altamar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montilla Altamar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10565. Plaintiff Ronald Moore is an individual residing in Texas. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10566. Plaintiff Denise Moore Walton is an individual residing in Texas. Moore Walton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore Walton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore Walton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10567. Plaintiff Romeo Moorej is an individual residing in Texas. Moorej worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moorej has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moorej has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10568. Plaintiff Reynaldo Mora is an individual residing in Texas. Mora worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mora has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mora has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10569. Plaintiff Paula Morales is an individual residing in Texas. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10570. Plaintiff Carlos Morales is an individual residing in Texas. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10571. Plaintiff Remington Hughes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10572. Plaintiff Hendrik Morales, Sr. is an individual residing in Texas. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10573. Plaintiff Troy Morgan is an individual residing in Texas. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10574. Plaintiff Lakermi Morgan is an individual residing in Texas. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10575. Plaintiff Alec Morman is an individual residing in Texas. Morman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10576. Plaintiff Raquel Morton is an individual residing in Texas. Morton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10577. Plaintiff Haile Moses is an individual residing in Texas. Moses worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moses has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moses has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10578. Plaintiff Edward Mota is an individual residing in Texas. Mota worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1900 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mota has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mota has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10579. Plaintiff Romell Mouton is an individual residing in Texas. Mouton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mouton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mouton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10580. Plaintiff Kevin Muhammad is an individual residing in Texas. Muhammad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muhammad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muhammad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10581. Plaintiff Manuel Mukes is an individual residing in Texas. Mukes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mukes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mukes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10582. Plaintiff Annette Mumphrey is an individual residing in Texas. Mumphrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mumphrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mumphrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10583. Plaintiff Adrian Munos is an individual residing in Texas. Munos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10584. Plaintiff Edward Munoz is an individual residing in Texas. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10585. Plaintiff Gerardo Munoz is an individual residing in Missouri. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10586. Plaintiff Laquisha Murphy is an individual residing in Texas. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10587. Plaintiff Lee Murphy Iii is an individual residing in Texas. Murphy Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10588. Plaintiff Laurence Murtagh is an individual residing in Texas. Murtagh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murtagh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murtagh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10589. Plaintiff Rashad Myers is an individual residing in Texas. Myers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10590. Plaintiff Lalita Myrick is an individual residing in Texas. Myrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10591. Plaintiff Guadalupe Naranjo Iii is an individual residing in Texas. Naranjo Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naranjo Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naranjo Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10592. Plaintiff Raquel Navarrete is an individual residing in Texas. Navarrete worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Navarrete has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Navarrete has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10593. Plaintiff Brenden Neidhart is an individual residing in Texas. Neidhart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neidhart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neidhart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10594. Plaintiff Jamal Newton is an individual residing in Texas. Newton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10595. Plaintiff Ruby Nieto is an individual residing in Texas. Nieto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nieto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nieto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10596. Plaintiff Dawn Nobles is an individual residing in Texas. Nobles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nobles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nobles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10597. Plaintiff Jana Notley is an individual residing in Louisiana. Notley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Notley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Notley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10598. Plaintiff Victor Nunez is an individual residing in Texas. Nunez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10599. Plaintiff Nathan Nunn is an individual residing in Texas. Nunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10600. Plaintiff Kevin Odoms is an individual residing in Texas. Odoms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1991 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Odoms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Odoms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10601. Plaintiff Ademola Oladeru is an individual residing in Texas. Oladeru worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oladeru has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oladeru has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10602. Plaintiff Franky Olivarez is an individual residing in Texas. Olivarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olivarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olivarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10603. Plaintiff Carlos Oller Tamayo is an individual residing in Texas. Oller Tamayo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oller Tamayo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oller Tamayo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10604. Plaintiff Larry Omdahl is an individual residing in Texas. Omdahl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Omdahl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Omdahl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10605. Plaintiff Conor Oreilly is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Oreilly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oreilly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oreilly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10606. Plaintiff Luis Ortiz is an individual residing in Texas. Ortiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10607. Plaintiff Katanya Osborne is an individual residing in Texas. Osborne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osborne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osborne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10608. Plaintiff Kamelia Osborne is an individual residing in Texas. Osborne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osborne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osborne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10609. Plaintiff Adedayo Otokiti is an individual residing in Texas. Otokiti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Otokiti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Otokiti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10610. Plaintiff Arturo Ovalle is an individual residing in Texas. Ovalle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ovalle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ovalle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10611. Plaintiff Jaclynne Ozuna is an individual residing in Texas. Ozuna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ozuna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ozuna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10612. Plaintiff John Padgett is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Padgett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padgett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padgett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10613. Plaintiff Rudy Padilla is an individual residing in Texas. Padilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10614. Plaintiff Adrian Padilla is an individual residing in Texas. Padilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10615. Plaintiff Laurie Padron is an individual residing in Texas. Padron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10616. Plaintiff Eddy Palmer is an individual residing in Texas. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10617. Plaintiff Jason Pantohan is an individual residing in Texas. Pantohan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pantohan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pantohan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10618. Plaintiff Latresel Patterson / Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Patterson / Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Patterson / Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson / Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10619. Plaintiff Carl Pearson is an individual residing in Texas. Pearson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pearson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pearson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10620. Plaintiff Barry Pearson is an individual residing in Texas. Pearson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pearson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pearson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10621. Plaintiff Javier Pedroza is an individual residing in Texas. Pedroza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pedroza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pedroza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10622. Plaintiff Marquis Pellam is an individual residing in Texas. Pellam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pellam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pellam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10623. Plaintiff Norman Pelletier is an individual residing in Arizona. Pelletier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pelletier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pelletier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10624. Plaintiff Tevin Pelzer is an individual residing in Georgia. Pelzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pelzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pelzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10625. Plaintiff Hector Pena is an individual residing in Texas. Pena worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pena has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pena has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10626. Plaintiff Eduardo Percia is an individual residing in Texas. Percia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Percia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Percia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10627. Plaintiff Diego Perez is an individual residing in Texas. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10628. Plaintiff Joseph Perez is an individual residing in Texas. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10629. Plaintiff Steven Perez is an individual residing in Texas. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10630. Plaintiff Abimelec Perez Kuilan is an individual residing in Texas. Perez Kuilan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez Kuilan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez Kuilan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10631. Plaintiff Quinton Perkins is an individual residing in Texas. Perkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10632. Plaintiff Shaunte Perry is an individual residing in Texas. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10633. Plaintiff Dusty Phipps is an individual residing in Texas. Phipps worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phipps has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phipps has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10634. Plaintiff Miguel Piccolo is an individual residing in Texas. Piccolo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piccolo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piccolo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10635. Plaintiff Gerald Pickett is an individual residing in Texas. Pickett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pickett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pickett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10636. Plaintiff Adrian Pierre is an individual residing in Texas. Pierre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10637. Plaintiff Eugene Pike is an individual residing in Texas. Pike worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pike has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pike has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10638. Plaintiff Warren Poile is an individual residing in Texas. Poile worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poile has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poile has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10639. Plaintiff Giancarlo Pomar is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pomar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pomar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pomar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10640. Plaintiff David Pool is an individual residing in Texas. Pool worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pool has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pool has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10641. Plaintiff Darious Porter is an individual residing in California. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10642. Plaintiff Geromey Porter is an individual residing in Texas. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10643. Plaintiff Chris Portwood is an individual residing in Texas. Portwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Portwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Portwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10644. Plaintiff Shiann Postell is an individual residing in Texas. Postell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Postell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Postell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10645. Plaintiff David Pouncy is an individual residing in Texas. Pouncy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pouncy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pouncy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10646. Plaintiff Christopher Pouncy is an individual residing in Texas. Pouncy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pouncy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pouncy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10647. Plaintiff Jonathan Powell is an individual residing in Texas. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10648. Plaintiff Billy Pradia is an individual residing in Texas. Pradia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pradia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pradia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10649. Plaintiff Daniel Prado is an individual residing in Texas. Prado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10650. Plaintiff Eric Prendez is an individual residing in Texas. Prendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10651. Plaintiff Derek Price is an individual residing in Texas. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10652. Plaintiff Crystal Priestly is an individual residing in Texas. Priestly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Priestly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Priestly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10653. Plaintiff Timothy Prince is an individual residing in New Jersey. Prince worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prince has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prince has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10654. Plaintiff Laura Pruitt is an individual residing in Texas. Pruitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pruitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pruitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10655. Plaintiff Heather Pues is an individual residing in Texas. Pues worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pues has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pues has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10656. Plaintiff Demarrio Pyatt is an individual residing in California. Pyatt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pyatt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pyatt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10657. Plaintiff Abel Quezada is an individual residing in Texas. Quezada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quezada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quezada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10658. Plaintiff Tracy Radley is an individual residing in Texas. Radley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10659. Plaintiff Jacob Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10660. Plaintiff Joel Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10661. Plaintiff Alexis Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10662. Plaintiff Anderson Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10663. Plaintiff Jordan Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10664. Plaintiff Jake Ramirez is an individual residing in Texas. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10665. Plaintiff Bobby Ramon is an individual residing in Texas. Ramon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10666. Plaintiff Scott Ramos is an individual residing in Texas. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10667. Plaintiff Carlton Rand is an individual residing in Texas. Rand worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rand has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rand has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10668. Plaintiff Shane Randall is an individual residing in Texas. Randall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10669. Plaintiff Timothy Randle is an individual residing in Texas. Randle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10670. Plaintiff Jon Rangel is an individual residing in Texas. Rangel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rangel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rangel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10671. Plaintiff Aaron Ray is an individual residing in Texas. Ray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10672. Plaintiff Stephen Recchia is an individual residing in Texas. Recchia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Recchia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Recchia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10673. Plaintiff Russell Reed is an individual residing in Texas. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10674. Plaintiff Kadarius Reeder is an individual residing in Texas. Reeder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reeder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reeder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10675. Plaintiff Eltonte Reese is an individual residing in Texas. Reese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10676. Plaintiff Jorge Regalado is an individual residing in Texas. Regalado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Regalado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Regalado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10677. Plaintiff Thierry Rene is an individual residing in Texas. Rene worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rene has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rene has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10678. Plaintiff Pete Reyes is an individual residing in Texas. Reyes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reyes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reyes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10679. Plaintiff Jason Reyna is an individual residing in Texas. Reyna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reyna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reyna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10680. Plaintiff Latisha Bellvin is an individual residing in Texas. Rhinehart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhinehart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhinehart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10681. Plaintiff Eddie Rhone is an individual residing in Texas. Rhone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10682. Plaintiff Giovanni Ricciardi is an individual residing in Texas. Ricciardi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricciardi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricciardi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10683. Plaintiff Amy Rich is an individual residing in Texas. Rich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10684. Plaintiff Troy Richardson is an individual residing in Texas. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10685. Plaintiff Nicole Richardson is an individual residing in Texas. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10686. Plaintiff Vernon Richardson is an individual residing in Texas. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10687. Plaintiff Clement Richardson is an individual residing in Texas. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10688. Plaintiff Isaac Richardson is an individual residing in Texas. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10689. Plaintiff Angel Rico is an individual residing in Texas. Rico worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rico has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rico has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10690. Plaintiff Kevin Rios is an individual residing in Texas. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10691. Plaintiff Adam Rios is an individual residing in Texas. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10692. Plaintiff Kevin Rios Rivera is an individual residing in Texas. Rios Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10693. Plaintiff Christopher Rivas is an individual residing in Texas. Rivas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10694. Plaintiff Luis Rivera is an individual residing in Texas. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10695. Plaintiff Antonio Rivera is an individual residing in Texas. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10696. Plaintiff Ramon Rivera Cruz is an individual residing in Texas. Rivera Cruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera Cruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera Cruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10697. Plaintiff Ricardo Rivera Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Rivera Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10698. Plaintiff William Robertson is an individual residing in Texas. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10699. Plaintiff Shannon Robinson is an individual residing in Texas. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10700. Plaintiff Natasha Robinson is an individual residing in Georgia. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10701. Plaintiff Julius Robinson is an individual residing in Texas. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10702. Plaintiff Richard Rocha is an individual residing in Texas. Rocha worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rocha has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rocha has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10703. Plaintiff Jorge Rodriguez is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10704. Plaintiff Erik Rodriguez is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10705. Plaintiff Gerardo Rodriguez is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10706. Plaintiff Denise Rodriguez is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10707. Plaintiff Danielle Rodriguez-Chavez is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguez-Chavez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez-Chavez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez-Chavez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10708. Plaintiff Luis Rodriguezruiz is an individual residing in Texas. Rodriguezruiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguezruiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguezruiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10709. Plaintiff Isaac Romanko is an individual residing in Texas. Romanko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Romanko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Romanko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10710. Plaintiff Johnny Romero is an individual residing in Texas. Romero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Romero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Romero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10711. Plaintiff Samuel Rosa is an individual residing in Texas. Rosa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10712. Plaintiff Aurelio Rosales is an individual residing in Texas. Rosales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10713. Plaintiff Gregory Rose is an individual residing in Texas. Rose worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rose has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rose has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10714. Plaintiff Jason Roy is an individual residing in Texas. Roy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10715. Plaintiff Joshua Rubio is an individual residing in Texas. Rubio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rubio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rubio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10716. Plaintiff Charles Walker is an individual residing in Texas. Ruggles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruggles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruggles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10717. Plaintiff Christopher Ruggles, Sr is an individual residing in Kansas. Ruggles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruggles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruggles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10718. Plaintiff Marquel Russell is an individual residing in Texas. Russell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10719. Plaintiff Miguel Salas is an individual residing in Texas. Salas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10720. Plaintiff Pedro Salas is an individual residing in Texas. Salas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10721. Plaintiff Juan Salas is an individual residing in Texas. Salas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10722. Plaintiff Adam Salazar is an individual residing in Texas. Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10723. Plaintiff Robert Salazar is an individual residing in Texas. Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10724. Plaintiff Christopher Salazar is an individual residing in Texas. Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10725. Plaintiff Jorge Salazar is an individual residing in Texas. Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10726. Plaintiff Dave Saldana is an individual residing in Texas. Saldana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saldana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saldana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10727. Plaintiff Anthony Saldivar is an individual residing in Texas. Saldivar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saldivar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saldivar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10728. Plaintiff Robert Salgado is an individual residing in Texas. Salgado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salgado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salgado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10729. Plaintiff Jose Salinas is an individual residing in Texas. Salinas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salinas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salinas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10730. Plaintiff Jerry Sallee is an individual residing in Texas. Sallee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sallee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sallee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10731. Plaintiff Jeremiah Sam-Kpakra is an individual residing in Texas. Sam-Kpakra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sam-Kpakra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sam-Kpakra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10732. Plaintiff Michael Samuels is an individual residing in Texas. Samuels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samuels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samuels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10733. Plaintiff Andrew Sanchez is an individual residing in Texas. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10734. Plaintiff Nathaniel Sanchez is an individual residing in Texas. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10735. Plaintiff Frederick Sanders is an individual residing in Texas. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10736. Plaintiff Agustin Sandoval is an individual residing in Texas. Sandoval worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sandoval has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sandoval has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10737. Plaintiff Eduardo Santana is an individual residing in Texas. Santana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10738. Plaintiff Victor Saracho is an individual residing in Texas. Saracho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saracho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saracho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10739. Plaintiff Alek Schott is an individual residing in Texas. Schott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10740. Plaintiff Randy Scott is an individual residing in Texas. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10741. Plaintiff Glenn Scott Jr. is an individual residing in Texas. Scott Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10742. Plaintiff Marco Segoviano is an individual residing in Texas. Segoviano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Segoviano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Segoviano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10743. Plaintiff Robert Segura is an individual residing in Texas. Segura worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1998 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Segura has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Segura has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10744. Plaintiff Dequince Sells is an individual residing in Texas. Sells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10745. Plaintiff Marco Serrato is an individual residing in Texas. Serrato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Serrato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Serrato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10746. Plaintiff Matt Sethi is an individual residing in Texas. Sethi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sethi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sethi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10747. Plaintiff John Sheridan is an individual residing in Texas. Sheridan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheridan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheridan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10748. Plaintiff Gwendelyn Sherman is an individual residing in Texas. Sherman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10749. Plaintiff Misti Showalter is an individual residing in Texas. Showalter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Showalter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Showalter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10750. Plaintiff Jordanis Sierra Martinez is an individual residing in Texas. Sierra Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sierra Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sierra Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10751. Plaintiff Andrew Sifuentes is an individual residing in Texas. Sifuentes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sifuentes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sifuentes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10752. Plaintiff Theodore Simmons is an individual residing in Texas. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10753. Plaintiff Ninedavone Simpraseuth is an individual residing in Texas. Simpraseuth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpraseuth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpraseuth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10754. Plaintiff Rokette Simpson is an individual residing in Texas. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10755. Plaintiff Colby Simpson is an individual residing in Texas. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10756. Plaintiff Timothy Sims is an individual residing in Texas. Sims worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sims has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sims has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10757. Plaintiff Karambir Singh is an individual residing in Texas. Singh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Singh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Singh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10758. Plaintiff Kaikham Sisomphane is an individual residing in Texas. Sisomphane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2001 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sisomphane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sisomphane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10759. Plaintiff Joey Sital is an individual residing in Texas. Sital worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sital has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sital has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10760. Plaintiff Lee Small is an individual residing in Texas. Small worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Small has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Small has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10761. Plaintiff Richard Smart is an individual residing in Texas. Smart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10762. Plaintiff Jerry Smart Jr is an individual residing in Texas. Smart Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smart Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smart Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10763. Plaintiff Rodwick Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10764. Plaintiff David Smith is an individual residing in Florida. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10765. Plaintiff Lynn Smith is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10766. Plaintiff Tyler Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10767. Plaintiff John Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10768. Plaintiff Luke Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10769. Plaintiff Donald Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10770. Plaintiff Damareon Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10771. Plaintiff Freda Smith Baker is an individual residing in Texas. Smith Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10772. Plaintiff Randy Son is an individual residing in Texas. Son worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Son has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Son has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10773. Plaintiff Osman Soriano is an individual residing in Texas. Soriano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2006 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soriano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soriano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10774. Plaintiff Xavier Soto is an individual residing in Texas. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10775. Plaintiff Louciano Soto is an individual residing in Texas. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10776. Plaintiff Jorah Soto is an individual residing in Texas. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10777. Plaintiff Sergio Soto is an individual residing in Texas. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10778. Plaintiff Robyn Sowash is an individual residing in Missouri. Sowash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sowash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sowash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10779. Plaintiff Evelyn Soza is an individual residing in Texas. Soza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10780. Plaintiff Andrew Spencer is an individual residing in Texas. Spencer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10781. Plaintiff Corey Wright is an individual residing in Georgia. Srey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Srey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Srey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10782. Plaintiff Carl Staley is an individual residing in Texas. Staley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10783. Plaintiff Darius Starkes is an individual residing in Texas. Starkes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Starkes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Starkes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10784. Plaintiff Tracie Steans is an individual residing in Texas. Steans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10785. Plaintiff Khrystalle Steber is an individual residing in Texas. Steber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10786. Plaintiff Michael Sterling is an individual residing in Texas. Sterling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sterling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sterling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10787. Plaintiff Michael Stewart is an individual residing in Texas. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10788. Plaintiff Brandon Stewart is an individual residing in Texas. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10789. Plaintiff Justin Nunn is an individual residing in Texas. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10790. Plaintiff Laronda Stokes is an individual residing in Texas. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10791. Plaintiff Hans Storsberg is an individual residing in New Mexico. Storsberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Storsberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Storsberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10792. Plaintiff Lyndi Stout is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Stout worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stout has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stout has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10793. Plaintiff Jeramee Strain is an individual residing in Texas. Strain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10794. Plaintiff Luis Suaza is an individual residing in Texas. Suaza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suaza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suaza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10795. Plaintiff Lawrence Suiters is an individual residing in Texas. Suiters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suiters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suiters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10796. Plaintiff Sena Sullivan is an individual residing in Texas. Sullivan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sullivan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sullivan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10797. Plaintiff Michael Sumlar is an individual residing in Texas. Sumlar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sumlar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sumlar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10798. Plaintiff Randy Suratt is an individual residing in Texas. Suratt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suratt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suratt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10799. Plaintiff Don Swiney is an individual residing in Texas. Swiney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swiney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swiney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10800. Plaintiff Pingaphong Sykingkeo is an individual residing in Texas. Sykingkeo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sykingkeo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sykingkeo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10801. Plaintiff Nickara Talbert is an individual residing in Louisiana. Talbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Talbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Talbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10802. Plaintiff Dylan Tamburro is an individual residing in Texas. Tamburro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tamburro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tamburro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10803. Plaintiff Andre Tate is an individual residing in Texas. Tate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10804. Plaintiff Juan Tavaréz is an individual residing in Texas. Tavaréz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavaréz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavaréz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10805. Plaintiff Laporsche Taylor is an individual residing in Texas. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10806. Plaintiff Candice Taylor is an individual residing in Texas. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10807. Plaintiff Jechonias Taylor is an individual residing in Texas. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10808. Plaintiff Sorie Tejan is an individual residing in Texas. Tejan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tejan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tejan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10809. Plaintiff Ruben Tellez is an individual residing in Texas. Tellez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tellez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tellez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10810. Plaintiff David Tello is an individual residing in Texas. Tello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10811. Plaintiff Ben Templeton is an individual residing in Texas. Templeton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Templeton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Templeton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10812. Plaintiff Andre Tennard is an individual residing in Texas. Tennard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tennard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tennard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10813. Plaintiff Amanuel Tesfay is an individual residing in Texas. Tesfay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tesfay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tesfay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10814. Plaintiff Christopher Thomas is an individual residing in Texas. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 1998 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10815. Plaintiff Emanuel Thomas is an individual residing in Texas. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10816. Plaintiff Calvin Thomas is an individual residing in California. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10817. Plaintiff Latoya Thomas is an individual residing in Texas. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10818. Plaintiff Jeffrey Thomas is an individual residing in Texas. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10819. Plaintiff Darius Thompson is an individual residing in Texas. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10820. Plaintiff Curry Thompson is an individual residing in Texas. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10821. Plaintiff Kenneth Thorne is an individual residing in Texas. Thorne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thorne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thorne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10822. Plaintiff Wesley Thornsberry is an individual residing in Texas. Thornsberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thornsberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thornsberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10823. Plaintiff Carl Tindle is an individual residing in Georgia. Tindle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tindle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tindle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10824. Plaintiff Erin Tobin is an individual residing in Texas. Tobin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tobin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tobin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10825. Plaintiff Mark Torres is an individual residing in Texas. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10826. Plaintiff Eric Torres is an individual residing in Texas. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10827. Plaintiff Jaimell Torres Gonzalez is an individual residing in Texas. Torres Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10828. Plaintiff Kevin Truong is an individual residing in Texas. Truong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Truong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Truong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10829. Plaintiff Matthew Tucker is an individual residing in Texas. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10830. Plaintiff Darryl Tucker is an individual residing in Texas. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10831. Plaintiff Van Turner is an individual residing in Texas. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2002 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10832. Plaintiff Derek Tutson is an individual residing in Texas. Tutson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tutson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tutson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10833. Plaintiff Reginald Tutt is an individual residing in Texas. Tutt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tutt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tutt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10834. Plaintiff Glen Tyler is an individual residing in Texas. Tyler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2011 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10835. Plaintiff Emerson Umana is an individual residing in Texas. Umana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Umana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Umana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10836. Plaintiff Patrick Vanegas is an individual residing in Texas. Vanegas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vanegas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vanegas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10837. Plaintiff Gonzalo Vargas is an individual residing in Texas. Vargas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vargas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vargas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10838. Plaintiff Gabriel Veazia is an individual residing in Texas. Veazia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Veazia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Veazia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10839. Plaintiff Rogelio Velasquez is an individual residing in Texas. Velasquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Velasquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Velasquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10840. Plaintiff Jose Velasquez is an individual residing in Texas. Velasquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Velasquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Velasquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10841. Plaintiff Micaelo Velasquez is an individual residing in Texas. Velasquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Velasquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Velasquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10842. Plaintiff Larry Vess is an individual residing in Texas. Vess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10843. Plaintiff Nethaneel Viera is an individual residing in Texas. Viera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Viera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Viera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10844. Plaintiff Beatriz Vilchis is an individual residing in Texas. Vilchis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vilchis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vilchis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10845. Plaintiff Jessica Villanueva is an individual residing in Texas. Villanueva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villanueva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villanueva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10846. Plaintiff Richard Villarreal is an individual residing in Texas. Villarreal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villarreal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villarreal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10847. Plaintiff Andre Villasana is an individual residing in Texas. Villasana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villasana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villasana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10848. Plaintiff Orlando Vincente is an individual residing in Texas. Vincente worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vincente has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vincente has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10849. Plaintiff James Vinovrski is an individual residing in Texas. Vinovrski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vinovrski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vinovrski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10850. Plaintiff James Viverette is an individual residing in Texas. Viverette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Viverette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Viverette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10851. Plaintiff Tung Vo is an individual residing in Texas. Vo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10852. Plaintiff Camille Wakefield is an individual residing in Texas. Wakefield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wakefield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wakefield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10853. Plaintiff Damarcus Waldrup is an individual residing in Texas. Waldrup worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waldrup has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waldrup has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10854. Plaintiff Omar Walker is an individual residing in Texas. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10855. Plaintiff Cornelius Walker is an individual residing in Texas. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10856. Plaintiff Johnetta Walker is an individual residing in Texas. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10857. Plaintiff Kenetra Wallace is an individual residing in Texas. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10858. Plaintiff Broderick Walton is an individual residing in Texas. Walton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10859. Plaintiff Waqueenna Walton is an individual residing in Texas. Walton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10860. Plaintiff Shawn Warfield is an individual residing in Texas. Warfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10861. Plaintiff Shawnta Washington is an individual residing in Texas. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10862. Plaintiff Monterrell Washington is an individual residing in Texas. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10863. Plaintiff Jarrett Washington is an individual residing in Texas. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10864. Plaintiff Michael Watkins is an individual residing in Texas. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10865. Plaintiff Jonathan Watson is an individual residing in Maine. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10866. Plaintiff Duchess Watts is an individual residing in Texas. Watts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10867. Plaintiff James Weis is an individual residing in Texas. Weis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10868. Plaintiff James Weldon is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Weldon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weldon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weldon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10869. Plaintiff Desmond Wells is an individual residing in Florida. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10870. Plaintiff Susan Wenninger is an individual residing in South Dakota. Wenninger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wenninger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wenninger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10871. Plaintiff Waylon Wernette is an individual residing in Texas. Wernette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wernette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wernette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10872. Plaintiff Darin Wesley is an individual residing in Texas. Wesley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wesley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wesley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10873. Plaintiff Demarcus Westbrook is an individual residing in Texas. Westbrook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Westbrook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Westbrook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10874. Plaintiff Johnathan Whitaker is an individual residing in Texas. Whitaker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitaker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitaker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10875. Plaintiff Carl White is an individual residing in Texas. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10876. Plaintiff Daiven Whitemon is an individual residing in Texas. Whitemon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitemon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitemon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10877. Plaintiff James Whitfield is an individual residing in Texas. Whitfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10878. Plaintiff Wade Wiggins is an individual residing in Texas. Wiggins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiggins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiggins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10879. Plaintiff George Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10880. Plaintiff Anthony Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10881. Plaintiff Kenyatta Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10882. Plaintiff James Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10883. Plaintiff Sierra Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10884. Plaintiff Sherwon Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10885. Plaintiff Tahisha Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10886. Plaintiff Jontel Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10887. Plaintiff Kyle Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10888. Plaintiff Curtis Williams is an individual residing in Washington. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10889. Plaintiff Donyiel Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10890. Plaintiff Emery Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10891. Plaintiff Marshall Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10892. Plaintiff Taza Williams is an individual residing in Texas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10893. Plaintiff Arthur Williams Iii is an individual residing in Texas. Williams Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10894. Plaintiff Todd Wilson is an individual residing in Texas. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10895. Plaintiff Jenita Wise is an individual residing in Texas. Wise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10896. Plaintiff Ronald Wiseman is an individual residing in Texas. Wiseman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiseman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiseman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10897. Plaintiff Marc Wissman is an individual residing in Texas. Wissman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wissman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wissman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10898. Plaintiff Jasmine Woods is an individual residing in Texas. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10899. Plaintiff Philbrick Woodson is an individual residing in Texas. Woodson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10900. Plaintiff Stuart Wright is an individual residing in Texas. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10901. Plaintiff Erik Yarborough is an individual residing in Texas. Yarborough worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yarborough has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yarborough has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10902. Plaintiff Anthony Young is an individual residing in Texas. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10903. Plaintiff Jessica Young is an individual residing in Texas. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10904. Plaintiff Angela Young is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10905. Plaintiff Demeiron Young is an individual residing in Texas. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10906. Plaintiff Raymond Young is an individual residing in Texas. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10907. Plaintiff Patsy Young is an individual residing in Texas. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10908. Plaintiff Adrian Zamora is an individual residing in Texas. Zamora worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zamora has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zamora has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10909. Plaintiff Bobby Zamora is an individual residing in Texas. Zamora worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zamora has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zamora has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10910. Plaintiff Jose Zavala is an individual residing in Texas. Zavala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Texas from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zavala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zavala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10911. Plaintiff Tristan Adams is an individual residing in Utah. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10912. Plaintiff Pehrson Allen is an individual residing in Utah. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10913. Plaintiff James Austreng is an individual residing in Utah. Austreng worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Austreng has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Austreng has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10914. Plaintiff Charles Bernal is an individual residing in Utah. Bernal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bernal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bernal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10915. Plaintiff Adam Billings is an individual residing in Utah. Billings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10916. Plaintiff Cory Bowman is an individual residing in Utah. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10917. Plaintiff Anthony Brinkley is an individual residing in Utah. Brinkley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brinkley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brinkley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10918. Plaintiff Oleg Broadbent is an individual residing in Utah. Broadbent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Broadbent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Broadbent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10919. Plaintiff Paul Bukoski is an individual residing in Michigan. Bukoski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bukoski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bukoski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10920. Plaintiff Randy Carstensen is an individual residing in Utah. Carstensen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carstensen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carstensen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10921. Plaintiff Brad Carter is an individual residing in Utah. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10922. Plaintiff Tyler Chapman is an individual residing in Utah. Chapman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chapman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chapman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10923. Plaintiff Isryel Cook is an individual residing in Utah. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10924. Plaintiff Joseph Degolyer is an individual residing in Utah. Degolyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Degolyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Degolyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10925. Plaintiff Robert Dyer is an individual residing in Utah. Dyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10926. Plaintiff Julie Earl is an individual residing in Utah. Earl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10927. Plaintiff Steve Echavarria is an individual residing in Florida. Echavarria worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Echavarria has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Echavarria has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10928. Plaintiff Byron Elliott is an individual residing in Utah. Elliott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elliott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elliott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10929. Plaintiff Krystal Etsitty is an individual residing in Utah. Etsitty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Etsitty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Etsitty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10930. Plaintiff Russell Evans is an individual residing in Utah. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10931. Plaintiff Abraham Falatea is an individual residing in Utah. Falatea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Falatea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Falatea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10932. Plaintiff Cameron Farnes is an individual residing in Arizona. Farnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10933. Plaintiff Eric Fry is an individual residing in Utah. Fry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10934. Plaintiff Steven Garza is an individual residing in Utah. Garza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10935. Plaintiff Austin Graybill is an individual residing in Utah. Graybill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graybill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graybill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10936. Plaintiff Brandon Guymon is an individual residing in Utah. Guymon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guymon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guymon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10937. Plaintiff Wyatt Hart is an individual residing in Utah. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10938. Plaintiff Joshua Higbee is an individual residing in Utah. Higbee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Higbee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Higbee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10939. Plaintiff Jonathan Huerta is an individual residing in Utah. Huerta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huerta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huerta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10940. Plaintiff Ronald Hughes is an individual residing in Utah. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10941. Plaintiff Jared Hull is an individual residing in California. Hull worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hull has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hull has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10942. Plaintiff Christopher Jackson is an individual residing in Montana. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10943. Plaintiff Crayton Johnson is an individual residing in Montana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10944. Plaintiff Roy Kingsbury is an individual residing in Utah. Kingsbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kingsbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kingsbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10945. Plaintiff Tiotala Leiataua is an individual residing in Utah. Leiataua worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leiataua has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leiataua has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10946. Plaintiff Austin Lesueur is an individual residing in Utah. Lesueur worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lesueur has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lesueur has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10947. Plaintiff Zach Loftin is an individual residing in Utah. Loftin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loftin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loftin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10948. Plaintiff Gabriel Tor is an individual residing in Utah. Marbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10949. Plaintiff Alejandro Martinez is an individual residing in Utah. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10950. Plaintiff Christopher Mcindoe is an individual residing in Oregon. Mcindoe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcindoe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcindoe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10951. Plaintiff James Montgomery is an individual residing in Utah. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10952. Plaintiff Mitchell Oliphant is an individual residing in Utah. Oliphant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oliphant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oliphant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10953. Plaintiff Nathan Olsen is an individual residing in Utah. Olsen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olsen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olsen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10954. Plaintiff Roy Pearson is an individual residing in Utah. Pearson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pearson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pearson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10955. Plaintiff James Prior is an individual residing in Utah. Prior worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prior has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prior has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10956. Plaintiff Tracy Pymm is an individual residing in Utah. Pymm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pymm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pymm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10957. Plaintiff Heather Pyper is an individual residing in Utah. Pyper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pyper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pyper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10958. Plaintiff Juan Ramos, Sr. is an individual residing in Utah. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10959. Plaintiff Justin Randolph is an individual residing in Utah. Randolph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randolph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randolph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10960. Plaintiff Lance Reed is an individual residing in Utah. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10961. Plaintiff Jackson Rich is an individual residing in Utah. Rich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10962. Plaintiff Trevor Romijn is an individual residing in Utah. Romijn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Romijn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Romijn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10963. Plaintiff Trent Rosenkrantz is an individual residing in Utah. Rosenkrantz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosenkrantz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosenkrantz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10964. Plaintiff James Ruybal is an individual residing in Utah. Ruybal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruybal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruybal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10965. Plaintiff William Sabin is an individual residing in Utah. Sabin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2006 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sabin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sabin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10966. Plaintiff Daniel Sadler is an individual residing in New York. Sadler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sadler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sadler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10967. Plaintiff Phillip Sanchez is an individual residing in Utah. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10968. Plaintiff Chris Saville is an individual residing in Utah. Saville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10969. Plaintiff Ryan Shaw is an individual residing in Utah. Shaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10970. Plaintiff Tyler Shearer is an individual residing in Utah. Shearer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shearer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shearer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10971. Plaintiff Charles Simmons is an individual residing in Utah. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10972. Plaintiff Zachary Simpson is an individual residing in Arkansas. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10973. Plaintiff Micheal Slama is an individual residing in Utah. Slama worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slama has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slama has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10974. Plaintiff Zach Smith is an individual residing in Texas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10975. Plaintiff Thomas Steggell is an individual residing in Utah. Steggell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steggell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steggell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10976. Plaintiff Robert Stephenson is an individual residing in Florida. Stephenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10977. Plaintiff David Stewart is an individual residing in Utah. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10978. Plaintiff Billy Takai is an individual residing in Utah. Takai worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Takai has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Takai has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10979. Plaintiff Ben Tanner is an individual residing in Utah. Tanner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tanner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tanner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10980. Plaintiff Wendy Taylor is an individual residing in Arizona. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10981. Plaintiff Chad Thompson is an individual residing in Utah. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10982. Plaintiff Tomy Tiburcio is an individual residing in Utah. Tiburcio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tiburcio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tiburcio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10983. Plaintiff Sosaia Tuuhetaufa is an individual residing in Utah. Tuuhetaufa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tuuhetaufa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tuuhetaufa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10984. Plaintiff Eduardo Umana Alvarado is an individual residing in Utah. Umana Alvarado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Umana Alvarado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Umana Alvarado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10985. Plaintiff Michael Vaidulas is an individual residing in Utah. Vaidulas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vaidulas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vaidulas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10986. Plaintiff Luis Valenzuela is an individual residing in Utah. Valenzuela worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valenzuela has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valenzuela has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10987. Plaintiff Nicholas Warner is an individual residing in Utah. Warner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10988. Plaintiff James Webb is an individual residing in Utah. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10989. Plaintiff Troy Wies is an individual residing in Utah. Wies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10990. Plaintiff Steve Zippro is an individual residing in Utah. Zippro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Utah from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zippro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zippro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10991. Plaintiff Shannon Brown is an individual residing in Vermont. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10992. Plaintiff Sean Couch is an individual residing in Vermont. Couch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Couch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Couch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10993. Plaintiff Robert Friend is an individual residing in Vermont. Friend worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Friend has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Friend has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10994. Plaintiff Thomas Heather is an individual residing in Vermont. Heather worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heather has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heather has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10995. Plaintiff Tyson Huntley is an individual residing in Vermont. Huntley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huntley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huntley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10996. Plaintiff Anthony King is an individual residing in New York. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10997. Plaintiff Alex Scialdone is an individual residing in Vermont. Scialdone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scialdone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scialdone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10998. Plaintiff Ryan Selleck is an individual residing in Vermont. Selleck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Selleck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Selleck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

10999. Plaintiff Jessica Sturtevant is an individual residing in Vermont. Sturtevant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sturtevant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sturtevant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11000. Plaintiff Ronald Swenor is an individual residing in Virginia. Swenor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swenor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swenor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11001. Plaintiff John Tanis is an individual residing in Vermont. Tanis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tanis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tanis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11002. Plaintiff Derek Thuraiaiyah is an individual residing in Vermont. Thuraiaiyah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thuraiaiyah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thuraiaiyah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11003. Plaintiff Vladimir Tiron is an individual residing in Vermont. Tiron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tiron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tiron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11004. Plaintiff Benjamin Trudell is an individual residing in Vermont. Trudell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trudell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trudell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11005. Plaintiff Sheperd Ward is an individual residing in Vermont. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11006. Plaintiff Timothy Wheelock is an individual residing in Vermont. Wheelock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Vermont from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheelock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheelock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11007. Plaintiff Larry Abney is an individual residing in Virginia. Abney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11008. Plaintiff Howard Adkins is an individual residing in Virginia. Adkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11009. Plaintiff David Aldridge is an individual residing in Virginia. Aldridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11010. Plaintiff Larhonda Alexcee is an individual residing in Virginia. Alexcee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexcee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexcee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11011. Plaintiff Terry Allamong is an individual residing in Virginia. Allamong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 1997 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allamong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allamong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11012. Plaintiff Feshone Allen is an individual residing in Virginia. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11013. Plaintiff Daniel Alston is an individual residing in Maryland. Alston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11014. Plaintiff Stanley Ansell is an individual residing in Virginia. Ansell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 1900 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ansell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ansell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11015. Plaintiff Christian Antwi is an individual residing in Virginia. Antwi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Antwi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Antwi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11016. Plaintiff Mohammed Arkawi is an individual residing in Virginia. Arkawi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arkawi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arkawi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11017. Plaintiff Isaiah Arnold is an individual residing in Virginia. Arnold worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arnold has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arnold has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11018. Plaintiff Timothy Asbell is an individual residing in Virginia. Asbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Asbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Asbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11019. Plaintiff Byron Augustine is an individual residing in Virginia. Augustine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Augustine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Augustine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11020. Plaintiff Ruth Austin is an individual residing in Virginia. Austin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Austin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Austin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11021. Plaintiff Abdulsami Azimi is an individual residing in Virginia. Azimi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Azimi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Azimi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11022. Plaintiff Michael Bailey is an individual residing in Virginia. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11023. Plaintiff Lynnelle Banks is an individual residing in Virginia. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11024. Plaintiff Felton Banks II is an individual residing in Virginia. Banks II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11025. Plaintiff Tabitha Barber is an individual residing in Virginia. Barber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11026. Plaintiff Sean Barentine is an individual residing in Virginia. Barentine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barentine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barentine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11027. Plaintiff Adam Beahm is an individual residing in Virginia. Beahm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beahm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beahm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11028. Plaintiff Daphne Bell is an individual residing in Virginia. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11029. Plaintiff Mia Bennington is an individual residing in Virginia. Bennington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11030. Plaintiff Dondell Best is an individual residing in North Carolina. Best worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Best has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Best has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11031. Plaintiff Richard Beurer is an individual residing in Virginia. Beurer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beurer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beurer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11032. Plaintiff Tiya Bibbs is an individual residing in Virginia. Bibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11033. Plaintiff Alexander Billups is an individual residing in Virginia. Billups worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billups has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billups has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11034. Plaintiff Robert Blanch is an individual residing in Virginia. Blanch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blanch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blanch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11035. Plaintiff William Blocker is an individual residing in Virginia. Blocker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blocker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blocker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11036. Plaintiff Patrick Boakye is an individual residing in Virginia. Boakye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boakye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boakye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11037. Plaintiff Tonney Boan is an individual residing in Virginia. Boan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11038. Plaintiff Jermaine Boatner is an individual residing in Virginia. Boatner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boatner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boatner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11039. Plaintiff John Boise is an individual residing in Virginia. Boise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11040. Plaintiff Brandon Bond is an individual residing in Virginia. Bond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11041. Plaintiff Marvin Booker is an individual residing in Virginia. Booker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Booker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Booker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11042. Plaintiff Christopher Boone is an individual residing in Virginia. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11043. Plaintiff Brian Boyce is an individual residing in West Virginia. Boyce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11044. Plaintiff Wayne Brann is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11045. Plaintiff Sabrina Brill is an individual residing in West Virginia. Brill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11046. Plaintiff Monica Broadnax is an individual residing in Virginia. Broadnax worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Broadnax has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Broadnax has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11047. Plaintiff Jeffery Brooks is an individual residing in Virginia. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11048. Plaintiff Michael Ferguson is an individual residing in Virginia. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11049. Plaintiff Renado Brown is an individual residing in Virginia. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11050. Plaintiff Jameze Brown is an individual residing in Maryland. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11051. Plaintiff Kenneth Brown is an individual residing in Virginia. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11052. Plaintiff Terrence Brown is an individual residing in Virginia. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11053. Plaintiff Jayvon Brownlee is an individual residing in Virginia. Brownlee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brownlee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brownlee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11054. Plaintiff Derek Brumfield is an individual residing in Virginia. Brumfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brumfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brumfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11055. Plaintiff Anthony Bryant is an individual residing in Virginia. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11056. Plaintiff Michael Buchanan is an individual residing in Virginia. Buchanan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buchanan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buchanan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11057. Plaintiff David Bullock is an individual residing in Virginia. Bullock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bullock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bullock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11058. Plaintiff Levar Butler is an individual residing in Florida. Butler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11059. Plaintiff Mark Calano is an individual residing in Virginia. Calano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11060. Plaintiff Jacob Casas is an individual residing in Virginia. Casas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11061. Plaintiff Robert Chandler is an individual residing in Virginia. Chandler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chandler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chandler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11062. Plaintiff Bounlay Chanyay is an individual residing in Virginia. Chanyay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chanyay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chanyay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11063. Plaintiff Rebekah Childs is an individual residing in Virginia. Childs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Childs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Childs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11064. Plaintiff Derek Cicheskie is an individual residing in Virginia. Cicheskie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cicheskie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cicheskie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11065. Plaintiff Robert Clark is an individual residing in South Carolina. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11066. Plaintiff John Clendenin is an individual residing in Virginia. Clendenin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clendenin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clendenin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11067. Plaintiff Cassandra Cleveland is an individual residing in Virginia. Cleveland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cleveland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cleveland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11068. Plaintiff Alicia Clinton is an individual residing in Virginia. Clinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11069. Plaintiff Travis Collins is an individual residing in Virginia. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11070. Plaintiff Reed Cook is an individual residing in Virginia. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11071. Plaintiff Cory Cooper is an individual residing in Virginia. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11072. Plaintiff Theodore Cox Jr is an individual residing in Virginia. Cox Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11073. Plaintiff Markell Credle is an individual residing in Virginia. Credle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Credle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Credle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11074. Plaintiff John Criner is an individual residing in Virginia. Criner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Criner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Criner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11075. Plaintiff Nathan Crosby is an individual residing in Virginia. Crosby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crosby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crosby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11076. Plaintiff Dennis Croson is an individual residing in Virginia. Croson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Croson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Croson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11077. Plaintiff Daniel Cunnane is an individual residing in Virginia. Cunnane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunnane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunnane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11078. Plaintiff Daron Cureton is an individual residing in Virginia. Cureton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cureton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cureton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11079. Plaintiff William Dailey is an individual residing in Virginia. Dailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11080. Plaintiff Irvin Davis is an individual residing in Virginia. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11081. Plaintiff Bradley Davis is an individual residing in Virginia. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11082. Plaintiff Aaron Davis is an individual residing in Virginia. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11083. Plaintiff Robert Dawkins is an individual residing in Virginia. Dawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11084. Plaintiff Craig Campbell is an individual residing in Virginia. Desrosier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Desrosier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Desrosier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11085. Plaintiff David Dickerson is an individual residing in Virginia. Dickerson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickerson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickerson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11086. Plaintiff Shavon Thomas is an individual residing in Virginia. Diehl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diehl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diehl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11087. Plaintiff Kimberly Dixon is an individual residing in Virginia. Dixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11088. Plaintiff Robert Donald is an individual residing in Florida. Donald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11089. Plaintiff Billy Donley is an individual residing in Virginia. Donley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11090. Plaintiff Jonathan Douchette is an individual residing in Virginia. Douchette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douchette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douchette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11091. Plaintiff Donnell Douglas is an individual residing in Virginia. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11092. Plaintiff Ryan Driskell is an individual residing in Virginia. Driskell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Driskell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Driskell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11093. Plaintiff Darrel Duggins is an individual residing in Virginia. Duggins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duggins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duggins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11094. Plaintiff Kenneth Dyson is an individual residing in Virginia. Dyson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dyson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dyson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11095. Plaintiff Jamal Ebanks Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Ebanks Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ebanks Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ebanks Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11096. Plaintiff Lawanda Edwards is an individual residing in Virginia. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11097. Plaintiff Adrian Ellis is an individual residing in Virginia. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11098. Plaintiff John Ellis is an individual residing in Virginia. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11099. Plaintiff Scott Engelke is an individual residing in Virginia. Engelke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Engelke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Engelke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11100. Plaintiff Nikia Evans is an individual residing in Virginia. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11101. Plaintiff Valentine Farland is an individual residing in North Carolina. Farland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11102. Plaintiff Jarrod Fauntleroy is an individual residing in Virginia. Fauntleroy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fauntleroy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fauntleroy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11103. Plaintiff Lynn Faxon-Goss is an individual residing in Virginia. Faxon-Goss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faxon-Goss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faxon-Goss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11104. Plaintiff Michael Fenwick is an individual residing in Virginia. Fenwick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fenwick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fenwick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11105. Plaintiff Brandy Fitzgerald is an individual residing in Virginia. Fitzgerald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fitzgerald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fitzgerald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11106. Plaintiff Nicole Flowers is an individual residing in Virginia. Flowers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flowers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flowers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11107. Plaintiff Eugene Frimpong is an individual residing in Virginia. Frimpong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frimpong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frimpong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11108. Plaintiff Wesley Gadson is an individual residing in Virginia. Gadson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gadson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gadson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11109. Plaintiff Joseph Gangi-Schmidt is an individual residing in Virginia. Gangi-Schmidt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Gangi-Schmidt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gangi-Schmidt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11110. Plaintiff Patrick Gannon is an individual residing in Virginia. Gannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11111. Plaintiff John Gant is an individual residing in Virginia. Gant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11112. Plaintiff Taylor Garlick is an individual residing in Virginia. Garlick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garlick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garlick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11113. Plaintiff Andre Garner is an individual residing in Virginia. Garner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11114. Plaintiff Paul Gauthier is an individual residing in Florida. Gauthier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gauthier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gauthier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11115. Plaintiff Walter Gavidia is an individual residing in Virginia. Gavidia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gavidia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gavidia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11116. Plaintiff Christopher Gillespie is an individual residing in West Virginia. Gillespie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillespie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillespie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11117. Plaintiff Javonte Gillis is an individual residing in Virginia. Gillis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11118. Plaintiff Margaret Gillus is an individual residing in Virginia. Gillus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11119. Plaintiff Sergio Gomez is an individual residing in West Virginia. Gomez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gomez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gomez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11120. Plaintiff Darian Goode is an individual residing in Virginia. Goode worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goode has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goode has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11121. Plaintiff Tyre Goodman is an individual residing in Virginia. Goodman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11122. Plaintiff Willie Goodwyn is an individual residing in Virginia. Goodwyn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodwyn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodwyn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11123. Plaintiff Chanice Gordon is an individual residing in Virginia. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11124. Plaintiff Jarleshia Govan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Govan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Govan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Govan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11125. Plaintiff Jeremy Gowers is an individual residing in Virginia. Gowers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gowers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gowers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11126. Plaintiff Roy Graves is an individual residing in Virginia. Graves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11127. Plaintiff Devita Graves is an individual residing in Virginia. Graves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11128. Plaintiff Michael Gray is an individual residing in Virginia. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11129. Plaintiff Joseph Green is an individual residing in Virginia. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11130. Plaintiff Tawana Greene is an individual residing in Virginia. Greene worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greene has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greene has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11131. Plaintiff Kurt Greer is an individual residing in Virginia. Greer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11132. Plaintiff Daniel Grinnell is an individual residing in Virginia. Grinnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grinnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grinnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11133. Plaintiff John Guinn is an individual residing in Virginia. Guinn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guinn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guinn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11134. Plaintiff Ross Haith is an individual residing in Virginia. Haith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11135. Plaintiff William Hallums is an individual residing in Virginia. Hallums worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hallums has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hallums has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11136. Plaintiff Eric Hamill is an individual residing in West Virginia. Hamill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11137. Plaintiff Paul Hamilton is an individual residing in Virginia. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11138. Plaintiff Robert Hampton is an individual residing in Virginia. Hampton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hampton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hampton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11139. Plaintiff Miquitta Hargrove is an individual residing in Virginia. Hargrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hargrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hargrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11140. Plaintiff Tina Hargrove is an individual residing in Virginia. Hargrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hargrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hargrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11141. Plaintiff Christopher Harris is an individual residing in Virginia. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 1999 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11142. Plaintiff Ronee Harris is an individual residing in Virginia. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11143. Plaintiff Donnell Harris is an individual residing in Virginia. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11144. Plaintiff Damien Harris is an individual residing in Virginia. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11145. Plaintiff Malcom Harwood is an individual residing in Maryland. Harwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia and Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11146. Plaintiff Diana Hawkins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11147. Plaintiff Perry Hawley is an individual residing in Virginia. Hawley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11148. Plaintiff Gregory Heaster is an individual residing in Virginia. Heaster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heaster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heaster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11149. Plaintiff Sharilyn Hendershot is an individual residing in Virginia. Hendershot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hendershot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hendershot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11150. Plaintiff Scott Hendricks is an individual residing in Virginia. Hendricks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hendricks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hendricks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11151. Plaintiff Derek Hennett is an individual residing in Colorado. Hennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11152. Plaintiff Dyrell Hewlett is an individual residing in Virginia. Hewlett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hewlett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hewlett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11153. Plaintiff Anthony Hicks is an individual residing in Virginia. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11154. Plaintiff Daniel Hite is an individual residing in Virginia. Hite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11155. Plaintiff Redzo Hodzic is an individual residing in Virginia. Hodzic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hodzic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hodzic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11156. Plaintiff Robert Hoffman is an individual residing in Virginia. Hoffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11157. Plaintiff Deborah Hollins is an individual residing in Virginia. Hollins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11158. Plaintiff Donald Holmes Iii is an individual residing in Virginia. Holmes Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holmes Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holmes Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11159. Plaintiff Gregory Hood is an individual residing in Virginia. Hood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11160. Plaintiff Richard Hood is an individual residing in Virginia. Hood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2003 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11161. Plaintiff Kevin Hooghkirk is an individual residing in Virginia. Hooghkirk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hooghkirk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hooghkirk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11162. Plaintiff Kendrick Hopson is an individual residing in Virginia. Hopson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11163. Plaintiff Harry Howery is an individual residing in Virginia. Howery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11164. Plaintiff James Hribar is an individual residing in Virginia. Hribar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hribar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hribar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11165. Plaintiff Corey Hyman is an individual residing in Virginia. Hyman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hyman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hyman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11166. Plaintiff Mohammed Ibrahim is an individual residing in Virginia. Ibrahim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ibrahim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ibrahim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11167. Plaintiff Eddie Irizarry is an individual residing in Virginia. Irizarry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irizarry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irizarry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11168. Plaintiff Larry Jackson is an individual residing in Virginia. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11169. Plaintiff Dakota Jackson is an individual residing in Virginia. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11170. Plaintiff Renee Jackson is an individual residing in Virginia. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11171. Plaintiff Leonard Jackson Iv is an individual residing in West Virginia. Jackson Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11172. Plaintiff Albert Jacobs is an individual residing in Virginia. Jacobs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jacobs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jacobs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11173. Plaintiff Marcel James is an individual residing in Virginia. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11174. Plaintiff Dennis Jemison is an individual residing in Virginia. Jemison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jemison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jemison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11175. Plaintiff Carl Jenkins is an individual residing in Virginia. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11176. Plaintiff James Johnson is an individual residing in Virginia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11177. Plaintiff Ralph Jones is an individual residing in Virginia. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11178. Plaintiff Michael Jones is an individual residing in Virginia. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11179. Plaintiff Corey Jones is an individual residing in Virginia. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11180. Plaintiff Gail Jones is an individual residing in Virginia. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11181. Plaintiff Tywan Keene is an individual residing in Virginia. Keene worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keene has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keene has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11182. Plaintiff Hawoong Kim is an individual residing in Virginia. Kim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11183. Plaintiff Stanley Kirkwood is an individual residing in Virginia. Kirkwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirkwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirkwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11184. Plaintiff Tierra Knox is an individual residing in Virginia. Knox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11185. Plaintiff Shawn Lambert is an individual residing in Virginia. Lambert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11186. Plaintiff Marvin Lassiter is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lassiter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lassiter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lassiter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11187. Plaintiff Brent Lease is an individual residing in Virginia. Lease worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lease has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lease has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11188. Plaintiff Coco Leemkuil is an individual residing in Virginia. Leemkuil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leemkuil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leemkuil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11189. Plaintiff Demario Lewis is an individual residing in Virginia. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11190. Plaintiff Richard Lewis is an individual residing in Virginia. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11191. Plaintiff Thomas Lloyd is an individual residing in Virginia. Lloyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lloyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lloyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11192. Plaintiff Sidney Logan is an individual residing in Virginia. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11193. Plaintiff Marcus Logan is an individual residing in Virginia. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11194. Plaintiff Donatello Lucas is an individual residing in Virginia. Lucas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lucas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lucas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11195. Plaintiff Michael Lyday is an individual residing in Virginia. Lyday worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyday has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyday has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11196. Plaintiff La-Antwoinette Lynch is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia and North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11197. Plaintiff Felix Maoga is an individual residing in Virginia. Maoga worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maoga has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maoga has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11198. Plaintiff Bradley Martin is an individual residing in Virginia. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11199. Plaintiff Ricardo Martinez is an individual residing in Virginia. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11200. Plaintiff Duane Matthews is an individual residing in Virginia. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11201. Plaintiff Kayla Matthews is an individual residing in Virginia. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11202. Plaintiff Sylvia Mayfield-Jackson is an individual residing in Virginia. Mayfield-Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayfield-Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayfield-Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11203. Plaintiff Cartias Mazonge is an individual residing in Maryland. Mazonge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mazonge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mazonge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11204. Plaintiff David McBride is an individual residing in Virginia. McBride worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBride has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBride has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11205. Plaintiff Leroy McBride is an individual residing in Virginia. McBride worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBride has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBride has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11206. Plaintiff Irene McCabe is an individual residing in Virginia. McCabe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCabe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCabe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11207. Plaintiff Frank McClain is an individual residing in Virginia. McClain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McClain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McClain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11208. Plaintiff Adam Mcclenney is an individual residing in Virginia. Mcclenney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclenney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclenney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11209. Plaintiff David McCormick is an individual residing in Virginia. McCormick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCormick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCormick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11210. Plaintiff Teresa Mclellan is an individual residing in Virginia. Mclellan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclellan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclellan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11211. Plaintiff Mario Mcmorris is an individual residing in Virginia. Mcmorris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcmorris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcmorris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11212. Plaintiff Natasha Meadows is an individual residing in Virginia. Meadows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meadows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meadows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11213. Plaintiff Victor Meadows is an individual residing in Virginia. Meadows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meadows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meadows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11214. Plaintiff Joyce Melton is an individual residing in Virginia. Melton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Melton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Melton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11215. Plaintiff James Meredith is an individual residing in Virginia. Meredith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meredith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meredith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11216. Plaintiff Paul Milberry is an individual residing in Virginia. Milberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11217. Plaintiff Santino Miles is an individual residing in Virginia. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11218. Plaintiff David Miles is an individual residing in Virginia. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11219. Plaintiff Steven Miller is an individual residing in Virginia. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11220. Plaintiff Tyson Miller is an individual residing in Virginia. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11221. Plaintiff Jerry Mobley is an individual residing in Virginia. Mobley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mobley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mobley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11222. Plaintiff Kevin Moffatt is an individual residing in California. Moffatt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moffatt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moffatt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11223. Plaintiff Michael Monroe is an individual residing in Virginia. Monroe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Monroe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monroe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11224. Plaintiff William Monroe Iv is an individual residing in Virginia. Monroe Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Monroe Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monroe Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11225. Plaintiff Nicholas Moody is an individual residing in Virginia. Moody worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moody has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moody has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11226. Plaintiff Kelcey Moore is an individual residing in Virginia. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11227. Plaintiff Ronald Shough is an individual residing in Virginia. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11228. Plaintiff Jay Morgan is an individual residing in Virginia. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11229. Plaintiff Michael Morgan is an individual residing in Virginia. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11230. Plaintiff Tyrone Mosley is an individual residing in Virginia. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11231. Plaintiff Kenneth Mullens is an individual residing in Virginia. Mullens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mullens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mullens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11232. Plaintiff Roger Munford is an individual residing in Virginia. Munford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11233. Plaintiff Stephen Munro is an individual residing in Virginia. Munro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11234. Plaintiff Liridon Musliu is an individual residing in Virginia. Musliu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Musliu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Musliu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11235. Plaintiff Matthew Myers is an individual residing in West Virginia. Myers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11236. Plaintiff Rolando Nash is an individual residing in Virginia. Nash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11237. Plaintiff Bryant New is an individual residing in North Carolina. New worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. New has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because New has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11238. Plaintiff William Newby Jr is an individual residing in Virginia. Newby Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newby Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newby Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11239. Plaintiff Aaryn Newcomb is an individual residing in Virginia. Newcomb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newcomb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newcomb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11240. Plaintiff David Nichols Jr. is an individual residing in Virginia. Nichols Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nichols Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nichols Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11241. Plaintiff Peter Nugent is an individual residing in Virginia. Nugent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nugent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nugent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11242. Plaintiff Bobby Oquinn is an individual residing in Tennessee. Oquinn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 1989 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oquinn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oquinn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11243. Plaintiff Rangel Otero is an individual residing in Virginia. Otero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Otero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Otero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11244. Plaintiff James Otwchey is an individual residing in Virginia. Otwchey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Otwchey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Otwchey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11245. Plaintiff Phillip Owens is an individual residing in Virginia. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11246. Plaintiff Mignon Parker is an individual residing in Virginia. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11247. Plaintiff Lindsey Parsons is an individual residing in Virginia. Parsons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parsons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parsons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11248. Plaintiff Ian Patterson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11249. Plaintiff Ronald Payne is an individual residing in Virginia. Payne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11250. Plaintiff Mark Pearson is an individual residing in Virginia. Pearson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pearson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pearson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11251. Plaintiff Michael Peggs is an individual residing in West Virginia. Peggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11252. Plaintiff Tameisha Pennington is an individual residing in Virginia. Pennington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Pennington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pennington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11253. Plaintiff Michael Perry is an individual residing in Maryland. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11254. Plaintiff Travis Phillips is an individual residing in Virginia. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11255. Plaintiff Mika Pomales is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pomales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pomales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pomales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11256. Plaintiff Anthony Powers is an individual residing in Maryland. Powers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11257. Plaintiff Paul Profit is an individual residing in Virginia. Profit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Profit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Profit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11258. Plaintiff Andrea Rahall is an individual residing in Florida. Rahall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rahall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rahall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11259. Plaintiff Mohammad Rahman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Rahman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rahman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rahman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11260. Plaintiff Rodger Ramsey is an individual residing in Virginia. Ramsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11261. Plaintiff Archie Randall is an individual residing in Virginia. Randall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11262. Plaintiff Jovan Ray is an individual residing in Virginia. Ray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11263. Plaintiff Usman Razzaq is an individual residing in Virginia. Razzaq worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Razzaq has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Razzaq has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11264. Plaintiff Jordan Reid is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11265. Plaintiff Keandre Jett is an individual residing in Virginia. Rhinehart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhinehart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhinehart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11266. Plaintiff Andre Ricketts is an individual residing in Florida. Ricketts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricketts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricketts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11267. Plaintiff Marcus Riley is an individual residing in Virginia. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11268. Plaintiff Carolyn Riley is an individual residing in Virginia. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11269. Plaintiff Shanekqua Rivera is an individual residing in Virginia. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11270. Plaintiff Zachariah Robertson is an individual residing in Virginia. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11271. Plaintiff Michael Robinson is an individual residing in Virginia. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11272. Plaintiff Dominick Rodolis is an individual residing in Virginia. Rodolis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodolis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodolis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11273. Plaintiff Zachary Rogers is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11274. Plaintiff Robert Rootes is an individual residing in Virginia. Rootes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rootes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rootes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11275. Plaintiff Gina Rowe is an individual residing in Virginia. Rowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11276. Plaintiff Vincent Russo is an individual residing in Virginia. Russo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11277. Plaintiff Mohammed Sadek is an individual residing in Virginia. Sadek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sadek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sadek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11278. Plaintiff Gerald Samuels Iv is an individual residing in Virginia. Samuels Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samuels Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samuels Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11279. Plaintiff Adolph Satoski is an individual residing in Virginia. Satoski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Satoski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Satoski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11280. Plaintiff Christopher Saum is an individual residing in Virginia. Saum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11281. Plaintiff Samuel Seward is an individual residing in Virginia. Seward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11282. Plaintiff Jon Shannon is an individual residing in Virginia. Shannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11283. Plaintiff Tahib Shelton is an individual residing in Virginia. Shelton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11284. Plaintiff Christopher Shelton is an individual residing in Virginia. Shelton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11285. Plaintiff Larry Shilling is an individual residing in Virginia. Shilling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shilling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shilling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11286. Plaintiff Michael Shipp is an individual residing in Virginia. Shipp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shipp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shipp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11287. Plaintiff Marie Short is an individual residing in Virginia. Short worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Short has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Short has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11288. Plaintiff Justin Simmons is an individual residing in Virginia. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11289. Plaintiff Geoffrey Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11290. Plaintiff Lenise Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11291. Plaintiff Brad Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11292. Plaintiff Terrence Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11293. Plaintiff Joshua Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11294. Plaintiff Sandy Snellings is an individual residing in Virginia. Snellings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snellings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snellings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11295. Plaintiff Brian Snoddy is an individual residing in Virginia. Snoddy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snoddy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snoddy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11296. Plaintiff Carlos Soliz is an individual residing in Virginia. Soliz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soliz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soliz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11297. Plaintiff Charlena Somerville is an individual residing in Virginia. Somerville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Somerville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Somerville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11298. Plaintiff Anthony Sowan is an individual residing in Virginia. Sowan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sowan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sowan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11299. Plaintiff Daniel Spellman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Spellman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Spellman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spellman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11300. Plaintiff Jovon Spurlock is an individual residing in Virginia. Spurlock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spurlock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spurlock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11301. Plaintiff Tisha Stahl is an individual residing in Virginia. Stahl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stahl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stahl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11302. Plaintiff Gary Stansbury is an individual residing in Virginia. Stansbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia and Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stansbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stansbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11303. Plaintiff Brian Stevens is an individual residing in Virginia. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11304. Plaintiff Sean Stevenson is an individual residing in Virginia. Stevenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11305. Plaintiff Johnnie Stout is an individual residing in Virginia. Stout worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stout has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stout has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11306. Plaintiff Russell Strickler Iii is an individual residing in Virginia. Strickler Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strickler Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strickler Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11307. Plaintiff Shawna Sullivan is an individual residing in Virginia. Sullivan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sullivan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sullivan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11308. Plaintiff Cedric Swan is an individual residing in Virginia. Swan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11309. Plaintiff Glenn Talbert is an individual residing in Virginia. Talbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Talbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Talbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11310. Plaintiff Jacob Taylor is an individual residing in West Virginia. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11311. Plaintiff Trevon Taylor is an individual residing in Virginia. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11312. Plaintiff Brandy Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11313. Plaintiff Marquis Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11314. Plaintiff Shonica Terry is an individual residing in Virginia. Terry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Terry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Terry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11315. Plaintiff Gregory Thomas is an individual residing in Virginia. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11316. Plaintiff Edward Roberts is an individual residing in Virginia. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11317. Plaintiff Brad Thompson is an individual residing in Virginia. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11318. Plaintiff Kristin Thrasher is an individual residing in Virginia. Thrasher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thrasher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thrasher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11319. Plaintiff Terry Tomlin-Vaughan is an individual residing in Virginia. Tomlin-Vaughan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomlin-Vaughan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomlin-Vaughan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11320. Plaintiff Antonio Toussaint is an individual residing in Virginia. Toussaint worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Toussaint has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Toussaint has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11321. Plaintiff Darrell Towles Jr is an individual residing in Virginia. Towles Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Towles Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Towles Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11322. Plaintiff Stanley Townes is an individual residing in Virginia. Townes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Townes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Townes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11323. Plaintiff Kelley Turner is an individual residing in Virginia. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11324. Plaintiff Andre Turner is an individual residing in Virginia. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11325. Plaintiff Michael Tweedy is an individual residing in Virginia. Tweedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tweedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tweedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11326. Plaintiff Edward Ugarte is an individual residing in Virginia. Ugarte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ugarte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ugarte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11327. Plaintiff Steven Valentine is an individual residing in Virginia. Valentine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valentine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valentine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11328. Plaintiff Jeremy Vance is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Vance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11329. Plaintiff Joshua Vazquez is an individual residing in Virginia. Vazquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vazquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vazquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11330. Plaintiff Thomas Ver Schneider is an individual residing in Virginia. Ver Schneider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ver Schneider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ver Schneider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11331. Plaintiff Daron Waddy is an individual residing in Virginia. Waddy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waddy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waddy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11332. Plaintiff Joseph Wainwright is an individual residing in Virginia. Wainwright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wainwright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wainwright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11333. Plaintiff Ravan Walker is an individual residing in Virginia. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11334. Plaintiff Patricia Wallace is an individual residing in West Virginia. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11335. Plaintiff Rashaun Wallace is an individual residing in Maryland. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11336. Plaintiff Charmaine Wallace is an individual residing in Virginia. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11337. Plaintiff Solomon Waller is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Waller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11338. Plaintiff David Walls is an individual residing in Maryland. Walls worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walls has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walls has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11339. Plaintiff Lamar Walters is an individual residing in Virginia. Walters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11340. Plaintiff Lori Washington is an individual residing in Maryland. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11341. Plaintiff Jesse Washington is an individual residing in Virginia. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11342. Plaintiff Christine Washington is an individual residing in Maryland. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11343. Plaintiff Rhaphel Watkins is an individual residing in Virginia. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11344. Plaintiff David Weatherly is an individual residing in Virginia. Weatherly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weatherly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weatherly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11345. Plaintiff Travis Whetzel is an individual residing in Virginia. Whetzel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whetzel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whetzel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11346. Plaintiff Guy Whisner is an individual residing in Virginia. Whisner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whisner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whisner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11347. Plaintiff April White is an individual residing in Virginia. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11348. Plaintiff James White is an individual residing in Virginia. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11349. Plaintiff Michael White is an individual residing in Virginia. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11350. Plaintiff Travis Williams is an individual residing in Virginia. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11351. Plaintiff Crystal Williams is an individual residing in Virginia. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11352. Plaintiff Bernard Williams, Jr. is an individual residing in Virginia. Williams, Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams, Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams, Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11353. Plaintiff Eric Willoughby is an individual residing in Virginia. Willoughby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Willoughby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willoughby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11354. Plaintiff Edward Wilson is an individual residing in Virginia. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11355. Plaintiff Loretta Wilson is an individual residing in Virginia. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11356. Plaintiff Erik Wilson is an individual residing in Virginia. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11357. Plaintiff Kirk Wilson is an individual residing in Virginia. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11358. Plaintiff Deandre Wimley is an individual residing in Virginia. Wimley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wimley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wimley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11359. Plaintiff Kenneth Wix is an individual residing in Virginia. Wix worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wix has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wix has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11360. Plaintiff Jonathan Womack is an individual residing in Virginia. Womack worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Womack has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Womack has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11361. Plaintiff Yvette Woodley is an individual residing in Virginia. Woodley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11362. Plaintiff Terry Woods Jr is an individual residing in Georgia. Woods Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11363. Plaintiff Andre Wright is an individual residing in Virginia. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11364. Plaintiff Clara Wright is an individual residing in Virginia. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11365. Plaintiff Nathaniel Adams is an individual residing in Washington. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11366. Plaintiff Corey Akers is an individual residing in Washington. Akers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Akers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Akers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11367. Plaintiff Haydir Al Robayi is an individual residing in Texas. Al Robayi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Al Robayi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Al Robayi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11368. Plaintiff Mickie Allen is an individual residing in Washington. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11369. Plaintiff Aubrey Allen is an individual residing in Washington. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11370. Plaintiff Perry Alofoe is an individual residing in Washington. Alofoe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alofoe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alofoe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11371. Plaintiff Michael Altenburg is an individual residing in Washington. Altenburg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Altenburg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Altenburg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11372. Plaintiff John Amundsen is an individual residing in Washington. Amundsen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amundsen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amundsen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11373. Plaintiff Calvin Anderson is an individual residing in Washington. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11374. Plaintiff Craig Apfelbeck is an individual residing in Washington. Apfelbeck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Apfelbeck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Apfelbeck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11375. Plaintiff Andres Ayala is an individual residing in Washington. Ayala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11376. Plaintiff Hamed Azad is an individual residing in Washington. Azad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Azad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Azad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11377. Plaintiff Jerry Ballinger is an individual residing in Washington. Ballinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11378. Plaintiff Juan Barreto is an individual residing in Washington. Barreto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barreto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barreto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11379. Plaintiff Michael Baxter is an individual residing in Washington. Baxter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baxter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baxter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11380. Plaintiff Mark Becklund is an individual residing in Washington. Becklund worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Becklund has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Becklund has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11381. Plaintiff Jeramy Bedard is an individual residing in Washington. Bedard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bedard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bedard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11382. Plaintiff Thomas Bieber is an individual residing in Washington. Bieber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bieber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bieber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11383. Plaintiff Richard Birnel is an individual residing in Washington. Birnel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Birnel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Birnel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11384. Plaintiff Johann Bisbing is an individual residing in Washington. Bisbing worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bisbing has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bisbing has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11385. Plaintiff Alreace Bolar is an individual residing in Washington. Bolar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11386. Plaintiff Nicole Bond is an individual residing in Washington. Bond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11387. Plaintiff Matthew Bonds is an individual residing in Arizona. Bonds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11388. Plaintiff Christopher Bou is an individual residing in Washington. Bou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11389. Plaintiff Curtis Boyd is an individual residing in Washington. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11390. Plaintiff Steven Braun is an individual residing in Washington. Braun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11391. Plaintiff Nicole Bridges is an individual residing in California. Bridges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bridges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bridges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11392. Plaintiff Daniel Browning is an individual residing in Idaho. Browning worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Browning has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Browning has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11393. Plaintiff Glendoria Brumidge is an individual residing in Washington. Brumidge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brumidge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brumidge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11394. Plaintiff Joshua Bryant is an individual residing in Colorado. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11395. Plaintiff Valentin Budimir is an individual residing in Washington. Budimir worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Budimir has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Budimir has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11396. Plaintiff Francois Bukasa is an individual residing in Washington. Bukasa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bukasa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bukasa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11397. Plaintiff Clinton Burnham is an individual residing in Washington. Burnham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11398. Plaintiff Joshua Burress is an individual residing in Washington. Burress worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burress has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burress has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11399. Plaintiff John Burritt is an individual residing in Washington. Burritt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burritt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burritt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11400. Plaintiff Kevin Butler is an individual residing in Washington. Butler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11401. Plaintiff Tserendagva Byambadaa is an individual residing in Washington. Byambadaa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Byambadaa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Byambadaa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11402. Plaintiff Justin Cabrera is an individual residing in Washington. Cabrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11403. Plaintiff James Calder is an individual residing in Washington. Calder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11404. Plaintiff Rodrigo Carson is an individual residing in Washington. Carson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11405. Plaintiff Rodolfo Castaneda is an individual residing in Washington. Castaneda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castaneda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castaneda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11406. Plaintiff Celina Castillo is an individual residing in Washington. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11407. Plaintiff Daniel Catalan is an individual residing in Washington. Catalan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Catalan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Catalan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11408. Plaintiff Juan Cevallos Robletto is an individual residing in Florida. Cevallos Robletto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017

but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cevallos Robletto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cevallos Robletto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11409. Plaintiff Terrance Chan is an individual residing in Washington. Chan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11410. Plaintiff Samoeun Chan is an individual residing in Washington. Chan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11411. Plaintiff Philip Chan is an individual residing in Nevada. Chan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11412. Plaintiff Ryan Chase is an individual residing in Washington. Chase worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chase has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chase has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11413. Plaintiff Tuan Chau is an individual residing in Washington. Chau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11414. Plaintiff Oscar Chavez is an individual residing in Washington. Chavez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11415. Plaintiff Saroeun Chea is an individual residing in Washington. Chea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11416. Plaintiff Kevin Childress is an individual residing in Washington. Childress worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Childress has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Childress has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11417. Plaintiff Joseph Chiocca is an individual residing in Washington. Chiocca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chiocca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chiocca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11418. Plaintiff Yong Choe is an individual residing in Washington. Choe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Choe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Choe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11419. Plaintiff William Clay is an individual residing in Washington. Clay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11420. Plaintiff Matthew Clines is an individual residing in Washington. Clines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11421. Plaintiff Marlin Cloy is an individual residing in Washington. Cloy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cloy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cloy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11422. Plaintiff Bruce Coffey is an individual residing in Washington. Coffey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11423. Plaintiff Anthony Coffman is an individual residing in Washington. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11424. Plaintiff Gregory Coots is an individual residing in Washington. Coots worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coots has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coots has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11425. Plaintiff Trevor Corcoran is an individual residing in Illinois. Corcoran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corcoran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corcoran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11426. Plaintiff Ronald Cox is an individual residing in Washington. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11427. Plaintiff Dawn Cozzolino is an individual residing in Washington. Cozzolino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cozzolino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cozzolino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11428. Plaintiff Walter Cruz Caro is an individual residing in Washington. Cruz Caro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruz Caro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruz Caro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11429. Plaintiff Rhonda Dagais is an individual residing in Washington. Dagais worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dagais has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dagais has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11430. Plaintiff Randy Davidson is an individual residing in Washington. Davidson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davidson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davidson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11431. Plaintiff Dwayne Davis is an individual residing in Washington. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11432. Plaintiff Terry Day is an individual residing in Washington. Day worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Day has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Day has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11433. Plaintiff Kevin Dean is an individual residing in Washington. Dean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11434. Plaintiff Keenan Demello is an individual residing in Washington. Demello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11435. Plaintiff Brandon Dolquist is an individual residing in Washington. Dolquist worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dolquist has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dolquist has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11436. Plaintiff Michael Dove is an individual residing in Washington. Dove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11437. Plaintiff Paul Doyle is an individual residing in Washington. Doyle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doyle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doyle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11438. Plaintiff Charles Dungan is an individual residing in Washington. Dungan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dungan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dungan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11439. Plaintiff John Eastwood is an individual residing in Washington. Eastwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eastwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eastwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11440. Plaintiff Scott Eller is an individual residing in Washington. Eller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11441. Plaintiff Daniel Esget is an individual residing in Washington. Esget worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Esget has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Esget has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11442. Plaintiff Isidro Espinoza Jr. is an individual residing in Washington. Espinoza Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Espinoza Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Espinoza Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11443. Plaintiff Michael Excell is an individual residing in Washington. Excell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Excell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Excell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11444. Plaintiff Annette Faletogo is an individual residing in Washington. Faletogo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faletogo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faletogo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11445. Plaintiff Daniel Farage is an individual residing in Washington. Farage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11446. Plaintiff Ted Feenstra is an individual residing in Washington. Feenstra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feenstra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feenstra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11447. Plaintiff Abraham Ferrell-Logan is an individual residing in Washington. Ferrell-Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018

but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferrell-Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferrell-Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11448. Plaintiff Ami Filimaua is an individual residing in Washington. Filimaua worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Filimaua has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Filimaua has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11449. Plaintiff Dennis Fischer is an individual residing in Washington. Fischer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fischer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fischer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11450. Plaintiff Shane Fisher is an individual residing in Washington. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11451. Plaintiff Miguel Flores is an individual residing in Washington. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11452. Plaintiff Devin Fludd is an individual residing in Washington. Fludd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fludd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fludd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11453. Plaintiff Jasmine Foster is an individual residing in Washington. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11454. Plaintiff Joshua Freeman is an individual residing in Washington. Freeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11455. Plaintiff Shannon Freeman is an individual residing in Washington. Freeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11456. Plaintiff Kelly Fritz is an individual residing in Idaho. Fritz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fritz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fritz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11457. Plaintiff Hubert Fulmer Iii is an individual residing in Alabama. Fulmer Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fulmer Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fulmer Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11458. Plaintiff Nicholas Galasso-Munoz is an individual residing in Arizona. Galasso-Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Galasso-Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Galasso-

Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11459. Plaintiff Todd Gamache is an individual residing in Washington. Gamache worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gamache has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gamache has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11460. Plaintiff Gary Gano is an individual residing in Washington. Gano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11461. Plaintiff Breylon Garland is an individual residing in Texas. Garland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11462. Plaintiff Lenny Garrison is an individual residing in Washington. Garrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrison has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11463. Plaintiff Steven Gartner is an individual residing in Washington. Gartner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gartner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gartner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11464. Plaintiff Cory Goetz is an individual residing in Washington. Goetz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goetz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goetz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11465. Plaintiff Darrin Graham is an individual residing in Washington. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11466. Plaintiff Noah Gross is an individual residing in Washington. Gross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11467. Plaintiff Rafael Guajardo is an individual residing in Washington. Guajardo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guajardo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guajardo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11468. Plaintiff Jovy Guan is an individual residing in Washington. Guan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11469. Plaintiff Samantha Guthrie is an individual residing in Washington. Guthrie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guthrie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guthrie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11470. Plaintiff Kavik Hahn is an individual residing in Washington. Hahn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hahn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hahn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11471. Plaintiff Andrew Haley is an individual residing in Washington. Haley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11472. Plaintiff James Hallberg is an individual residing in Washington. Hallberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hallberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hallberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11473. Plaintiff Jerry Harai is an individual residing in Washington. Harai worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harai has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harai has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11474. Plaintiff Steven Harrington is an individual residing in Washington. Harrington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Harrington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11475. Plaintiff Sharman Hassan is an individual residing in Washington. Hassan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11476. Plaintiff Jennifer Hebert is an individual residing in Washington. Hebert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hebert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hebert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11477. Plaintiff Donald Hedglin is an individual residing in Washington. Hedglin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hedglin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hedglin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11478. Plaintiff Tiffanie Hedman is an individual residing in Washington. Hedman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hedman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hedman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11479. Plaintiff Yuria Hernandez is an individual residing in Washington. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11480. Plaintiff Kyle Higman is an individual residing in Washington. Higman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Higman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Higman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11481. Plaintiff Youngwoon Hills is an individual residing in Washington. Hills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11482. Plaintiff Lazerrick Holiday is an individual residing in Washington. Holiday worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holiday has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holiday has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11483. Plaintiff John Holl is an individual residing in Washington. Holl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11484. Plaintiff Sun Hong is an individual residing in Washington. Hong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11485. Plaintiff Karl Horn is an individual residing in Washington. Horn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11486. Plaintiff Wendell Horton is an individual residing in Washington. Horton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11487. Plaintiff Jared Howe is an individual residing in Washington. Howe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11488. Plaintiff Matthew Huck is an individual residing in Washington. Huck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11489. Plaintiff Steven Hunt is an individual residing in Washington. Hunt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11490. Plaintiff Marvin Im is an individual residing in Washington. Im worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Im has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Im has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11491. Plaintiff Bonnie Janssen is an individual residing in Idaho. Janssen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Janssen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Janssen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11492. Plaintiff Paulry Jean Francois is an individual residing in Florida. Jean Francois worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jean Francois has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jean Francois has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11493. Plaintiff Vladimyr Jean-Rosemond is an individual residing in Washington. Jean-Rosemond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jean-Rosemond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jean-Rosemond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11494. Plaintiff Brenda Johnson is an individual residing in Florida. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11495. Plaintiff Kevin Jones is an individual residing in Washington. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11496. Plaintiff Allen Jones is an individual residing in Washington. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11497. Plaintiff Joshua Jones is an individual residing in Washington. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11498. Plaintiff Brian Jorn is an individual residing in Washington. Jorn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jorn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jorn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11499. Plaintiff Sheila Joy is an individual residing in Washington. Joy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington and Oregon from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11500. Plaintiff Timothy Kallam is an individual residing in Washington. Kallam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kallam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kallam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11501. Plaintiff Nicholas Kent is an individual residing in Washington. Kent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11502. Plaintiff Jason Keosian is an individual residing in Washington. Keosian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keosian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keosian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11503. Plaintiff Min Kim is an individual residing in Washington. Kim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11504. Plaintiff Eung Kim is an individual residing in Washington. Kim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11505. Plaintiff Michael Kirwan is an individual residing in Washington. Kirwan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirwan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirwan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11506. Plaintiff Brett Kite is an individual residing in Washington. Kite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11507. Plaintiff Eric Kolb is an individual residing in Washington. Kolb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kolb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kolb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11508. Plaintiff Stephen Kononovich is an individual residing in Washington. Kononovich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kononovich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kononovich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11509. Plaintiff Charles Lamaire is an individual residing in Washington. Lamaire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamaire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamaire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11510. Plaintiff Jeromy Lawson is an individual residing in Washington. Lawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11511. Plaintiff Miguel Laygo is an individual residing in Washington. Laygo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laygo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laygo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11512. Plaintiff Jongsang Lee is an individual residing in Washington. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11513. Plaintiff Jitu Leech is an individual residing in Washington. Leech worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leech has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leech has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11514. Plaintiff Ryan Leffman is an individual residing in Washington. Leffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11515. Plaintiff Todd Leiser is an individual residing in Washington. Leiser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leiser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leiser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11516. Plaintiff Jose Leon is an individual residing in Idaho. Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11517. Plaintiff Eduardo Lezama is an individual residing in Washington. Lezama worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lezama has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lezama has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11518. Plaintiff Brandon Lindgren is an individual residing in Washington. Lindgren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lindgren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lindgren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11519. Plaintiff Zachary Long is an individual residing in Florida. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11520. Plaintiff Travis Longenecker is an individual residing in Washington. Longenecker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Longenecker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Longenecker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11521. Plaintiff Harry Love Iv is an individual residing in North Carolina. Love Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Love Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Love Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11522. Plaintiff Vincent Luke is an individual residing in Washington. Luke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11523. Plaintiff Carie Lustig is an individual residing in Washington. Lustig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lustig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lustig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11524. Plaintiff Rochelle M Bass is an individual residing in Texas. M Bass worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. M Bass has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because M Bass has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11525. Plaintiff Efren Marfil is an individual residing in Washington. Marfil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marfil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marfil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11526. Plaintiff Eric Martin is an individual residing in Arizona. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11527. Plaintiff Pavlo Marusetskyy is an individual residing in Washington. Marusetskyy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marusetskyy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marusetskyy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11528. Plaintiff Jamie Mason is an individual residing in Washington. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11529. Plaintiff Eric Mathews is an individual residing in Washington. Mathews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mathews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mathews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11530. Plaintiff Luke Maves is an individual residing in Washington. Maves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11531. Plaintiff Jorell Mcauliffe is an individual residing in Washington. Mcauliffe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcauliffe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcauliffe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11532. Plaintiff Gabriel Mcfarland is an individual residing in Washington. Mcfarland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcfarland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcfarland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11533. Plaintiff Kristen Mckenzie is an individual residing in Washington. Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11534. Plaintiff Darrell McLaurin is an individual residing in Washington. McLaurin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McLaurin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McLaurin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11535. Plaintiff Terry Mcnamara is an individual residing in Washington. Mcnamara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcnamara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcnamara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11536. Plaintiff Jeremy Mendez is an individual residing in Washington. Mendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11537. Plaintiff Kelly Metzler is an individual residing in Washington. Metzler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Metzler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Metzler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11538. Plaintiff Terrance Miller, Sr. is an individual residing in Washington. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11539. Plaintiff Elvester Miller is an individual residing in Washington. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11540. Plaintiff Clayton Mincey is an individual residing in Washington. Mincey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mincey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mincey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11541. Plaintiff Raymond Mingming is an individual residing in Washington. Mingming worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mingming has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mingming has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11542. Plaintiff James Miraglia is an individual residing in California. Miraglia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miraglia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miraglia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11543. Plaintiff Jack Moline Jr is an individual residing in Washington. Moline Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moline Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moline Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11544. Plaintiff Juan Moreno Gomez Jr is an individual residing in Washington. Moreno Gomez Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moreno Gomez Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreno Gomez Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11545. Plaintiff Javier Munoz is an individual residing in Washington. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11546. Plaintiff Mohammad Nabizada is an individual residing in Washington. Nabizada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nabizada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nabizada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11547. Plaintiff Rommel Nateras is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Nateras worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nateras has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nateras has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11548. Plaintiff Vitaliy Nazarchuk is an individual residing in Washington. Nazarchuk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nazarchuk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nazarchuk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11549. Plaintiff Christopher Nelson is an individual residing in Washington. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11550. Plaintiff Phuong Nguyen is an individual residing in Washington. Nguyen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nguyen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nguyen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11551. Plaintiff Kyle Norris is an individual residing in Washington. Norris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11552. Plaintiff Mark Nuzum is an individual residing in Washington. Nuzum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nuzum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nuzum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11553. Plaintiff Kristoffer Ocampo is an individual residing in Washington. Ocampo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ocampo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ocampo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11554. Plaintiff Tommy Oliver is an individual residing in Washington. Oliver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oliver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oliver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11555. Plaintiff Brian Olson is an individual residing in Washington. Olson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11556. Plaintiff Paige Omalley is an individual residing in Washington. Omalley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Omalley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Omalley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11557. Plaintiff Jason Owens is an individual residing in Washington. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11558. Plaintiff Alex Padilla is an individual residing in Washington. Padilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11559. Plaintiff Salina Parker is an individual residing in Washington. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11560. Plaintiff Ryan Pawloski is an individual residing in Washington. Pawloski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pawloski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pawloski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11561. Plaintiff Angel Paz is an individual residing in Washington. Paz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11562. Plaintiff Steven Peckham is an individual residing in Kentucky. Peckham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peckham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peckham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11563. Plaintiff Sequita Pegram is an individual residing in Virginia. Pegram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pegram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pegram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11564. Plaintiff Karen Perez is an individual residing in Idaho. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11565. Plaintiff Christian Perfecto is an individual residing in Washington. Perfecto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perfecto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perfecto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11566. Plaintiff Anthony Perry is an individual residing in Washington. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11567. Plaintiff Clint Klevesahl is an individual residing in Washington. Polanco Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11568. Plaintiff Svetlana Polishchuk is an individual residing in Washington. Polishchuk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Polishchuk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polishchuk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11569. Plaintiff Jabriel Pumarejo is an individual residing in Washington. Pumarejo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pumarejo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pumarejo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11570. Plaintiff James Quayle is an individual residing in Montana. Quayle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quayle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quayle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11571. Plaintiff Laura Rand is an individual residing in Washington. Rand worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rand has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rand has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11572. Plaintiff Andres Reyes Soto is an individual residing in Florida. Reyes Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reyes

Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reyes Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11573. Plaintiff Anthony Rhodes is an individual residing in California. Rhodes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhodes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhodes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11574. Plaintiff Ray Rhone is an individual residing in Washington. Rhone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11575. Plaintiff Amber Rice is an individual residing in Idaho. Rice worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rice has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rice has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11576. Plaintiff Daniel Richardson is an individual residing in Washington. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11577. Plaintiff Nicholas Rios is an individual residing in Washington. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11578. Plaintiff Rodney Robbins is an individual residing in Washington. Robbins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robbins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robbins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11579. Plaintiff Lake Roberts is an individual residing in Washington. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11580. Plaintiff Donte Roberts is an individual residing in Oregon. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11581. Plaintiff Yuriria Rodriguez is an individual residing in Washington. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11582. Plaintiff John Rogers Jr is an individual residing in Washington. Rogers Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11583. Plaintiff Heriberto Rosado is an individual residing in Washington. Rosado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11584. Plaintiff Michelle Rowe is an individual residing in Washington. Rowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11585. Plaintiff Mahyar Sajadi is an individual residing in Washington. Sajadi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sajadi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sajadi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11586. Plaintiff Rafael Santoyo Cortes is an individual residing in Washington. Santoyo Cortes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santoyo Cortes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santoyo Cortes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11587. Plaintiff Jean Schaaf is an individual residing in Washington. Schaaf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schaaf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schaaf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11588. Plaintiff Zack Schafer is an individual residing in Washington. Schafer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schafer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schafer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11589. Plaintiff Kevin Schlewitz is an individual residing in Washington. Schlewitz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schlewitz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schlewitz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11590. Plaintiff Samuel Schuller is an individual residing in Washington. Schuller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schuller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schuller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11591. Plaintiff Adi Seniloli is an individual residing in Washington. Seniloli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seniloli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seniloli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11592. Plaintiff Gary Shafer is an individual residing in Washington. Shafer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shafer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shafer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11593. Plaintiff Andrey Shvets is an individual residing in Washington. Shvets worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shvets has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shvets has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11594. Plaintiff Renee Simpkins is an individual residing in Nevada. Simpkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11595. Plaintiff Nathaniel Slattery is an individual residing in Tennessee. Slattery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slattery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slattery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11596. Plaintiff Joshua Slaughter is an individual residing in Washington. Slaughter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Slaughter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaughter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11597. Plaintiff Donald Sly is an individual residing in Washington. Sly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11598. Plaintiff Mike Snellgrove is an individual residing in Arizona. Snellgrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snellgrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snellgrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11599. Plaintiff Lilian Sochirca is an individual residing in Washington. Sochirca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sochirca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sochirca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11600. Plaintiff Makenna Solberg is an individual residing in Washington. Solberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11601. Plaintiff Peggy Solver is an individual residing in Washington. Solver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11602. Plaintiff Brandy Solver is an individual residing in Washington. Solver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11603. Plaintiff Christopher Souers is an individual residing in Washington. Souers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Souers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Souers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11604. Plaintiff Brian Stanley is an individual residing in Washington. Stanley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stanley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stanley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11605. Plaintiff April Steele is an individual residing in Washington. Steele worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steele has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steele has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11606. Plaintiff Retten Steincipher is an individual residing in Washington. Steincipher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steincipher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steincipher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11607. Plaintiff Cole Stephen is an individual residing in Washington. Stephen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11608. Plaintiff Seth Stewart is an individual residing in Washington. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11609. Plaintiff Blake Stokes is an individual residing in Washington. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11610. Plaintiff John Strobel is an individual residing in Louisiana. Strobel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strobel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strobel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11611. Plaintiff Alexandru Tabunscic is an individual residing in Washington. Tabunscic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tabunscic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tabunscic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11612. Plaintiff Solialofi Tali is an individual residing in Washington. Tali worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tali has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tali has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11613. Plaintiff Binyam Tilahun is an individual residing in Washington. Tavarez Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavarez Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavarez Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11614. Plaintiff Nian Taylor is an individual residing in Washington. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11615. Plaintiff Terry Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11616. Plaintiff Joe Telmetang is an individual residing in Washington. Telmetang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Telmetang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Telmetang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11617. Plaintiff Sara Templeton-Kintner is an individual residing in Washington. Templeton-Kintner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Templeton-Kintner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Templeton-Kintner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11618. Plaintiff David Tjulander is an individual residing in Washington. Tjulander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tjulander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tjulander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11619. Plaintiff Darin Tognazzini is an individual residing in Washington. Tognazzini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Tognazzini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tognazzini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11620. Plaintiff Steven Towle is an individual residing in Washington. Towle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Towle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Towle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11621. Plaintiff Nghia Tran is an individual residing in Washington. Tran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2004 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11622. Plaintiff Duyet Trinh is an individual residing in Washington. Trinh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2001 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trinh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trinh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11623. Plaintiff Timber Turner is an individual residing in Idaho. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11624. Plaintiff Ashley Twitty is an individual residing in Washington. Twitty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Twitty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Twitty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11625. Plaintiff Marques Tyson is an individual residing in Washington. Tyson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11626. Plaintiff Khatanbaatar Ugtakhbayar is an individual residing in Washington. Ugtakhbayar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ugtakhbayar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ugtakhbayar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11627. Plaintiff Jesse Urbina Salazar is an individual residing in Washington. Urbina Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Urbina Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Urbina Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11628. Plaintiff Jonathan Utu is an individual residing in Washington. Utu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Utu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Utu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11629. Plaintiff Oscar Villasana is an individual residing in Washington. Villasana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villasana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villasana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11630. Plaintiff Derek Von Ahn is an individual residing in Washington. Von Ahn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Von Ahn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Von Ahn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11631. Plaintiff Robert Watts is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Watts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11632. Plaintiff Keith Welch is an individual residing in Washington. Welch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Welch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Welch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11633. Plaintiff Brennen West is an individual residing in Washington. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11634. Plaintiff Brian West is an individual residing in Washington. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11635. Plaintiff Kyle Wichern is an individual residing in Washington. Wichern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wichern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wichern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11636. Plaintiff Eddie Williams is an individual residing in Washington. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11637. Plaintiff Larry Wilmey is an individual residing in Idaho. Wilmey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilmey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilmey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11638. Plaintiff Jamalh Wilson is an individual residing in Washington. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11639. Plaintiff Charles Wittner is an individual residing in Washington. Wittner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wittner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wittner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11640. Plaintiff Anthony Wright is an individual residing in Washington. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11641. Plaintiff Changhyun Yum is an individual residing in Washington. Yum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11642. Plaintiff Jerry Zan is an individual residing in Washington. Zan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11643. Plaintiff Kaleb Zavala is an individual residing in Washington. Zavala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Washington from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zavala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zavala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11644. Plaintiff Scott A Akers is an individual residing in Ohio. Akers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Akers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Akers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11645. Plaintiff Timothy Adkins is an individual residing in West Virginia. Adkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11646. Plaintiff Jessica Bailey is an individual residing in West Virginia. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11647. Plaintiff Bobby Brock is an individual residing in West Virginia. Brock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11648. Plaintiff James Burgess is an individual residing in West Virginia. Burgess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burgess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burgess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11649. Plaintiff Michael Cain is an individual residing in West Virginia. Cain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11650. Plaintiff Christopher Calvert is an individual residing in West Virginia. Calvert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calvert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calvert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11651. Plaintiff Randy Campbell is an individual residing in West Virginia. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11652. Plaintiff Jerry Chasteen is an individual residing in West Virginia. Chasteen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chasteen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chasteen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11653. Plaintiff Justin Cole is an individual residing in West Virginia. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11654. Plaintiff Ronald Coleman is an individual residing in West Virginia. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11655. Plaintiff Tyson Colvin is an individual residing in West Virginia. Colvin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colvin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colvin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11656. Plaintiff Steven Cress is an individual residing in West Virginia. Cress worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cress has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cress has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11657. Plaintiff Rick Cutlip is an individual residing in Virginia. Cutlip worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cutlip has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cutlip has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11658. Plaintiff Larry Daniels is an individual residing in Ohio. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11659. Plaintiff Stephen Dawson is an individual residing in West Virginia. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11660. Plaintiff Paul Dingess is an individual residing in West Virginia. Dingess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dingess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dingess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11661. Plaintiff Richard Eastman is an individual residing in West Virginia. Eastman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eastman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eastman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11662. Plaintiff Randy Eaton is an individual residing in West Virginia. Eaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11663. Plaintiff Matthew Ferrell is an individual residing in Missouri. Ferrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11664. Plaintiff Herman Gibson is an individual residing in West Virginia. Gibson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11665. Plaintiff Luke Gommer is an individual residing in West Virginia. Gommer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gommer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gommer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11666. Plaintiff Rudolph Griffiths is an individual residing in West Virginia. Griffiths worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffiths has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffiths has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11667. Plaintiff Jessica Haden is an individual residing in West Virginia. Haden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11668. Plaintiff Brian Hall is an individual residing in West Virginia. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11669. Plaintiff Gerald Handschumacher is an individual residing in West Virginia. Handschumacher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Handschumacher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Handschumacher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11670. Plaintiff Anthony Helms is an individual residing in West Virginia. Helms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11671. Plaintiff Jessica Helms is an individual residing in West Virginia. Helms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11672. Plaintiff Robert Hixon is an individual residing in West Virginia. Hixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11673. Plaintiff Christopher Hollobaugh is an individual residing in West Virginia. Hollobaugh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollobaugh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollobaugh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11674. Plaintiff Shane Holstine is an individual residing in West Virginia. Holstine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holstine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holstine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11675. Plaintiff Robert Jeffrey Jr. is an individual residing in Michigan. Jeffrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeffrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeffrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11676. Plaintiff Alan Johnson is an individual residing in West Virginia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11677. Plaintiff Rachael Johnson is an individual residing in West Virginia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11678. Plaintiff Kenneth Kayser is an individual residing in West Virginia. Kayser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kayser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kayser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11679. Plaintiff Jimmy Kirby is an individual residing in West Virginia. Kirby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11680. Plaintiff Patricia Kyer is an individual residing in West Virginia. Kyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11681. Plaintiff John Leftwich is an individual residing in West Virginia. Leftwich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leftwich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leftwich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11682. Plaintiff Andrew Martin is an individual residing in West Virginia. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11683. Plaintiff Heather Mcdaniel is an individual residing in West Virginia. Mcdaniel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdaniel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdaniel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11684. Plaintiff James Miller is an individual residing in West Virginia. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11685. Plaintiff Joshua Murray is an individual residing in Virginia. Murray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11686. Plaintiff Seth Nestor is an individual residing in West Virginia. Nestor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nestor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nestor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11687. Plaintiff Eric Oden is an individual residing in West Virginia. Oden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11688. Plaintiff Christopher Parker is an individual residing in West Virginia. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11689. Plaintiff Dennis Pennington is an individual residing in West Virginia. Pennington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pennington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pennington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11690. Plaintiff John Putman is an individual residing in West Virginia. Polanco Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11691. Plaintiff Mark Raschella is an individual residing in West Virginia. Raschella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Raschella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Raschella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11692. Plaintiff Johnathon Rife is an individual residing in West Virginia. Rife worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rife has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rife has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11693. Plaintiff Larry Rowan Li is an individual residing in West Virginia. Rowan Li worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rowan Li has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rowan Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11694. Plaintiff Thomas Sastram Jr. is an individual residing in West Virginia. Sastram Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sastram Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sastram Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11695. Plaintiff Rondal Shingleton is an individual residing in West Virginia. Shingleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shingleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shingleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11696. Plaintiff Bill Shreve is an individual residing in West Virginia. Shreve worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shreve has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shreve has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11697. Plaintiff Faith Smith is an individual residing in West Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11698. Plaintiff Krystion Stover is an individual residing in West Virginia. Stover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11699. Plaintiff Cherie Summers is an individual residing in West Virginia. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11700. Plaintiff James Sutherland is an individual residing in West Virginia. Sutherland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sutherland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sutherland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11701. Plaintiff Cameron Towles is an individual residing in North Carolina. Towles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Towles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Towles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11702. Plaintiff Dustin Udell is an individual residing in West Virginia. Udell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Udell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Udell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11703. Plaintiff Duane Vickers is an individual residing in West Virginia. Vickers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vickers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vickers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11704. Plaintiff Amy Vinson/Creasy is an individual residing in Kentucky. Vinson/Creasy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vinson/Creasy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vinson/Creasy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11705. Plaintiff Sherri Webb is an individual residing in West Virginia. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11706. Plaintiff Jeremy Williams is an individual residing in West Virginia. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11707. Plaintiff Chad Williams is an individual residing in West Virginia. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11708. Plaintiff Christopher Williams is an individual residing in West Virginia. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11709. Plaintiff Brant Workman is an individual residing in West Virginia. Workman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Workman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Workman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11710. Plaintiff Jason Yankie is an individual residing in West Virginia. Yankie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in West Virginia from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yankie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yankie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11711. Plaintiff Dennis Ahola is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ahola worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ahola has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ahola has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11712. Plaintiff John Anderson Jr. is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Anderson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11713. Plaintiff Michelle Anglemyer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Anglemyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Anglemyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anglemyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11714. Plaintiff Nicholas Bancroft is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bancroft worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bancroft has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bancroft has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11715. Plaintiff Bradford Barr is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Barr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11716. Plaintiff David Basacker is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Basacker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Basacker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Basacker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11717. Plaintiff Nathaniel Beaman is an individual residing in Texas. Beaman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beaman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beaman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11718. Plaintiff Kenneth Bittorf is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bittorf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bittorf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bittorf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11719. Plaintiff Brett Blindauer is an individual residing in Minnesota. Blindauer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blindauer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blindauer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11720. Plaintiff Jordan Bloy is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bloy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bloy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bloy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11721. Plaintiff Cardell Bonslater is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bonslater worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonslater has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonslater has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11722. Plaintiff Eric Bowers is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bowers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11723. Plaintiff Wayne Boyles is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Boyles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11724. Plaintiff Brian Bremer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bremer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bremer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bremer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11725. Plaintiff James Britton is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Britton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Britton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Britton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11726. Plaintiff Roman Bundy is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bundy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bundy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bundy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11727. Plaintiff Cassandra Burgen Now St. John is an individual residing in Missouri. Burgen Now St. John worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burgen Now St. John has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burgen Now St. John has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11728. Plaintiff John Cantrell is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Cantrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cantrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cantrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11729. Plaintiff Vandola Chambers is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11730. Plaintiff Jeremy Chapman is an individual residing in Iowa. Chapman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chapman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chapman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11731. Plaintiff Sheila Chester is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Chester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11732. Plaintiff Anthony Christianson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Christianson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christianson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christianson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11733. Plaintiff Ty Clinton is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Clinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11734. Plaintiff Lisa Conn is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Conn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11735. Plaintiff Ronald Corn is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Corn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11736. Plaintiff Carolyn Crenshaw is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Crenshaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crenshaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crenshaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11737. Plaintiff Preston Crook is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Crook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11738. Plaintiff Setric Curtis is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Curtis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Curtis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Curtis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11739. Plaintiff Nicole Dahlvig is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Dahlvig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dahlvig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dahlvig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11740. Plaintiff Bridget Daniels is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11741. Plaintiff Scott Dawson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11742. Plaintiff Tyrel Desrosier is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Desrosier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Desrosier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Desrosier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11743. Plaintiff Daniel Dewitt is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Dewitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dewitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dewitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11744. Plaintiff Daniel Doedens is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Doedens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doedens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doedens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11745. Plaintiff Jair Dosser is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dosser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dosser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dosser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11746. Plaintiff Timothy Drinka is an individual residing in Tennessee. Drinka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drinka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drinka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11747. Plaintiff Tammy Dvorak is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Dvorak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dvorak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dvorak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11748. Plaintiff Jessica Eberl is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Eberl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eberl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eberl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11749. Plaintiff Andrew Eisler is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Eisler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eisler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eisler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11750. Plaintiff Loren Ekern is an individual residing in Colorado. Ekern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin and Colorado from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ekern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ekern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11751. Plaintiff David Ellious is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ellious worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellious has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellious has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11752. Plaintiff Gerald Erickson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Erickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Erickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Erickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11753. Plaintiff Sterling Evert is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Evert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11754. Plaintiff Christopher Fahrback is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Fahrback worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fahrback has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fahrback has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11755. Plaintiff Mark Feldkamp is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Feldkamp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feldkamp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feldkamp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11756. Plaintiff Jesse Ferkingstad is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ferkingstad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferkingstad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferkingstad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11757. Plaintiff Tami Fisher is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11758. Plaintiff Andre Fleming is an individual residing in Mississippi. Fleming worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fleming has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fleming has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11759. Plaintiff Seth Freeman is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Freeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11760. Plaintiff Donald Gallenberger is an individual residing in Florida. Gallenberger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gallenberger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gallenberger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11761. Plaintiff Gregory Givens is an individual residing in Michigan. Givens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Givens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Givens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11762. Plaintiff Keanna Gochet is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Gochet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gochet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gochet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11763. Plaintiff Tyler Gollakner is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Gollakner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gollakner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gollakner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11764. Plaintiff Drew Goode is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Goode worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goode has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goode has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11765. Plaintiff Sara Grandi is an individual residing in Minnesota. Grandi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grandi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grandi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11766. Plaintiff Stephen Gray is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11767. Plaintiff Brett Haggerty is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Haggerty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haggerty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haggerty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11768. Plaintiff Angela Hansen is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hansen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hansen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hansen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11769. Plaintiff Brian Hanson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11770. Plaintiff Sharlissa Harris is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11771. Plaintiff Randall Hass is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hass worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hass has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hass has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11772. Plaintiff James Hassell is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hassell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11773. Plaintiff Paul Hassler is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hassler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11774. Plaintiff Ty Hauden is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hauden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hauden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hauden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11775. Plaintiff Andrew Hauke is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hauke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hauke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hauke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11776. Plaintiff Tyler Hendrickson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hendrickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hendrickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hendrickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11777. Plaintiff Darrell Hester is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11778. Plaintiff James Higgins is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Higgins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Higgins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Higgins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11779. Plaintiff Terrance Hilson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11780. Plaintiff Mickey Holland is an individual residing in Mississippi. Holland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin and Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11781. Plaintiff Devonte Hubbard is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Hubbard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11782. Plaintiff Scott Huffman is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Huffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11783. Plaintiff Troy Hughes is an individual residing in Vermont. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11784. Plaintiff Angelita Ingram is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ingram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ingram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ingram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11785. Plaintiff Brian Insteness is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Insteness worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Insteness has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Insteness has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11786. Plaintiff Amanda Jaeger is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Jaeger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jaeger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jaeger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11787. Plaintiff Terese Janssen is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Janssen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Janssen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Janssen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11788. Plaintiff Ilyas Jeelani is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Jeelani worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeelani has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeelani has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11789. Plaintiff Don Jensen is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Jensen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jensen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jensen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11790. Plaintiff Phillip Johnson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11791. Plaintiff Nicholas Johnson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11792. Plaintiff Trekiel Johnson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11793. Plaintiff Tyisha Jones is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11794. Plaintiff Daniel Joski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Joski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11795. Plaintiff Joshua Juranitch is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Juranitch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Juranitch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Juranitch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11796. Plaintiff Greg Kane is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Kane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11797. Plaintiff Allison Karau is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Karau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Karau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Karau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11798. Plaintiff Rodney Keenan is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Keenan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keenan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keenan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11799. Plaintiff Mark Keepers is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Keepers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2006 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keepers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keepers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11800. Plaintiff Amy Keepers is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Keepers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keepers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keepers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11801. Plaintiff David Kluth is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Kluth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kluth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kluth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11802. Plaintiff Vasilis Kolintzas is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Kolintzas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kolintzas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kolintzas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11803. Plaintiff Christopher Komorowski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Komorowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2001 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Komorowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Komorowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11804. Plaintiff Heather Labrec is an individual residing in Missouri. Labrec worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Labrec has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Labrec has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11805. Plaintiff Nadia Laid is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Laid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11806. Plaintiff Catherine Landers is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Landers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Landers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Landers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11807. Plaintiff Blia Lee is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11808. Plaintiff Richard Lee is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11809. Plaintiff Brandon Lee is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11810. Plaintiff Renee Leisgang is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Leisgang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leisgang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leisgang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11811. Plaintiff Dustin Lentz is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lentz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lentz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lentz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11812. Plaintiff Jeffrey Lepinski is an individual residing in Minnesota. Lepinski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lepinski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lepinski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11813. Plaintiff Pablo Lira is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lira worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lira has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lira has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11814. Plaintiff Nicholas Lopez is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11815. Plaintiff Scott Ludwig is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ludwig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ludwig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ludwig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11816. Plaintiff Paul Lundquist is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lundquist worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lundquist has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lundquist has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11817. Plaintiff Christopher Kiel is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11818. Plaintiff Matthew Marchinowski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Marchinowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marchinowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marchinowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11819. Plaintiff Kathleen Bembenek is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Marks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11820. Plaintiff Patrick Matuszewski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Matuszewski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matuszewski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matuszewski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11821. Plaintiff Michael Matyshak is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Matyshak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matyshak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matyshak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11822. Plaintiff James Meomartino is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Meomartino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meomartino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meomartino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11823. Plaintiff Justin Merriwether is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Merriwether worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merriwether has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merriwether has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11824. Plaintiff Zachery Mielke is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Mielke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mielke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mielke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11825. Plaintiff Martin Mildren is an individual residing in Illinois. Mildren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mildren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mildren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11826. Plaintiff Tracy Miles is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11827. Plaintiff Dragan Milisav is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Milisav worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milisav has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milisav has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11828. Plaintiff Michele Miller is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11829. Plaintiff Rolvaungha Molett is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Molett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Molett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Molett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11830. Plaintiff Jose Munguia is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Munguia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munguia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munguia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11831. Plaintiff Jermaine Napper is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Napper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Napper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Napper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11832. Plaintiff Arnold Naqellari is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Naqellari worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naqellari has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naqellari has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11833. Plaintiff Jeremiah Neumann is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Neumann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neumann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neumann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11834. Plaintiff Shannon Nufer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Nufer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nufer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nufer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11835. Plaintiff Mike Obrien is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Obrien worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Obrien has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Obrien has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11836. Plaintiff Michael Oconnell is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Oconnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oconnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oconnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11837. Plaintiff Kevin Oimoen is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Oimoen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oimoen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oimoen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11838. Plaintiff Paul Ojanen is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ojanen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ojanen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ojanen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11839. Plaintiff Eric Payette is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Payette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11840. Plaintiff Adrian Payne is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Payne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11841. Plaintiff Gerald Pelt is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Pelt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pelt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pelt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11842. Plaintiff Robert Penigar is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Penigar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Penigar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Penigar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11843. Plaintiff Bryan Perez is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11844. Plaintiff Scott Pergolski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Pergolski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pergolski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pergolski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11845. Plaintiff Clayton Perzinski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Perzinski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perzinski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perzinski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11846. Plaintiff James Peters is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Peters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11847. Plaintiff Kenneth Peterson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Peterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11848. Plaintiff Donald Plant is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Plant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11849. Plaintiff Adam Polden is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Polden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11850. Plaintiff Vernoe Pope is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Pope worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pope has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pope has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11851. Plaintiff Sean Porter is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11852. Plaintiff Brian Pritula is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Pritula worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pritula has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pritula has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11853. Plaintiff Michael Przlowski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Przlowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 1998 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Przlowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Przlowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11854. Plaintiff Raymond Pugh is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Pugh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pugh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pugh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11855. Plaintiff Timothy Radatz is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Radatz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radatz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radatz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11856. Plaintiff Steven Radosevic is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Radosevic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radosevic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radosevic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11857. Plaintiff William Ramos Jr. is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ramos Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11858. Plaintiff Daren Redlin is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Redlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Redlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Redlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11859. Plaintiff Jason Reiger is an individual residing in Illinois. Reiger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reiger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reiger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11860. Plaintiff Lynne Reilly is an individual residing in Minnesota. Reilly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reilly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reilly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11861. Plaintiff Diane Reinders is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Reinders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reinders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reinders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11862. Plaintiff Paul Ricchio is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ricchio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2002 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricchio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricchio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11863. Plaintiff Alonte Richardson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11864. Plaintiff Jason Ripp is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ripp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ripp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ripp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11865. Plaintiff Christopher Robinson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11866. Plaintiff Chad Roelke is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Roelke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roelke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roelke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11867. Plaintiff Kevin Rothmeyer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Rothmeyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rothmeyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rothmeyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11868. Plaintiff Kip Rubenzer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Rubenzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rubenzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rubenzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11869. Plaintiff Miranda Rude is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Rude worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rude has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rude has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11870. Plaintiff James Bolger is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ruggles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruggles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruggles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11871. Plaintiff Randolph Sarnowski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Sarnowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sarnowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sarnowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11872. Plaintiff Cory Schaefer is an individual residing in South Carolina. Schaefer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schaefer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schaefer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11873. Plaintiff Valinda Schmalfeldt is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Schmalfeldt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schmalfeldt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schmalfeldt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11874. Plaintiff Ian Schneider is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Schneider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schneider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schneider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11875. Plaintiff Kenneth Schroeder is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Schroeder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schroeder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schroeder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11876. Plaintiff Dean Schroeder is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Schroeder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Schroeder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schroeder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11877. Plaintiff Danette Schutte is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Schutte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schutte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schutte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11878. Plaintiff Anthony Sciuto is an individual residing in California. Sciuto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sciuto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sciuto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11879. Plaintiff Robert Sell is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Sell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11880. Plaintiff Scott Shill is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Shill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11881. Plaintiff Douglas Shinker is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Shinker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shinker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shinker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11882. Plaintiff Marchon Skillom-Tate is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Skillom-Tate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skillom-Tate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skillom-Tate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11883. Plaintiff James Skinner is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Skinner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skinner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skinner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11884. Plaintiff Taylor Slaback is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Slaback worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaback has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaback has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11885. Plaintiff Christopher Sorenson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Sorenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sorenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sorenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11886. Plaintiff David Spencer is an individual residing in Minnesota. Spencer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11887. Plaintiff Lori Stellar is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Stellar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stellar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stellar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11888. Plaintiff Keith Stelloh is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Stelloh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stelloh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stelloh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11889. Plaintiff Richard Sundstrom is an individual residing in Minnesota. Sundstrom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sundstrom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sundstrom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11890. Plaintiff Maurkes Swarn is an individual residing in Florida. Swarn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swarn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swarn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11891. Plaintiff Jason Tank is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11892. Plaintiff Edgar Taylor is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2003 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11893. Plaintiff Travis Tenkley is an individual residing in Minnesota. Tenkley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tenkley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tenkley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11894. Plaintiff Brandon Thomas is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11895. Plaintiff Ryan Thompson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11896. Plaintiff Jeremiah Thompson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11897. Plaintiff Reggie Thompson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11898. Plaintiff Bambi Tischer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tischer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tischer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tischer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11899. Plaintiff Joseph Tjader is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tjader worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tjader has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tjader has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11900. Plaintiff Sean Tobin is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tobin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tobin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tobin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11901. Plaintiff Russell Tock is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11902. Plaintiff Ross Tollgaard is an individual residing in Minnesota. Tollgaard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tollgaard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tollgaard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11903. Plaintiff Justin Torres is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11904. Plaintiff Anthony Torruella is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Torruella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torruella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torruella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11905. Plaintiff Tamicka Trawick is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Trawick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trawick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trawick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11906. Plaintiff Justin Trethewey is an individual residing in Florida. Trethewey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trethewey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trethewey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11907. Plaintiff Patrick Tschimperle is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Tschimperle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tschimperle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tschimperle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11908. Plaintiff William Vandehei is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Vandehei worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vandehei has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vandehei has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11909. Plaintiff Lucas Vandendries is an individual residing in Arizona. Vandendries worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vandendries has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vandendries has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11910. Plaintiff Lia Villarreal is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Villarreal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Villarreal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Villarreal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11911. Plaintiff Paul Vind is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Vind worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vind has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vind has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11912. Plaintiff James Vogel is an individual residing in Minnesota. Vogel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vogel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vogel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11913. Plaintiff Kamauri Wallace is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11914. Plaintiff Anthony Washington is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11915. Plaintiff Anthony White is an individual residing in Wisconsin. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11916. Plaintiff Mark Widmar is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Widmar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Widmar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Widmar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11917. Plaintiff Amani Wilborn is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wilborn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilborn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilborn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11918. Plaintiff Joseph Wilke is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wilke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11919. Plaintiff Lori Willacker is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Willacker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willacker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willacker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11920. Plaintiff Heather Williams is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11921. Plaintiff Morris Wilson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11922. Plaintiff Lavonne Winger is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Winger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11923. Plaintiff Jami Wozniak is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wozniak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wozniak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wozniak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11924. Plaintiff Anthony Wright is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11925. Plaintiff James Wuerl is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Wuerl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wuerl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wuerl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11926. Plaintiff Jonathon Wylie is an individual residing in Minnesota. Wylie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wylie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wylie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11927. Plaintiff Sean Zeznanski is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Zeznanski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wisconsin from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zeznanski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zeznanski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11928. Plaintiff David Anderson is an individual residing in Wyoming. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11929. Plaintiff Timothy Benson is an individual residing in Colorado. Benson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11930. Plaintiff Eric Childress is an individual residing in Wyoming. Childress worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Childress has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Childress has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11931. Plaintiff Chris Cordova is an individual residing in Wyoming. Cordova worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordova has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordova has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11932. Plaintiff Carmi Deparasis is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Deparasis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deparasis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deparasis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11933. Plaintiff Jerry Herbin is an individual residing in Wyoming. Herbin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herbin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herbin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11934. Plaintiff Julius Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11935. Plaintiff Earl Keith is an individual residing in Wyoming. Keith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11936. Plaintiff Sean Matoon is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Matoon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matoon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matoon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11937. Plaintiff Jason Mainz is an individual residing in Wyoming. Mainz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mainz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mainz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11938. Plaintiff Jeffrey Merry is an individual residing in Wyoming. Merry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11939. Plaintiff Dale Sheets is an individual residing in Wyoming. Sheets worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheets has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheets has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11940. Plaintiff Michael Smith is an individual residing in Wyoming. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11941. Plaintiff James Tolle is an individual residing in Wyoming. Tolle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tolle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tolle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11942. Plaintiff Chelsea Vallee is an individual residing in Wyoming. Vallee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vallee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vallee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

11943. Plaintiff Larry Young is an individual residing in Nevada. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week..

11944. At all relevant times, Plaintiffs worked for FedEx.

11945. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc. is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

11946. FedEx Corporation, formerly known as Federal Express Corporation, is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Memphis, Tennessee.

11947. FedEx Corporation is the successor, by merger, to FedEx Ground Package System, Inc.

11948. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc. and FedEx Corporation are referred to herein collectively as “FedEx.”

11949. At all relevant times, FedEx has engaged in the business of the delivery of packages nationwide and within the state of Pennsylvania.

11950. FedEx employs thousands of individuals across the country, including Plaintiffs, who have engaged in interstate commerce.

11951. FedEx is an employer under the FLSA and applicable state laws.

FACTS

11952. FedEx operates a package pickup and delivery business servicing customers throughout the United States.

11953. FedEx employs thousands of package delivery drivers within the United States, including the named Plaintiffs, who: (a) work for FedEx through intermediary employers called “independent service providers” (ISPs); (b) are classified as “employees” of the FedEx ISPs; (c) have worked more than forty hours per week delivering packages for FedEx but are not paid time-and-a-half compensation for hours worked beyond forty each week; and (d) drive, in whole or in part, vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,001 pounds or less. These individuals are referred to herein as “delivery drivers.”

11954. Before instituting the ISP model of employing its delivery drivers through intermediary entities, FedEx relied entirely on delivery drivers that it hired directly and purported to classify as “independent contractors”, pursuant to standard operating agreements that FedEx required its drivers to sign. After years of defending litigation challenging the employment status of these drivers around the country – during which time multiple courts around the country held that FedEx misclassified its delivery drivers as independent contractors when they were actually FedEx’s employees under various state wage laws¹ – FedEx shifted its method of hiring drivers in many states by contracting with ISPs in an effort to continue to avoid liability under the wage laws for its delivery drivers.

11955. FedEx ISPs are typically responsible for three or more FedEx delivery routes. FedEx requires its ISPs to hire FedEx’s workforce of delivery drivers, and FedEx further requires the ISPs to classify these delivery drivers as the ISPs’ employees.

11956. However, based on the economic realities of the relationship between FedEx and these drivers, it is clear that the delivery drivers working under the intermediary ISPs are also FedEx employees under the FLSA.

¹ See, e.g., Craig et al. v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc., 335 P.3d 66 (Kan. 2014) (FedEx drivers in Kansas were misclassified as independent contractors when they were employees as a matter of law); Alexander, et al. v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc., 765 F.3d 981, 997 (9th Cir. 2014) (same, for FedEx delivery drivers in California); Slayman, et al. v. FedEx Ground Package System, Inc., 765 F.3d 1033, 1046-47 (9th Cir. 2014) (FedEx delivery drivers in Oregon were FedEx’s employees under Oregon’s economic reality test and Oregon’s right to control test). FedEx ultimately settled these and other pending cases challenging its misclassification of drivers as independent contractors.

11957. FedEx operates a nationwide network of package handling terminals to serve its customers' package pickup and delivery needs around the country. FedEx advertises its delivery service and negotiates with its customers to provide the package pick-ups and deliveries that are performed by the Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers.

11958. Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers working under ISPs have typically worked full-time and exclusively as FedEx drivers, delivering FedEx's packages to FedEx customers while wearing FedEx uniforms and driving vehicles bearing FedEx's logos and color scheme.

11959. Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers working under ISPs have worked out of FedEx-owned and managed terminals throughout the country, where FedEx managers, package handlers, and other FedEx employees oversee and manage the package delivery operations.

11960. The services rendered by Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers working under ISPs are an integral part of FedEx's business because FedEx is in the business of package delivery, and Plaintiffs and these other delivery drivers physically deliver packages to FedEx's customers on FedEx's behalf.

11961. Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers working under ISPs have performed their delivery work on strict and predictable schedules pursuant to FedEx's same-day delivery requirements. The drivers' schedules are dictated by the volume of packages that FedEx requires be delivered each day on their routes. Neither these drivers, nor the intermediary ISPs who they work under, have any control over the volume of package pickup and delivery work that FedEx assigns the drivers.

11962. FedEx micromanages how Plaintiffs and other delivery drivers working under ISPs perform their work. Some of this micromanaging is performed directly by FedEx managers, and some is performed by the ISPs, pursuant to standards and requirements established by FedEx (and enforced by FedEx). For example:

a. FedEx requires that the delivery drivers have specific equipment on their van when they perform deliveries for FedEx;

b. FedEx requires the delivery drivers to wear a uniform bearing FedEx's logos and color scheme and to maintain personal appearance standards established by FedEx;

c. FedEx requires the delivery drivers to place specific signage on their vans bearing FedEx's name and logo;

d. FedEx assigns the specific packages that the delivery drivers must deliver and when the packages must be delivered;

e. FedEx requires the drivers to scan all assigned packages with a specific scanner designated by FedEx upon loading each morning and upon delivery;

f. FedEx requires the drivers to begin and end each day at a designated terminal operated by FedEx;

g. Customer comments and complaints regarding the drivers' job performance are made directly to FedEx, who uses its own discretion on what action to take;

h. FedEx has the authority to require its ISPs to terminate the drivers working under them if FedEx believes they should be terminated; and

i. FedEx closely monitors the job performance of the drivers, tracking whether each delivery is "successful" based on FedEx's own standards.

11963. Some FedEx drivers working under ISPs have worked for different ISPs at times, and even at times directly for FedEx, but their work responsibilities, and procedures they have been required to follow, have not differed in any material way regardless of which ISP they have worked under or whether they have worked directly for FedEx.

11964. For example, many FedEx drivers were initially hired directly by FedEx to perform its deliveries, until FedEx told drivers they had to work under an ISP. These drivers' responsibilities and the procedures they were required to follow did not change in any material way following the conversion to drivers working under ISPs. Drivers continued to report to FedEx terminals each morning, drove a vehicle with a FedEx logo on it, and followed FedEx procedures to complete their assigned deliveries.

11965. FedEx drivers, including drivers such as the Plaintiffs who have worked under intermediary ISPs, have routinely worked more than forty hours per week.

11966. Plaintiffs have driven trucks weighing less than 10,001 pounds. They are thus eligible for overtime pay under the FLSA and state law.

11967. However, Plaintiffs have not received all overtime pay for their work beyond 40 hours per week.

11968. Because FedEx is Plaintiffs' employer under the FLSA and applicable state laws, FedEx is liable to Plaintiffs for the unpaid overtime.

11969. FedEx has avoided its responsibilities under the FLSA and applicable state laws by establishing a system through which FedEx employs Plaintiffs and other drivers through intermediary ISPs. FedEx knew, or should have known, that Plaintiffs and other drivers were not paid overtime that they were owed. FedEx has thus acted with reckless disregard for Plaintiffs' rights.

11970. However, regardless of FedEx's actual or constructive knowledge of this fact, FedEx is Plaintiffs' "employer," as defined by the FLSA and applicable state laws. FedEx is therefore liable for any overtime payments that are due to Plaintiffs other delivery drivers who have worked under ISPs.

COUNT I
(Unpaid Overtime Under the FLSA)

11971. The FLSA, 29 U.S.C. § 207(a)(1), requires that employees receive overtime premium pay of “not less than one and one-half times” their regular pay rate for hours worked beyond 40 per workweek. FedEx is liable under the FLSA for unpaid overtime owed to Plaintiffs. FedEx’s violation of the FLSA has been willful and in reckless disregard of these drivers’ rights.

COUNT II
(Unpaid Overtime Under Alaska Law)

11972. Alaska law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at the rate of one and one-half times the regular rate of pay shall be paid” for hours worked beyond eight hours per day or hours worked beyond 40 per week. Alaska Stat. § 23.10.060. FedEx is liable under Alaska law for unpaid overtime owed to drivers who worked in Alaska.

COUNT III
(Unpaid Overtime under California Law)

11973. California entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at the rate of no less than one and one-half times the regular rate of pay” for hours worked beyond eight hours per day or 40 hours per week. Cal. Lab. Code § 510; see also Cal. Lab. Code §§ 1194, 1198. California law also entitles employees to overtime premium “at the rate of no less than twice the regular rate of pay for an employee” for hours beyond 12 hours in one day. Cal. Lab. Code § 510. FedEx is liable under California law for unpaid overtime owed to the Plaintiffs who worked in California.

COUNT IV
(Unpaid Overtime Under Colorado Law)

11974. Colorado law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at time and one-half of the regular rate of pay” for hours worked beyond 40 per week, 12 hours per day, or 12 consecutive hours. 7 Colo. Code Regs. § 1103-1:4. FedEx is liable under Colorado law for unpaid overtime owed to drivers who worked in Colorado.

COUNT V
(Unpaid Overtime under District of Columbia Law)

11975. District of Columbia law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at a rate not less than 1 1/2 times the regular rate at which the employee is employed” for hours worked beyond 40 per week. D.C. Code Ann. § 32-1003. FedEx is liable under District of Columbia law for unpaid overtime owed to the Plaintiffs who worked in the District of Columbia.

COUNT VI
(Unpaid Overtime Under Hawaii Law)

11976. Hawaii law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which the employee is employed” for hours worked beyond 40 per week. Haw. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 387-3. FedEx is liable under Hawaii law for unpaid overtime owed to the Plaintiffs who worked in Hawaii.

COUNT VII
(Unpaid Overtime Under New Mexico Law)

11977. New Mexico law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation at “one and one-half times the employee’s regular hourly rate of pay” for hours worked beyond 40 per week. N.M. Stat. Ann. § 50-4-22. FedEx is liable under New Mexico law for unpaid overtime owed to drivers who worked in New Mexico.

COUNT VIII
(Unpaid Overtime Under New York Law)

11978. New York law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “one and one-half times the employee’s regular rate” for hours worked beyond 40 per week. N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 12, § 142-2.2. FedEx is liable under New York law for unpaid overtime owed to drivers who worked in New York.

COUNT IX
(Unpaid Overtime Under Washington Law)

11979. Washington law entitles employees to overtime premium compensation “at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which he or she is employed” for hours worked beyond 40 per week. Wash. Rev. Code Ann. § 49.46.130. FedEx is liable under Washington law for unpaid overtime owed to the Plaintiffs who worked in Washington.

COUNT X
(Declaratory Judgment)

11980. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 57 and 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202, Plaintiffs request a declaration that they were FedEx’s employees within the meaning of the FLSA and applicable state laws.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs seek the following relief:

- A. Restitution for all unpaid overtime owed to the drivers;
- B. Liquidated damages and prejudgment interest, pursuant to the FLSA and applicable state laws;
- C. All remedies provided by applicable state laws;
- D. Litigation costs, expenses, and attorneys’ fees;

- E. Judgment declaring that Plaintiffs were FedEx's employees within the meaning of the FLSA and applicable state laws; and
- F. Such other and further relief as this Court deems just and proper.

JURY TRIAL DEMAND

Plaintiffs demand a jury trial on their claims.

Dated: August 6, 2024

Respectfully submitted,

Sarah Schalman-Bergen

Shannon Liss-Riordan (pro hac vice forthcoming)

Harold Lichten (pro hac vice forthcoming)

Sarah Schalman-Bergen (PA Bar No. 206211)

Matthew Carrieri (pro hac vice forthcoming)

LICHTEN & LISS-RIORDAN, P.C.

729 Boylston Street, Suite 2000

Boston, Massachusetts 02116

(617) 994-5800

sliss@llrlaw.com

hlichten@llrlaw.com

ssb@llrlaw.com

mcarrieri@llrlaw.com

Jeremy Abay (PA Bar No. 316730)

LICHTEN & LISS-RIORDAN, P.C.

76 E. Euclid Avenue, Suite 101

Haddonfield, New Jersey 08035

(856) 509-5346

jabay@llrlaw.com

Attorneys for Plaintiffs